ABAG Approves 20-Year Plan To End Urban Sprawl

Only Five Cities Oppose Proposal For Regional Development Guide

By DAVID DIETZ

BERKELEY — The 20-year regional plan of the Association of Bay Area Governments — which seeks an end to the urban sprawl through intergovernmental cooperation — encountered surprisingly light opposition last night and was approved by an overwhelming vote of the association's general assembly.

Delegates from only five of the 84 cities represented on the general assembly voted against the plan, with 20 absent, and all eight county members endorsed it.

Among the dissenters were the cities of San Anselmo and Rohnert Park.

As envisioned in the document, which its backers insisted was merely a development guide and not a detailed land-use plan, the Bay Region in 1990 would include a series of "growth corridors" to accommodate a projected rise in population from the present 4.7 million to 7.5 million. (Details of the plan were reported in the Independent-Journal on March 27.)

Critics among the delegates feared for the most part that the document would lead to a regional government with broad taxing powers that would usurp home rule, but the dissent was swallowed in an outpouring of enthusiasm by nearly a dozen speakers.

Marin Supervisor John F. McInnis, chairman of ABAG's planning committee and chief shepherd of the plan, expressed surprise at the outcome.

He had told newsmen before the meeting in the Hotel Claremont that he expected resistance from local government to be "varied and violent."

However, the plan is yet to undergo a year of public hearings throughout the Bay Area and McInnis, noting that the document "gives cities and counties a tool against which to compare their planning efforts," said he fully expected modifications. The plan "is not the final product for all time," he told delegates.

Last night's vote came with a sense of urgency, however, since ABAG had been required by federal officials to submit a regional plan by Oct. 1, otherwise face a shutoff of sewer, park, mass transit and open-space matching funds.

While observing that the goals of the plan may be desirable, Mayor James F. Reed of San Anselmo told delegates the document was unacceptable because it failed to outline a program under which the purchase of open space and construction of housing would be accomplished, that it threatened "another layer of general purpose government with broad taxing

COOL IN THE POOL

So you think a child's summer is all fun and sun and tans at the beach, eh? Well, Linda Brandt (left), 9, got a chilling surprise today when she slid into the San Rafael High School pool for a swimming class. With the morning temperature clinging to the 60 mark, this July vacation day was no fun for her companion, 8-year-old Tony Podesta (right), either. U.S. Peace Plans Accepted In Israel

Government Heeds Plea From Nixon

TEL AVIV (UPI) — The Israeli cabinet, heeding an appeal from President Nixon, today accepted the U.S. Middle East peace proposals that include a three-month cease-fire on the Egyptian front. Egypt had accepted the proposals earlier.

The decision was taken by the cabinet in the fourth crisis session of the week despite the threat of a walkout by the six Gahal Party members of the National Unity Coalition that would imperil the government of Premier Golda Meir.

The six members of the hawkish party voted against accepting the proposal according to the Israeli State Radio which said the vote in the cabinet was 17-6 with no abstentions. However, they did not immediately walk out but caucused again to decide their course.

EDGE OF CRISIS

Political sources said it was unlikely Gahal would take any firm decision before Sunday, leaving the country still teetering on the edge of a governmental crisis. The Gahal bloc, which has 26 seats in the 120-seat unicameral parliament, had decided Tuesday to walk out if the cabinet said yes.

Despite the threat, the Gahal ministers were invited to sit on a ministerial committee which will draft the official Israel reply.

The Israeli statement today said Israel was prepared to subscribe to the U.S. proposals for 90-day cease-fire "at least on the Egyptian front." This ruled out a cease-fire now on the Jordanian front where Arab guerrillas have threatened to continue the war.

VAGUE WORDING

The U.S. proposals were vaguely worded and Israel was forced repeatedly to seek clarification from Washington on their meaning. The Rogers proposals spoke specifically of a cease-fire on the Suez Canal front and hopefully of the other fronts.

But during the 90-day period the belligerents could begin preliminary discussions which would settle the problem on a cease-fire on other sectors with Ambassador Gunnar V. Jarring acting as mediator, and hopefully, to prepare for negotiations to write a formal end to the conflict.

Cabinet Secretary Michael Arnon said Gahal's threat to quit was not discussed at the two-hour cabinet meeting.

COMMITTEE SET

He said the committee appointed to draft the reply was Mrs. Meir, Foreign Minister Abba Eban, Defense Minister Moshe Dayan, Deputy Premier and Minister of Education Higal Allon, Minister of Religious Affairs Zerah Warhaftig, Tourist Minister Moshe Kol; Minister of Justice Yaacov Shapiro and Minister without protfolio Nathan Peled.

He said Gahal was invited to

DURING CEASEFIRE

Nixon Vows No Egyptian Buildup

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—President Nixon says Israel need have no fear of a threatening Arab military buildup during the 90-day ceasefire that is a cornerstone of the U.S. Mideast peace plan both sides have now accepted.

The Israeli Cabinet's acceptance of the formula came less than 42 hours after Nixon stressed anew, at a news conference, that the United States continues committed to a policy of keeping Israel stronger than its Arab neighbors.

The cease-fire had been the touchiest point with the Israelis, with a bitter controversy taking place within Premier Golda Meir's Cabinet over whether acceptance might allow the Egyptians to build up their forces and bases along the Suez Canal.

In his nationally broadcast news conference Thursday night in a hotel ballroom, Nixon said: "If there's a ceasefire, a natural proposition connected with that — and conditioned with that — is that there will be a military standstill during that period." He added:

"I believe that Israel can agree to the ceasefire and can agree to negotiations without fear that her position may be compromised or jeopardized in that period."

Touching on a number of other points in his first news conference outside Washington since becoming President, Nixon also took a sympathetic view toward southern school districts facing the "very difficult problem" of desegregation.

He raised the unpopular spectre of higher taxes in 1972 if "those very well-intentioned Congressmen and Senators" keep appropriating more money than he has asked for and said he would decide next week whether to veto measures on federal housing and education that contain almost $1 billion more than he requested.

"I am going to make some hard decisions, vetoing some popular measures if I believe that those measures would result in increasing prices or require an increase in taxes," Nixon said.

"We can avoid an increase in taxes and we can avoid an inflationary budget in 1972 but only if we get the cooperation of Congress in these next two to three months."

The President met with newsmen at the Century Plaza Hotel here and appeared confident and unruffled despite irritating technical problems that resulted in his voice being unamplified for the 150 reporters seated in front of him.

He returned immediately after the half-hour news confer-

Election In Orange Key To Tax Feuding?

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An ace-in-the-hole special Orange County election next month loomed today as a growing possibility to dislodge Gov. Ronald Reagan's deadlocked tax revision program.

Republicans in the legislature and top aides to Reagan reported the state Senate election quickly is taking on added significance as a possible life preserver for the embattled $1 billion proposal.

As support for the legislation slipped by another crucial vote, 13 intransigent senators showed no sign of weakening their opposition. One redoubled his.

The governor's legislation dangled a mere two votes away from the 27 needed for Senate approval. Administration supporters have been unable to recruit them.

Sen. Robert Lagomarsino, R-Ojai, Senate manager of the bills, didn't even attempt another run at passage Thursday and administration strategists openly discussed the growing possibility of shelving the program until after the Aug. 18 election in Orange County.

Two Republicans, Dennis Carpenter and Douglas Irvine, are the only candidates for the vacant seat of John G. Schmitz, R-Tustin, who was elected to Congress.

Each is regarded as a virtual certain vote for passage of the program. Carpenter is GOP state chairman and Irvine is a land developer.

Assemblyman William M. Bagley, R-San Rafael, chief sponsor of the administration's package, and George Steffs, legislative secretary to Reagan, said several "alternative possibilities" are being studied as levers to jack the program loose.

"One of the other possibilities is if in the special election Carpenter wins, we'll have a vote," Steffes said.

Bagley agreed that legislation could be shelved "for a few weeks until we get the vote from Dennis Carpenter."

Steffes said other holdout Democrats were identified as "possibilities" to switch their votes while Bagley noted there are certain legislative maneuvers to keep the administration's plan viable.

Basically, the legislation, which has passed the Assembly, proposes a massive $1 billion shift away from the property tax during the next four years to statewide taxes. Some taxes would be increased and others decreased so the entire package would result in a wash.

Reagan told reporters at a

One American Escapes Uruguay Kidnap Team

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (UPI)—Two American officials and a Brazilian diplomat were kidnaped by unidentified armed men believed to be Tupamaros terrorists today. Police said a fourth kidnap attempt against a U.S. embassy official failed.

The kidnaped men were identified as Gordon Jones, 27, a U.S. vice consul, who managed to escape his assailants although wounded; Dan Mitrione, 50, of the International Development Agency, (AID), and Brazilian consular official, Aloysio Mares Dias, 41.

An American embassy official said there was also an attempt to kidnap the cultural attache, Nathan Rosenfeld, 48, but that it failed. He gave no details.

Mitrione is from Richmond, Ind. Jones was identified only as a Californian, and Rosenfeld, a New Yorker.

All of the kidnapings occurred within minutes of each other in widespread sections of suburban Montevideo. Mitrioni was captured in suburban Malvin when a car with five pistol-waving men in it blocked off his car and seized him. Minutes later, a second group of men seized Mares Dias, 41, leaving his home at Carrasco, a beach area 10 miles from downtown Montevideo.

There was no precise information on how Jones was seized but police said he was in a car which his kidnapers intercepted. Police said they bound Jones hand and feet but that he somehow managed to throw himself out of the car while it was in motion.

Jones hobbled to a small store where he told the shopkeeper "They tried to kidnap me. I'm from the American embassy." Police said Jones had a minor head wound, apparently inflicted by a blunt instrument, but that his condition was not serious.

There was no positive identification of the kidnapers.

Guard Chief Rules Out Prison Strike

The president of the San Quentin Prison correctional officers association said today there is "no chance" of a strike at the prison.

Arnold Thompson ruled out the possibility of a strike in a conversation with the Independent-Journal, though talk of a strike continued to circulate among other correctional officers at the prison.

The guards were reportedly concerned about a memo by Warden Louis A. Nelson criticizing the firing of a gun by a guard in two recent prison incidents.

Several guards told the Independent-Journal that widespread discontent with 5 per cent wage increase had been smoldering and that the warden's memo had been "the last straw." One informant, who asked not to be identified because his job might be involved, said, "They've got a real bad situation there."

That opinion among the guards was divided was attested

B52s In Heaviest Viet Bombing In 6 Months

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. B52 bombers carried out their heaviest raids in six months across Vietnam in a series of missions ending today. The U.S. Command said other American warplanes went after guerrilla supply lines in Laos and Cambodia.

B52s dropped at least four million pounds of bombs in 19 raids over South Vietnam in the 48 hours ending at noon, military spokesmen said. The raids were the heaviest since the 20 missions flown Jan. 28-29.

The bombers struck at targets ranging from one mile south of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) dividing the two Vietnams to the U Minh Forest near the nation's southern tip.

The raids followed reports that three veteran Communist regiments had moved back into South Vietnam from Cambodia. The strikes in the north pounded buildups in sectors near the Laotian border where Allied troops engaged in heavy fighting with Communist forces three weeks ago.

Nine of the raids came in the 24 hours ended at noon today, seven of them in mountain jungle border regions of the northern provinces of Quang Tri and Thu Thien. Two others hit targets from three to four miles from the Cambodian border and 78 to 79 miles northwest of Saigon.

Field reports from Phnom Penh said a Communist attack before dawn today on a Cambodian artillery position 40 miles west-southwest of the capital had blocked Highway 4, connecting the capital with the port of Kompong Som.

Cambodian army units sent in reinforcements led by armored cars to try to reopen the highway.

The severing of the highway prevented Cambodian troops from getting reinforcements by road to the five-battalion unit moving up to assault the Kirirom Plateau, a few miles west of the roadblock.

Military officers near the scene said an armored battalion from 2nd Military Division

BOMB DAMAGE TO OAKLAND HALL OF JUSTICE

Jagged windows attest to force of explosion from bomb which was planted in first-floor lobby of the Oakland Hall of Justice late yesterday, shattering at least 30 windows but causing no injuries. Damage was estimated at $20,000. The explosion, heard 18 blocks away, was "probably a pipe affair," according to police. Glass was blown across four lanes of busy Seventh Street.

WIRE NEWS BRIEFS From Everywhere

East Room Painted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The East Room of the White House, where most formal social events are held, has been repainted "a slightly warmer shade of white" with gold benches and gold draperies.

The colors are basically the same used when the room was last painted in 1965.

Belfast Slaying

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—British troops, under attack by stones and firebombs, shot a 19-year-old boy to death and dispersed a crowd of youths with nausea gas early today in a Roman Catholic area of Belfast.

It was the first serious violence in Northern Ireland since rioting early this month in Belfast's Catholic Lower Falls Road district in which three persons died.

An army spokesman said Daniel O'Hagan, 19, of Belfast died with a gasoline bomb in his hands when shot in the neck by an army marksman after being warned three times.

20,000—No Music

MIDDLEFIELD, Conn. (UPI) —The keystone to a rock festival is supposed to be rock music — hard-driving, electric, music —hard-driving, electric, heavy, wailing vocals and 12-foot speakers. It supposedly fits with long hair, nude swimming, drugs and peace signs.

Close to 20,000 people at Powder Ridge have everything but the rock music.

The festival was banned by a Middlefield town court and upheld by the Connecticut Supreme Court. The owners of Powder Ridge — a ski resort in the winter—were arrested when festival devotees started showing up by the thousands despite the court's ruling.

The police would like them not to be there, but really aren't trying to make them leave—so far. The Connecticut Highway Patrol has sealed off the two roads into the 300-acre plot and some of the utilities have been turned off.

Darwin Questioned

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—Charles Darwin believed all forms of life on earth evolved from one or a few simple forms.

A Santa Barbara, Calif., biology professor said today evolutionists were beginning to give up the Darwinian concept of evolution.

"In the last letter he is known to have written," Dr. Bolton Davidheiser said, "he stated the belief that life came from non-living matter by natural means.

"Evolutionists today, and the college textbooks, teach that life developed from inanimate matter by natural means and then evolved into all known forms of living things."

Davidheiser made his remarks at one of the opening sessions of the 12th annual Christian Crusade, headed by Dr. Billy James Hargis of Tulsa.

Nixon Hits Officials On College Troubles

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon Thursday night accused university leaders of blaming him for their own shortcomings.

The problems of dissent mushrooming into violence and students shouting obscenities at visiting speakers are "not problems for the government," Nixon said.

The President obviously was chafing under recent criticism directed at his administration by Dr. Alexander Heard, the Vanderbilt University chancellor who recently ended two months as a special liaison for the academic community with the White House.

In reports made public last week, Heard and his assistant, Dr. James Cheek of Howard University, harshly criticized the Nixon administration for failing to communicate with young people.

Showing some anger and considerable exasperation, the President chose his news conference in Los Angeles to reply.

"The problem of communicating with students and other groups is a perennial one. It existed in previous administrations. It exists in this one," Nixon said.

"However, I would only say that in order to maintain balance we have to recognize that, for university presidents and professors and other leaders to put the blame for the problems of the universities on the government primarily . . . is very shortsighted."

He pointed out that his administration was moving toward an end to the war in Vietnam and the draft and dealing with problems of the environment.

"But once all those things are done, still the emptiness and the shallowness, the superficiality that many college students find in college curricula will still be there.

". . . The problem that we have of dissent on campus not remaining a peaceful challenge, which is perfectly appropriate and defensible, but dissent becoming sometimes violent, sometimes illegal, sometimes shouting obscenities when visiting speakers come to campus, this is a problem that is not a problem for government.

Thieu Visions 50,000 GIs' Aid To 1973

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu said Thursday night he expects 50,000 American troops to remain in South Vietnam as late as 1973 as a "residual force" to protect supply bases.

Thieu said he foresaw a continuing American presence in South Vietnam similar to that in South Korea.

The South Vietnamese president made his remarks at a dinner for a group of Western correspondents at Independence Palace.

Thieu told the correspondents he had not been informed what American plans were for troop withdrawals beyond mid-1971. President Nixon has announced plans to cut American forces in South Vietnam to 284,000 by the middle of next year. There now are about 405,000 Americans in the country.

Thieu said he would ask the Americans for arms to equip one million more members of the People's Self Defense Forces (PSDF), unpaid civilian volunteers who serve as local security forces on a part-time basis. Thieu said there now were about 500,000 PSDF members.

The PSDF would not need the most modern weapons, such as the American M16 automatic rifle, Thieu said. But he said he would like to see the PSDF armed with some bigger weapons to give them more firepower.

Thiew said he foresaw a limited war in the future that eventually would "fade away." He said he believed the operations of Communist forces would be restricted to jungle areas along South Vietnam's frontiers. He said the increased PSDF would be needed to provide security in other parts of the country.

Manson Team Attacks Linda's Use Of Drugs

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The account of seven murders at the Tate-LaBianca homes related by state witness Linda Kasabian was the "fantasy" of a drug-impaired mind, according to defense attorneys for Charles Manson and his "family" codefendants.

Paul Fitzgerald, the chief defense counsel, took over cross examination of Mrs. Kasabian Thursday and attempted to nullify three days of testimony in which she gave an eyewitness account of the killings last Aug. 8-9.

Fitzgerald told newsmen that the defense for Manson and three female codefendants would be based in principal on the contention that Mrs. Kasabian, a 21-year-old blonde who lived with the family for one month, was not mentally competent.

Under cross-examination, Mrs. Kasabian admitted taking LSD, peyote, methedrine or "speed", mescaline, and morning glory seeds.

"My sole purpose for taking hallucinogens was for realization—God-realization," she said.

"And were you successful in realizing God?" Fitzgerald asked.

"I realized you don't have to take peyote or LSD to discover God," she replied.

Mrs. Kasabian said she had had delusions while under the influence of drugs, but insisted she did not suffer from "flashbacks" after the drug had wore off.

"Has taking LSD altered your personality?" Fitzgerald asked.

"Yes, it has altered it, I believe, to a certain extent, because it has showed me a lot about myself," she replied.

"Are you any different than you were during July and August 1969 just prior to the Tate-LaBianca slayings?" Fitzgerald questioned.

"I sure am," she replied. "I've come to a lot of conclusions about reality and right and wrong."

She appeared unflustered by Fitzgerald's steady hammering at her use of drugs and whether it had affected her perception of reality.

Earlier, she testified how on the night following the Sharon Tate slayings, Manson drove a group to the home of Leno LaBianca and tied up the grocer and his wife, then sent Leslie Van Houten, Charles Watson and Patricia Krenwinkel into the house, telling them, "Don't let them know you're going to kill them."

She said after leaving that trio at the LaBiancas, she and Manson walked hand-in-hand on the beach, she confided in him that she was pregnant, and he ordered her to slit the throat of a man she had met.

"I said, Charlie, I'm not you, I can't kill anyone," she said.

Manson ignored her, she said, and gave her a pocketknife, telling her to slit the man's throat as soon as she stepped inside the door of an unidentified man's apartment.

She deliberately knocked at the wrong door, she said, "because I didn't want to kill anyone."

Meanwhile in New Orleans, the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals today delayed for at least two more weeks the extradition from Texas to California of Watson, charged in the Tate-LaBianca murders. The court ruled Watson could not be sent back to California before Aug. 15, and gave Watson's attorney until Aug. 8 to file further appeals that would delay extradition even more.

The ruling blocked efforts by Texas Attorney General Crawford Martin, who had wanted Watson extradited immediately.

Californian Charged In Arctic Death

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A Mexican-American technician has been charged with murder in the mystery slaying of a research team commander on a remote ice island afloat in the Arctic Ocean some 300 miles from the North Pole.

Mario J. Escamilla, 32, of Santa Barbara, Calif., was arraigned Thursday before U.S. Magistrate Stanley King in suburban Alexandria, Va., in the shooting death of Bennie Lightsy of Louisville, KKY. A preliminary hearing was set for Aug. 5.

The bearded Escamilla, in handcuffs and chains, was flown to Dulles Airport Thursday along with Lightsy's body. He was accompanied by the four investigators who flew to the island Monday to try to unravel details of the death, which had remained a mystery because of poor radio communications.

Escamilla was charged under maritime law because the ice floe is considered the same as a ship at sea flying the U.S. flag. He was arraigned at Alexandria because maritime law states that men charged with crimes on the high seas will be tried at the first U.S. port of call. The federal court at Alexandria was the nearest court to Dulles Airport, the first place the plane landed on the mainland, and therefore considered its port of call.

The ice station managed to relay word of Lightsy's death July 16 to Point Barrow, Alaska, but had been unable to establish more than sporadic radio contact since then.

There are 115 farms, covering 93 acres, within the city limits of New York.

Ferry Commuter Parking Lot Urged

A committee of Golden Gate Bridge District directors yesterday recommended that the district lease a 60,000-square-foot parcel in north Sausalito for a commuter parking lot.

A feeder bus will shuttle commuters free between the lot, just north of the Army Corps of Engineers installation and the district's downtown ferry landing.

The district should lease its own buses for the feeder service until it comes up with a permanent arrangement for the service, the committee agreed.

The ferry service to San Francisco is to start sometime between Aug. 15 and Sept. 1.

The cost of the lease will be about $500 a month, the district's attorney, Thomas M. Jenkins, estimated. The monthly rent is $300, and the proposed lease also provided that the district pay a share of the property taxes.

The owner of the property is Donlon J. Arques, who owns adjacent property that could be added to the lease if the district decides to put its North Sausalito terminal at this location, Jenkins noted.

The proposed lease was for one year, but after a 35-minute closed meeting, the joint transportation and finance-auditing committee asked Jenkins to seek an option for a second year.

The district's engineer, Robert E. Shields, estimated the district's cost for clearing debris from the lot at $10,000. He said the cost of fencing, landscaping, and surfacing with gravel would be "nominal", but declined to give a figure.

Jenkins said that the monthly cost of leasing other property in the area, property which already was cleared of debris, would be considerably higher.

The property fronts on Bridgeway, and at its rear has a right-of-way across the railroad to a fishing pier owned by Arques. The foundation of the pier is in good condition, Shields said.

The committee voted, 7-2, on leasing the property, directors Joseph E. Sheeks of Belvedere and Ben K. Lerer of San Francisco dissenting. Sheeks, noting the district's naval architect will report in only six days on his long-range water transportation plan, said action should be postponed to be sure the site was in accord with the long-range plan.

Lerer agreed, scoring the committee's recommendation for what he termed "head-on spending without the proper advice."

Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring assured the committee that the naval architect, Philip F. Spaulding, had approved selection of the Arques property.

Jenkins explained the closed session was to discuss the value of several properties in the area "and the possibilities of condemnation."

The committee voted unanimously to reject all four bids received last month to provide the district with buses for the Sausalito feeder service and for charter commuter clubs.

Several directors ind they wanted to avoid the mine field sowed by a brewing conflict between two of the bidders, Marin County Transit Systems of Marin City and Community Enterprises of Petaluma.

The recommendation that the district operate its own feeder buses will have to be temporary because there is no time for competitive bidding, thus only up to $5,000 can be spent, Jenkins said.

Director Stephan C. Leonoudakis asked if the district could give the temporary lease to the Marin City company, but Jenkins objected there would be "some definite legal problems," and the idea was dropped.

Lerer, noting the company "was in the field before anyone else," said that "every possible consideration should be given to them instead of to some Johnny-come-lately."

The committee's recommendations will go before the board at 10 a.m. next Wednesday, when a special meeting is set in toll plaza offices.

Chavez Looks To Vegetable Fields

DELANO (UPI) — Cesar Chavez, who organized vineyard workers, now is turning his attention to a dispute with the Teamsters Union over who will represent farm workers in the vegetable fields.

The day after his AFL-CIO United Farm Workers Organizing Committee announced victory in its efforts to represent grape workers, Chavez Thursday announced a march to Salinas, center of the lettuce industry.

He said his followers, many of them Mexican-Americans, would trudge to Salinas by Sunday.

The Teamsters, stealing a march, previously announced reaching agreement with the growers of lettuce, celery, carrots and other crops in both the Salinas and Santa Maria valleys.

Nine Boys, Girl Enlist In Navy

Ten Marin youths including a girl enlisted in the navy in July at the Navy Recruiting Station in San Rafael, according to Recruiter Jarrell E. Mitcham.

Enlisting in the WAVES was Annette Crawley of 125 Edward Avenue, Santa Venetia, who is in training at the Naval Training Center, Bainbridge, Md.

The nine men who enlisted and were sent to the Naval Training Center in San Diego are: Corte Madera — Ronald Barber of 10 Tamal Vista Boulevard; Novato — Terry Nelson of 10 Gertrude Lane and Allen McHugh of 37 Baca Vista; Paradise Cay — William Gray of 8 St. Lucia Place; Point Reyes Station — Larry Ault; San Rafael — George Wells of 1450 Lincoln Avenue and David Morey of 413 Jewell Street; Santa Venetia — Dennis Baumann of 301 Vendola Drive and Daniel Dowell of 137 Vendola Drive.

Bridge District May Aid Struggling Bus

The deficit-plagued Marin County Transit System, operator of the Tiburon feeder bus service, was offered a tentative helping hand yesterday by a committee of Golden Gate Bridge District directors.

The joint transportation and finance-auditing committee, at the urging of Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum, recommended that the bridge district seek a joint powers agreement with the Marin County Transit District to subsidize the struggling company.

No figures were mentioned, but Wornum told newsmen after the meeting he hoped the district could come up with $4,000 a month.

This is the same amount the Marin City-based company now gets from the transit district, but that subsidy is due to expire on Aug. 15. It has been extended previously several times.

Wornum said that the transit district, unlike the bridge district, was not required to seek competitive bids before paying the subsidy.

He said the subsidy to the company "would keep them going."

The district's attorney, Thomas M. Jenkins, said that the subsidy would be legal to the extent that it was for intercounty transit servict. Most of the company's service fits the requirement since it is part of the ferry service to San Francisco.

Director Joseph E. Sheeks of Belvedere noted, however, that the district's policy was to spend its money only when such a feeder service was to a system owned or operated by the district. A private carrier operates the Tiburon Ferry.

Wornum covered this point by winning committee approval of his recommendation that "we make any alterations in our policies to accomplish this" subsidy.

Sheeks strongly criticized the City of Tiburon for not doing more to encourage use of the feeder bus. He objected that the city recently blacktopped downtown road shoulders, thus encouraging more commuters to park downtown.

He said that the city should be made a part of the proposed joint power agreement, and be "required to limit all-day parking."

The committee's recommendation was voted, 7-2, directors Lowell Edington of Napa County and San Francisco Supervisor Peter Tamaras dissenting.

Edington cautioned against "entanglements" that could deprive the bridge district of the control it should have over its transit operations.

The recommendations will go to the full board at 10 a.m. next Wednesday.

Bolinas Panel To Air Sewage System Study

A report from an engineering firm on the feasibiltiy of the proposed sewage disposal systen for Bolinas will be discussed today at a special meeting of the Bolinas Public Utility District board at 7:30 p.m. in the district office.

Clerk Jane Boyer said the report will be given by representatives of the engineering science division of Bradberry and Associates of Los Altos. She said the board will also discuss the site of the proposed treatment plant and other facets of the disposal system which are contingent on the report.

Bel Aire Panel To Hire Private Consultant To Study Flood Plans

A master plan for a $560,000 drainage project developed by Marin's public works department for the flood-prone Bel Aire area of the Tiburon Peninsula is now said to contain all the problems but few solutions to winter flooding.

The plan, which the county previously thought had been approved, came under question Wednesday night by residents and board members of the Bel Aire Flood Control Zone.

Claiming the plan contained questions yet to be answered, the zone's advisory board shrugged off a public works department recommendation of accpetance and voted 3-to-1 to hire a private consultant to study the plan.

Charles E. Murphy, county flood control engineer, reported yesterday that board chairman Stanley G. Bennett cast the lone dissenting ballot saying hiring a consultant "would be a waste of money." James D. Hougland, the fifth member on the board was absent.

Murphy in April told the Independent-Journal the master plan had been approved during the April 21 meeting. Yesterday he said three members of the board had since sent him letters stating such approval had not been given.

He attributed the mixup to the advisory board's approval of accumulating reserve funds for the project through a property tax rate increase.

(In June, the board requested the board of supervisors to increase the flood zone's tax rate from 8.5 cents to 50 cents per $100 assessed valuation. Supervisors agreed and this year's budget now stands at $27,500 with about $25,000 going into the reserve fund.)

The plan, which has been in the works for more than a year at a cost to Bel Aire residents of about $2,500, also came under question as to the required expenditure of more than a half-million dollars to provide new drainage culverts and enlarge existing facilities.

Board member Howard Stenzel told the I-J yesterday he voted in favor of the consultant because he wants an outside professional opinion on the plan.

Calling the plan, lacking in specifics, Stenzel said he was bothered by "so large an expenditure for such a small area in order to come up with a workable plan to keep us from flooding."

Phoebe H. Brown, who also voted in favor of hiring the consultant, charged that the plan was "not accurate or precise" and added that the plan simply outlines what the problems are.

Mrs. Brown said that Donald H. Frost, director of the county's public works department told the board the plan had to be executed as a package. "We can't do it (flood control) a little at a time to alleviate the immediate problems with this plan," she said.

Another observer at the meeting, Roger A. Danford, president of the Bel Aire Homeowners Association, levelled the same criticism.

"The plan is broken down into three phases," he pointed out, "but Frost said the implementation of one phase without the others would be worthless."

He added that Frost said construction could not begin until the zone had secured the needed funds.

"The county had recommended we increase our taxes for reserves of $50,000 a year, but even at that and a minimum construction cost increase of 5 per cent a year we could never catch up," he added.

Other residents charged that the county is contributing to the flooding of the area in the meantime by allowing continued development of the higher areas in Bel Aire along Blackfield and Circle drives.

They claimed that during the heavy December rains, about 35 homes sustained flood damage, adding the damage was partly caused by new development trailings clogging existing drainage gutters.

Pope Firm On Dutch Celibacy

UTRECHT, The Netherlands (UPI)—Pope Paul VI has rejected an appeal by Dutch bishops to allow married men to be ordained priests, the bishops said today in a communique.

The communique said the Pope told Cardinal Bernard J. Alfrink, Roman Catholic primate of the Netherlands, in two audiences earlier this month, "The reasons for maintaining the traditional tie between priesthood and celibacy of the Latin church are also valid today — perhaps even more than in other times."

Alfrink told the Pope that Dutch bishops had agreed it "would serve the interests of the church" if the church allowed married men to be ordained priests. Alfrink also recommended that in special cases priests who had married should be allowed to remain priests.

The communique said Alfrink expressed concern about keeping a sufficient number of priests in the church in the Netherlands.

The communique said, "For the Pope this is a well considered conviction of conscience which he knows to be supported by the bishops in general, even though he knows there are bishops having a different opinion."

Girl, 17, Tells Of Brodnik Killing

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Another witness to the shooting of patrolman Joseph Brodnik has testified the officer was killed in a fight with a group of youths on a Mission District street.

On the stand Thursday was Elizabeth Kossowski, 16, daughter by a previous marriage of Mrs. Irene Jarzyna, 45, who preceded her in court and gave a similar story. Both said they watched from across a street.

The girl said Brodnik and his partner, Paul McGoran, stopped the youths and an argument resulted in a fight as the youths jumped McGoran and Brodnik rushed to his partner's aid.

"One (of the boys) pulled out and he had a gun in his hand and his arm was stretched and he shot one fire," the girl declared.

Disputes Reduce Churches' Membership And Influence

The National Observer did a roundup recently which showed most American churches are losing both members and money.

According to the National Observer's findings, the Latter-day Saints (Mormon) and Southern Baptist churches are the only major sects which continue to gain in membership. The Roman Catholic Church last year reported a decline in its American membership for the first time in history.

Losses in income are greater than losses in membership, the survey found. The National Council of Churches, which includes leading Protestant faiths, planned to cut its budget from $19 million last fiscal year to $14 million this year. The American Baptist Convention was planning a $2 million reduction from its $16 million budget of last year. Other denominations also reported cuts.

THE DECLINES in money and membership are accompanied by disputes within the churches as to their proper roles. Episcopal and Presbyterian churches have seen a good deal of infighting in late years as to how far the clergy should go as "social activists," and where the role of emissary of Christ leaves off and that of partisan politician begins.

A close-to-home example of the current schisms is to be found in the San Francisco Catholic Archdiocese. Members, and even clergy, are divided over the participation by priests — with diocesan blessing — in demonstrations in behalf of Cesar Chavez's United Farm Workers Organizing Committee. Most of the farm workers whom Chavez seeks to bring under the banner of his union are Catholics.

The question, hotly debated in church circles, is whether the priesthood should become organizers for him.

THE DIFFICULTY that churches encounter when their clergy assume "social activist" roles is that those members who hold opposite beliefs in the secular dispute involved are then hard put to accept the clergy's role as teachers for Christ.

Columnist James Kilpatrick, commenting on the National Observer's findings, wrote recently:

"Of course religion must be relevant, but relevant to what? Relevant to Vietnam? To the draft? To the demands of black militants for reparations?"

He then suggested that there is a greater relevance — relevance to God.

INTERESTINGLY ENOUGH, the intra-church disputes that divide the clergy and drive away parishioners generally arise because churchmen are trying to solve someone else's disputes. They are injecting themselves into foreign policy, or into economics, or politics — in none of which does their training for the cloth particulary qualify them.

Perhaps their own disputes would vanish, and they would then be better able to bring to bear the moral suasion that might prevent some of the injustices that disturb them, if they were to heed the words spoken 180 years ago by Edmund Burke when he denounced a preacher for using the pulpit to support the French Revolution. Said Burke:

"Surely the church is a place where one day's truce ought to be allowed to the dissensions and animosities of mankind."

lossom Time

Late July and early August cannot e compared with April in Marin for umbers of blossoms. But they do not o badly this season, thank you.

In our own relatively poor garden, e have the following plants blooming ow: fuchsias, honeysuckle, roses, peunias, love-in-the-mist, lily-of-the-Nile, scarlet-runner beans, geraniums, Shasta daisies, nasturtiums, English daisies, alyssum, gladioli, hydrangeas, zinnias, feverfew, fragrant tobacco plant, and even some surviving blooms of veronica, a spring flower.

Marin is indeed marvelous.

Two-Year Legislative Session Offers Some Advantages

By JACK COOPER

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — he legislative reorganization an that passed the Assembly nd is now before the Senate ounds like a step in the right rection.

You will have your chance vote on it next November, if e Senate follows the Assemy's lead and gives it the necsary two-thirds vote.

It is progressing through the gislature as Assembly Conitutional Amendment 2, and as introduced by Assembly peaker Bob Monagan, who is ell versed in the inefficienies of the present system.

THE PLAN CALLS for vo-year instead of one-year sessions. This is the way it is done in Congress.

A worthy piece of legislation introduced in the Assembly may not be enacted in the Senate by the time the session ends and vice versa, and all bills die, under the present system.

Keeping the session alive for two years would allow time for proper consideration of each house's legislation by the other. It would also save the cost of reprinting and reintroducing such bills in a second session.

The assembly believes this would save it $100,000 a year in printing bills alone.

THE PLAN in ACA 2 would also eliminate the five-day veto session, which might as well be eliminated since it has never been used.

It was designed to take vengeance on Pat Brown for his pocket vetoes, but it took effect after Pat left office.

The other major change would allow the Legislature to call itself into special session, something that only the governor can do at present.

There are times when some tired newsmen wistfully wish the governor could make 'em all go home, but if the separation of powers is to be observed, the power to convene seems essential.

One of the way English kings of old used to keep Parliament out of their hair was to simply not call 'em into session. Or to dissolve the session if it seemed to be getting out of hand.

IT WOULD BE a nice change, if during those two-year sessions there could be devised some requirement that legislative committees take definite action on a bill, one way or the other.

It has become harder and harder around here to find whether a bill is dead or merely in a coma. Part of this to avoid hurting a fellow lawmaker by killing his bill outright.

This is impossible to cure, of course, since the rule of 41 in the Assembly or 21 in the Senate says if you have the votes, you can do ANYTHING. And we've seen a lot of bills rise Lazarus-like from the dead to everyone's astonishment.

A two-year session is going to be pretty hair-raising for any organization that wants to kill a bill. At least now the agony ends when the Legislature adjourns sine die.

Hospitality Found In Hospital Stay

I recently came home from Ross General Hospital, where I went due to a heart condition. It was the tenth hospitalization since 1955. The ninth was in 1967. While there this time I was deeply touched to see the same concern, devotion, understanding and sincere kindness in the whole staff, from doctors all the way down, as it was in 1955.

True — it is a job — but how can we ever repay this sincere and deep concern for each patient? It truly is a "hospitality" hospital — all the way.

To those who may be going into the hospital for the first time, have no apprehension — the care and consideration is the best, with all those fine modern medical improvements. I know!

Public Employee Not Open Book

Bravo! Bravo! Cheers for the North Marin County Water District. I support their stand against providing the press or any individual the names and salaries of their employees. To do so compares with your going out and asking your neighbor about his personal financial matters.

A "public employee" is not an open book for the public or the press to delve into at will and reveal whatever financial or personal bits of information they desire.

A "public employee" is a worker who labors, indirectly, for the people of a community and for a wage within which the limits have been set.

District Seeks To Raise Interest

The Mill Valley School District has called for a bond election to be held on Sept. 15, 1970. Voters will be asked to increase from 5 per cent to 7 per cent the interest rate that may be paid on $760,000 of unsold school construction bonds.

This letter is written to urge a yes vote. By way of background it should be noted that $3,500,000 school construction bonds were authorized to be sold by the voters of the school district in 1967. $760,000 remain to be sold. The school district had planned to sell $500,000 worth of bonds in April, 1970, and $260,000 in April of 1971, but obstacles were encountered: Customary purchasers felt that they could no longer continue to purchase 5 per cent bonds.

When the voters authorized the district to sell $3.5 million in bonds in 1967, the maximum interest public agencies could pay was 5 per cent. Under recent legislation, 7 per cent is permitted, but voters must authorize the higher rate.

The moneys are essential to the construction of Mill Valley's long-awaited middle school, lands for which have already been acquired and plans for which are completed. Since these are replacement bonds only, the effect on the tax rate will be negligible. Everyone's support is necessary to make sure of the passage of this vital measure on Sept. 15.

Chamber's Role In Promoting City

As president of the Corte Madera Chamber of Commerie, I wish to commend your editorial of July 18, entitled, "Growth For Growth's Sake No Longer Good Enough."

It has long been the philosophy of the Corte Madera Chamber of Commerce that its function is to aid in the development of the Town of Corte Madera as a "whole" community as opposed to its polarization into a "business" community and a "residential" community.

The chamber implements this belief through open board meetings once a month which any interested person may attend, with monthly invitations sent to homeowner associations and town officials. Open communication has led to mutual understanding and trust.

The chamber sponsors activities for the entire citizenry such as candidates' nights, a July 4th celebration, a Christmas carol program, and an Easter egg hunt.

The chamber also takes an active interest both locally and on a county-wide basis in legislative matters which will affect our entire community.

Through our diverse activities, the chamber hopes to create an atmosphere of unity in the Town of Corte Madera in order that existing businesses will thrive to the benefit of the individual and the town as a whole . . .

Growth for growth's sake is not only "no longer good enough" — it is no longer good business.

REMEMBER WHEN?

10 YEARS AGO

July 31, 1960

An Interstate Commerce Commission examiner recommended that Northwestern Pacific Railroad be allowed to abandon freight service on its seven-mile Sausalito branch.

20 YEARS AGO

July 31, 1950

The 40th Infantry Division of the California National Guard was ordered into active federal service and scheduled to report to Camp Cooke in 30 days.

Henry's Tavern and Restaurant in San Anselmo advertised "family style dinners. . .All you can eat for $1. Children under 12 served for half price."

TRY AND STOP ME

By BENNETT CERF

Bumping along on the Long Island Railroad from Babylon to Penn Station, a mother tried valiantly to convince the conductor that the daughter accompanying her was under 12 years of age, and therefore entitled to ride free. "Better hurry and convince him," advised a bitter commuter in the seat behind her. "The way they run this line, your kid may be over 13 by the time we get to New York!"

When a veteran hunter had his hat shot off at the opening of the deer hunting season, he wisely designed for himself a bold black-and-white striped chapeau that he insisted could not puzzle even the rawest amateurs who now were joining in the sport. He was wrong, however. The very day he donned the new hat, a woman hunter plugged him in the back of the neck.

"You were standing less than a hundred yards from this poor man," the investigating officer told the weeping lady. "How could you possibly have mistaken him for a deer?"

"But I didn't," she answered indignantly. "I thought he was a zebra."

THE DRUMMONDS

Death Of 'Southern Strategy' May Be To Nixon's Advantage

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — The most significant political event since the 1968 election is the widening breach between President Nixon and Sen. Strom Thurmond, his foremost southern supporter.

It was Senator Thurmond who clinched the nomination for Richard Nixon at Miami Beach. Now he is excoriating Nixon for his actions to complete school desegregation. And he is warning that the people who gave him the presidency "also can take it away."

THIS IS a large-size political explosion which bears on the future of Richard Nixon and the future of the Republican party.

Its effects may well be quite different from what they appear to be.

The Thurmond attack is likely to turn out to be a political asset.

While Thurmond's support certainly helped get Nixon the nomination, the withdrawal of his support may well strengthen Nixon's prospects for reelection in 1972.

The reason: A "southern strategy" —primarily a sectional policy on desegregation —was workable for a nonincumbent presidential candidate, but it is unworkable for a President in office. The kind of southern strategy which might have held Thurmond as an ally was making it increasingly difficult for President Nixon to govern the country, as he was discovering.

THERE WERE TWO threads to the Nixon southern strategy. He rightly argued that Democratic presidents had made the South a kind of "whipping boy" for political advantage and he avowed to end that. He also tried to give the South more time, more leeway, more flexibility in desegregating the public schools, and at this point he was brought up short by the Supreme Court.

The court ruled that 16 years was long enough to wait for some states to comply with the law. It decided that 16 years of "all deliberate speed" which had in the main worked out as all deliberate slowness must come to an end. It was not the Warren Court which made this decision, it was the Burger Court, and the verdict was: Desegregate now.

Understandably, Senator Thurmond didn't like it.

He hoped Mr. Nixon would forget the Supreme Court ruling. But that was something the President couldn't and wouldn't do. When it came to choosing between keeping Thurmond as an ally and discharging his duty to execute the law of the land, there was no doubt what President Nixon would do.

THURMOND'S REAL gripe isn't that Nixon is discriminating against the South. His real complaint, which he can't bring himself to put candidly, is that Nixon is treating the South the same as the whole country — and Thurmond doesn't like it.

But President Nixon had no other choice if he were to govern the nation evenhandedly.

He is faithfully carrying out the verdict of the Supreme Court.

He is supporting the decision of the Internal Revenue Service that private schools which discriminate against Negroes will lose their tax-exempt status.

Contrary to Thurmond's contention, this does not mean that people are denied freedom of choice to support any kind of private schools they prefer; it simply means that federal funds — through tax exemption — will not be available to promote illegal discrimination.

THE VIEW that Nixon's loss of Thurmond will in the end prove to be Nixon's gain rests on these propositions:

That most southerners are ready to accept desegregation of the public schools as inevitable, if not welcome.

That many southern voters will not be disposed to punish Nixon for carrying out the law of the land.

That some defections in the South will be more than offset by new support elsewhere in the nation.

That by 1972 it will be evident that Richard Nixon will be more acceptable to many southern voters than any Democratic alternative.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

Senator Probes Storage Of A-Weapons Abroad

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — Storage of nuclear weapons by the United States at bases around the world may be the next target of Pentagon critics on Capitol Hill.

The ingredients for a major controversy have been simmering for several weeks. So far, several congressional committees have become involved, along with the Pentagon and the State Department.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., is the prime mover in an effort to learn more about how and where nuclear weapons are stored. He is acting as chairman of a Foreign Relations Subcommittee on U.S. Security Agreements and Commitments Abroad.

Symington's interest in nuclear weapons storage surfaced briefly about a week ago when that subcommittee made public previously classified hearings on U.S. security arrangements on Taiwan. Symington had asked Maj. Gen. Richard G. Ciccolella, former chief U.S. military adviser there, about nuclear weapons maintained on Taiwan. Symington expressed disbelief when Ciccolella testified that he didn't really know about nuclear weapons.

LESS THAN a week after his exchange with General Ciccolella, Symington pressed for weapons storage data in another forum, a closed-door session of the Senate Military Appropriations Subcommittee.

According to our informants, Symington sought information from Vice Adm. Lloyd M. Mustin, director of the Defense Atomic Support Agency, a seldom publicized Pentagon office which studies the effects of nuclear weapon blasts and manages the nuclear weapons stockpile.

In the course of his questioning Symington asked Mustin to supply for the record a list of nations where the U.S. has nuclear weapons. The upshot of his request, we are told, was that the subcommittee staff and official stenographer were banished from the already secret hearing room so that the information could be supplied — but off the record.

The senator is reported to have stated that unusual storage arrangements for nuclear weapons in foreign nations are common knowledge, except in the United States. Symington is understood to have complained that the U.S. maintains a nuclear weapons stockpile in one nation where the government can be overthrown at any time. He asked what would happen to the weapons if that should happen.

TWO WEEKS after the discussion with Mustin, Symington arranged for a Foreign Relations Committee briefing by State Department officials on nuclear weapons deployed in foreign nations. That session was also held under extreme security precautions.

The question now is whether Symington, and his Foreign Relations Subcommittee, will seek to get the weapons data on his subcommittee record.

Under the Atomic Energy Act it is still another congressional committee — the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy — which must be kept fully and completely informed on all atomic energy matters. That committee keeps the weapons program and the weapon stockpile under continuing review.

Flag Guardian Scores Twice To Better Sausalito's Banners

Sausalito's downtown branch of the Bank of America is sporting a bright, new American flag these days, to replace the worn and rather faded national symbol it had been flying for several months.

Credit for the patrictic improvement probably belongs to Bill Thompson, Sausalito's unofficial "flag guardian." Thompson, whose son owns a tobacco shop on the same street as the bank, was the man arrested last winter after a scuffle which occured when he took down the bank's flag because it had been flying all night.

He says he had watched the bank's banner deteriorate and finally sent a heated telegram to a B of A vice president in San Francisco, trying to arouse a bit of guilt around offices of the mighty financial institution.

The tactic apparently worked, because the bank had a new flag up within days.

Thompson is also responsible for the city's finally taking down its California state flag which had flown night and day for several months because its flagpole had a broken cable.

Ired by the tattered, disreputable condition of the bear flag, he fired off a telegram to Governor Reagan and a missive to the city council.

And the old flag, which at least one city official had said was impossible to remove without hiring a pole climber, was down a few days later.

AN I-J REPORTER'S brother, stationed in Saigon in a relatively safe desk job, won a really desirable prize recently in a "Soldier of the Week" contest sponsored by his company.

As the winner, he was privileged to spend three days with an air cavalry helicopter support mission somewhere in the jungles. The second prize winner was even more fortunate: he was allowed to spend two days in the field with the infantry. The company commander is apparently the one who thought up the prizes and everybody loves a C.O. with a good sense of humor.

It is rumored a number of the lucky winners have offered to donate their prizes to charity, perhaps one which benefits high army officers.

SALLY STANFORD is again talking about putting her life story on film, this time with an independent film company from New Orleans. Producer Jack H. Barry, who was entranced by Miss Stanford's witty autobiography, "Lady of the House," is working hard to get her to sign an option on the book, but the lady in question is cautious. Barry said he would like to get Jill St. John to play the leading role. "She's not as pretty as Sally," he said, "but we'll fix her up."

Miss Stanford says she wants to make sure any film about her past is in good taste and a first-class production, "just as my life was."

Post Office Is Seeking New Site In Marshall

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — A new post office will be built in Marshall, Postmaster General Winton M. Blount has announced.

Blount said his office is seeking a 3,000-square-foot site on which to build the new facility under the lease-construction program.

Under the program, a successful bidder will purchase a predesignated site, construct the building to post office requirements and lease the structure to the department.

The new structure is to provide 640 square feet of interior space and 80 square feet of platform space. Space for parking and maneuvering of postal vehicles will cover 2,216 square feet.

The present post office, located Shoreline Highway near the Marshall Hotel, has only 110 square feet of interior space and does not provide platform or parking areas. It will be vacated when the new structure is built.

Council For Civic Affairs Asks More Time On Budget

More time should be provided during the annual county budget sessions to allow citizen groups to make recommendations on cutting or adding, the Marin Council for Civic Affairs has declared.

George Ellman, council chairman, said his group met with County Administrator Alan Bruce Wednesday night and complained that budget items are presented and decided in such a brief time that citizens have little or no time to research and recommend.

"Mr. Bruce defended the present system very well, and we reached no conclusions," said Ellman.

Council members also discussed the wisdom of endorsing candidates in local elections. Ellman said the consensus is that the organization will continue to look at each issue and candidate as they come up and decide whether or not to endorse.

Betty Forry, acting chairman of the subcommittee on mental health, reported her group will delve into the mental health administrative structure to see if any recommendations can be made for improvement.

The council wll skip the August meeting because many members will be on vacation. Next regular meeting will be held at 8 p.m. Sept. 30 at the Civic Center.

Psychiatrist To Continue Work

Greenbrae Psychiatrist Dr. Edward E. Shev, who has been doing psychiatric screening for Novato Police Recruitment for the past two years, will begin twice-a-month confepences with the Novato police in August, City Mgr. Charles A. Brown has reported.

Dates and times of the sessions have not been set as Dr. Shev is on vacation, according to Brown.

The psychiatrist was interviewed by the council during the budget sessions on the value of such sessions. The council budgeted $160 per month for the sessions for 10 months, Brown said.

Plans Denied For Gate, Chain Fence

The Larkspur Planning Commission denied plans submitted Tuesday by the Tamalpais retirement residence for gates and chain link fence around the center.

The Independent-Journal erroneously reported Wednesday that the plans had been approved.

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

More On Cities-County Overlap; Are We One People, Or Two?

Fusselman

When I sat down to write the column last week I had intended to comment on something entirely different from the copy I did send in. Tuesday's I-J the story, short as it was, "Relocation of Sheriff's Cost Is Studied," appeared to be timely and important so I just started to write without any preparation.

Upon reading the column in the Friday issue it seemed that I should have developed the picture for more depth. So here goes and again without prejudice.

You will recall that I said that this was no time to be splitting hairs as to who benefits by law enforcement and the protection of the individual, and gave examples of activities, accepted without question as to which area — incorporated or unincorporated — footed the bill. The following, I believe, gives that view of greater depth.

THE SUPERVISORS, themselves, have no legislative authority in the cities. The city councils pass the ordinances there.

It follows then that departof supervisors have no greater power than the parent organization.

Here are the dollar costs of that situation which are paid by the taxpayers in both areas — 63 or more per cent by those in the cities and 37 or less by those in the other areas of the county, without protest by the city councils:

Administrator's office (Admin. controlled)	140,025
Personnel Dept.	98,728
Purchasing Dept.	48,483
Planning Dept.	410,344
Parks and Recreation	450,939
Total	$1,317,599

Parks and Recreation anticipate that $21,710 will be received in entrance fees. Also, purchasing will service all county offices, some of which will serve both areas to an undetermined amount, dollarwise.

IN GENERAL TERMS population and assessed valuations work out the same percentages (63-37). It's therefore reasonable to assume operational costs of county offices, other than those listed above, will follow. A computer could prove this to be wrong.

Again the question is simply are we one people or are we two groups foreign to each other?

The underlying trouble is that our taxpayers are the victims of those who while temporarily in power insisted on setting all operations up in the grand manner. No consideration was given to the sum total.

Things have followed the same course as ethyl gasoline — no thought of the side effects. You are stuck though. A change of formuia can't help much.

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

Like British Pub-Type Of Place? Try San Rafael's Mayflower Inn

If you like the British pub type of place, you will enjoy a new one called The Mayflower Inn that opened this week at 1533 Fourth Street, San Rafael (next to Cain's Tire).

The interior and also the exterior are newly redecorated and spanking neat and clean. The Mayflower Inn should provide enough authentic atmosphere, with three of its four principals from the British Isles and speaking with appropriate accents. Dave Maxwell of Corte Madera is from Newcastle-on-Tyne. His wife Rose is from Glasgow, Scotland, about one degree further north. She has been in this country about 14 years. Stanley Brassey is a Liverpool man — but his wife Virginia is American. They live in Daly City.

This is a first restaurant venture for all four, but they have some first-hand knowledge of the kind of food they want to serve. Dave and Stanley are marine architects, which may or may not account for the tables being converted hatch covers and a few other decorative touches.

Fare will be on the side of steak and kidney pie ($1.95 with green peas and chips), sausage rolls, pork pies — and eventually Cornish pasties. Unless there is a call for them, I believe the owners will skip serving fish and chips. Food is also prepared to take out.

The Mayflower will be open seven days a week, at least at the start. Hours of service are from 11:30 a.m. to midnight and as late as 2 a.m. Friday and Saturday nights. There is a wine and beer license and an assortment of imported beers and ales are served. Stocks of California wines will be added. There is a small counter and bar at the rear of the dining room, with dartboards on the wall.

As with all new restaurants, there are likely to be "opening pains" and the Brasseys and Maxwells will need a few days to get into their full stride. But I am sure they will.

STARTING TONIGHT, and continuing for an indefinite period, Bernard's Executive Lounge in downtown San Rafael will feature dancing to a three-piece combo on both Friday and Saturday nights from 9:30 until closing.

SABELLA'S IN MARIN has decorated the back patio of the restaurant with early lamp posts and huge wine presses as planter boxes — another one of Lou Sabella's ideas.

Now on the tantalizing and extensive seafood menu here are tagliarini and clams and calamari served Sicilian style. But the star of the show is still Maine lobster broiled in butter. Lobsters are flown in daily from the East Coast and you can select the one you want from a live tank. Or — as a second choice you can order Australian baby lobster tails. And also there is the surf and turf to consider. Ask for it if it's not on the menu.

Jimmy Diamond entertains in the cocktail lounge Sunday and Monday nights.

ORGANIST BILL McCOY returns to Lin Fa Gardens in the Northgate Shopping Center tonight, replacing Gary Schneider. Bill is booked for a continuing series of Friday and Saturday night appearances in the Mai Tai Lounge. It has been four years or more, I think, since he was here last — except for playing at several of Ethel Barrie's anniversary celebration programs.

WEST MARIN RESIDENTS or those spending a day at Drake's Beach, hiking the Bear Valley trails or watching the annual Hog Island marathon of El Toros on Tomales Bay sponsored by the Inverness Yacht Club on Saturday, Aug. 8, can wind up their excursions with a "sea and land feast" on the grounds of St. Columba's Episcopal Church in Inverness.

BILL McCOY
Returns to Lin Fa

The church members are offering a traditional "down east" oyster roast with sea offerings from the region, barbecued chicken and a number of accessories at $3.75 for all you can eat — $2 for children under 12. Service is from 4 to 8 p.m. But there's also lunch from 12:30 to 3 p.m. with hot dogs, sandwiches and soft drinks.

A liturgical art show will be held at the same time inside St. Columba's Church featuring a collection of vestments, copes and mitres designed by Anna Crosley of San Francisco.

IT'S NOT OFTEN these days that you will find a lowering of food prices when you're dining out — but in the case of caterer-vintner Fred Cherry it seems to amount to that.

Since his food activities are now virtually all on the catering side, handling group affairs, he finds he can charge less than when he operated the Cafe Bon Vin in San Anselmo as a regular restaurant. This comes, he says, from less overhead, prepaid reservations and larger scale buying.

This catering business of his (in which he insists that the wine be given equal billing with the food) is definitely moving out of county, and there's no telling where it may end. He has already handled several arrangements in other parts of the Bay Area, but his latest booking is for a party of 50 — down in Pasadena.

THERE'S A NEW NAME among Marin restaurants — but it does not apply to a new opening, nor even a recent change of ownership.

This is The Rafters in Corte Madera — now used by the Gene Compton Corp. for its food and bar activities at the Edgewater Inn Motel. The general idea is to indicate that it is a separate operation from the motel — and also that it has nothing to do with the former ownership under the Bob's of Marin label which ended several months ago.

Alfred Kendlinger is the manager here. Frits Verburg, former owner of L'Europe, is the chef.

REMODELING WORK in the foyer and dining room at Ramona's in San Rafael has been delayed beyond all expectations, although new equipment is beginning to appear in the newly enlarged kitchen.

But until everything is completed. Ramona Stallings vows she will continue to remain closed at lunch time. Meanwhile, dinners are being served as usual — and usually to a packed house.

COUNTING RAMONA'S, I find that nine Mexican restaurants seem to be flourishing in Marin County.

In San Rafael there are also Maria's Pueblo (which is the oldest in the county) and Gonzales Hacienda. Add to these El Rebozo at the Fireside Motel in southern Marin; El Borro in Tiburon; the recently opened Tio Mario's at 300 Valley Street, Sausalito (about a block south of Valhalla); Senor Alfredo's Mexican Restaurant in San Anselmo; Juarez — also in San Anselmo; and El Toreador at 5929 Redwood Highway in Ignacio.

And there soon may be one more if the Frank Rodarte family finds just the right place for one. The Rodartes, you may remember, formerly were preparing dinner at the Redwood Restaurant in Mill Valley when it was owned by Lou Gorman. They are still looking for a good location.

ZIM'S NEW RESTAURANT in the Woodlands Shopping Center, Kentfield has a party room for receptions and meetings that will seat 60 persons. Make arrangements for its use with manager Jene Jackson.

Art Auction To Aid Riles Drive

The Marin County Committee for Wilson Riles has invited artists to contribute their work for a fund-raising art auction on Sept. 18. The location of the auction has not been set.

The chairman of the event is Arlene Lind of San Rafael.

Riles is seeking to unseat Max Rafferty as state superintendent of public instruction.

Marin Scouts In New Mexico

Eleven Scouts and Explorers and an adult leader from the Marin Council of the Boy Scouts of America are participating in the "University of the Great Outdoors" at Philmont Scout Ranch and Explorer Base near Cimarron, N.M.

The group is spending 12 days hiking mountain trails on the 214-square mile ranch under the direction of their leader, Douglas McVae of 629 Blackberry Lane, Marinwood.

From Troop 94 in San Rafael are Mike Kinney, Bruce and Lane McVae and Dave Tirpack. Also from San Rafael are John Blecka of Post 94; Mark Arrington of Troop 76; David Hall, Steve Murray and John Munson, all from Troop 38, and Dave Mobraten of Troop 55. Carlo Parchini is from Troop 6 in San Anselmo.

Hits Gas Dumping

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) —Gov. Claude Kirk demanded Thursday the Army abandon any immediate plans to dump 2,675 tons of nerve gas into the Atlantic Ocean off the southeastern seaboard.

And Rep. Paul Rogers,D-Fla., asked the Pentagon to delay shipping the gas across the South, a move scheduled for Aug. 10, because of the "potential of disaster."

Kirk and Rogers, however, appeared to be lodging the only major official objections in Dixie to the plan to dispose of the World War II nerve gas by dumping it 282 miles east of Cape, Kennedy, Fla.

Prisoner Dies In San Quentin Gym

A San Quentin inmate died today while working out in the prison's gymnasium.

Robert C. Porter, 28, collapsed about 9:30 a.m. while chinning himself, Associate Warden James W.L. Park said today. He was dead on arrival at the prison hospital, Park said.

The prison doctor found no signs of violence on the body, according to Park, and the case has been referred to the Marin County Coroner's office for an inquiry into the cause of death.

Porter had been at San Quentin since April 30. He was serving a six months to 10 years term for a Los Angeles County conviction of receiving stolen property, and a five years to life sentence for a second degree murder conviction in San Bernardino County.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Compromise Hopeful In Medi-Cal Policy

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Reagan Administration's top health care official expressed hope today a compromise will be worked out "in the next few days" to allow court-delayed Medi-Cal revisions to take effect.

Dr. Earl Brian referred to Superior Court Judge Irving H. Perluss' decision Thursday to delay the effective date of the new Medi-Cal regulations by a month to Sept. 1.

Perluss said a section of the regulations limiting the income ofa Medi-Cal recipient appears to violate federal law. He asked the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare to advise him on the question of a hearing Aug. 20 after which he will decide whether to allow the changes.

Brian, director of the Health Care Services Department which administers the huge Medi-Cal program, said he was "hopeful we can find a solution to the disputed section of the regulations in the next few days."

The regulations, which would have taken effect Saturday, would require 50,000 medically indigent persons to pay a certain amount of money for medical services before becoming eligible for Medi-Cal.

The new rules would tighten restrictions on ownership of personal property and real property and lower income ceilings. They would affect the 200,000 persons in the medically indigent category, those not on welfare but eligible for certain Medi-Cal benefits.

The disputed section would set a $150 monthly income ceiling on persons eligible for Medi-Cal. Under federal regulations, persons are allowed to receive $158 a month and still be eligible for Medi-Cal.

CREDENTIAL

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has signed a bill to streamline the state's teacher credentialing system set up nine years ago.

The bill would also reduce the number of "how-to-teach" courses required of student teachers.

Reagan at a formal bill-signed ceremony in his office Thursday called the measure "one of the most fundamental and far-reaching breakthroughs in the history of California's public school system."

Last year the governor vetoed a similar measure but later set up a special study commission on education reform to help write this year's legislation carried by Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan, D-Burlingame.

The bill requires only that a credential applicant hold a bachelor's degree—which includes at least nine units of professional preparation—from a college as a determinant of area of competence for teaching or that the candidate pass an examination in subjects to be taught.

The state Department of Education is stripped of its current authority over teacher licensing under the bill.

BUSING BAN

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Senate Education Committee early Friday approved and sent to the floor a bill banning the busing of public school children without the written consent of their parents.

The measure by Assemblyman Floyd L. Wakefield, R-South Gate, was approved on a split voice vote after a two-hour late night hearing.

BOND PLAN

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Assembly took the rare step of convening as a committee-of-the-whole Thursday to consider a bill allowing approval of local bond issues by a simple majority of the voters.

It was the first such meeting in three years.

The members ended the unusual session at lunchtime without completion of questioning of witnesses or taking any action on the measure by Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond.

The bill would also end the "lease back" method by which local governments use special funds to build major projects without voter approval.

Meeting as a committee-of-the-whole, all members of the Assembly convene in the chamber and question witnesses. Normally witnesses are not questioned in chamber proceedings.

The device is used on matters of special interest to the entire Assembly. It was last employed in 1967.

Last month the state Supreme Court decided the requirement that local bond issues must be approved by two-thirds of the voters was unconstitutional.

Knox' bill is designed to permit passage of the bonds by a simple majority of the voters.

REMAP BILL

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Senate Rules Committee declined Thursday to let a company long associated with the Republican party do its homework on legislative reapportionment.

Senate Democratic Caucus Chairman Mervyn Dymally said the committee decided against signing a contract with the firm of Ed Nichols and Associates. The committee, instead, voted to put out a bid on the contract.

Dymally had appealed to the committee to offer for bid the contract estimated to be worth between $100,000 and $140,000.

TWA Doesn't Want Coast-To-Coast Route

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Trans World Airlines has told the government it does not want to use a newly awarded coast-to-coast route with stops in Omaha and Des Moines because it could not make money on it.

The airline told the Civil Aeronautics Board the route is economically unsound because it does not include a stop in Chicago which TWA originally wanted. The route, as awarded by the government, was between Los Angeles and New York-Washington, with stops at the two Midwestern cities.

Goldberger Charged In Debt Suit

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A suit charging that Teamster official Jack Goldberger has failed to fulfill a debt allegedly owed to a San Francisco electrical contractor and philanthropist, now deceased, was filed yesterday in superior court.

The suit, filed in behalf of the Bank of America, executor of the estate of the late Frank Gentles, asserts that Goldberger, of 19 Meadowcraft drive, San Anselmo, borrowed $26,000 from Gentles in 1966 but stopped paying off the debt when Gentles died last November.

The suit also named the International Brotherhood of Teamsters as a defendant, saying Goldberger had pledged as security his interest in the Teamsters' retirement fund, which would amount to a lifetime pension of $14,000 per year or a cash settlement of $103,000 upon retirement.

According to the suit, filed by attorney John E. Anderson, Goldberger denies the validity of the promissory note and of the security agreement said to be supporting it.

Goldberger, president of Periodical Drivers and Helpers Local 921, an affiliate of the Teamsters international, is awaiting trial in Marin Superior Court for contempt of Court arising from the riotous demonstration at the Independent-Journal on Valentine's Day.

The demonstration had been organized in support of San Francisco Typographical Union 21, which has been on strike against the I-J since Jan. 7.

Renovation Costs Soar On Queen Mary; Probe Set

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The State Lands Commission Thursday ordered an investigation into the skyrocketing costs of refurbishing the drydocked luxury liner Queen Mary.

The commission, acting under orders from the California Legislature, asked its staff to look into the expenditure of $32 million in tidelands oil revenue for the project by the City of Long Beach. A report is due Dec. 1.

The Southern California port city bought the liner and is converting it into a maritime museum, hotel and tourist attraction.

But the estimated cost of renovation has jumped from the original $8.75 million to $54 million, with $32 million coming from tidelands funds and the rest from private firms and exhibitors participating in the project.

S.F. Papers Face Suit On Tieup

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A biweekly newspaper filed suit Thursday in federal court challenging the newspaper preservation law which President Nixon signed last Tuesday.

The law challenged by the San Francisco Bay Guardian permits newspapers facing financial failure to pool their noneditorial operations without becoming subject to antitrust laws.

In the suit, the Guardian contended that a joint production agreement between the San Francisco Examiner and the San Francisco Chronicle is illegal.

It holds the 1964 agreement between those papers violated antitrust laws and that their jointly set advertising rates discriminated against the Guardian.

Bruce Brugmann, the Guardian's publisher, asked the court to rule on the constitutionality of the newspaper act and to order the resumption of "competition in the daily newspaper market in San Francisco."

The Examiner and Chronicle operate separate editorial and news departments although both are printed by the joinlty-owned San Francisco Newspaper Printing Co.

Brugmann wants the court to order that company to divest itself of assets acquired by the agreement between the two papers.

SOME DON'TBELIEVE IN SIGNS

These noisome and overflowing litter cans in San Geronimo Valley show graphically why the state Division of Highways is ordering most such cans removed in the Bay Area. Placed for motorists' convenience to cut highway littering, the cans have been increasingly used for household garbage surreptitiously deposited. The cans will be removed, starting tomorrow, from everywhere except weigh stations, roadside rests and improved view points, the Division of Highways has announced. Removal will be for a 6-month period to determine the effect on highway littering.

U.S. Peace Proposal Is Accepted

name two appointees if it remained in the coalition.

The Hawkish Gahal Party announced in advance of the cabinet session they would leave the government if the reply was in the affirmative and dispite President Nixon's assurances Thursday night the American proposed three-month cease-fire would not be used for a Soviet-Egyptian buildup.

The right-wing Gahal Party not only opposes a cease-fire but insists that any territory captured from the Arabs in the 1967 Six Day War remain an integral part of Israel. It fears that any negotiated peace could mean the loss of that territory.

Officially stated Israeli government policy is that some of these issues can be negotiated.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt accepted the American cease-fire proposals as did Jordan. But his action split the Arab world, with Syria and Iraq condemning his action and with Iraq offering 12,000 troops to the Palestinian Arab guerrillas who have vowed they will not accept a cease-fire.

In the midst of the political developments Israeli Phantoms and Skyhawks bombed Egyptian Suez Canal positions throughout the day in the 71st consecutive day of such attacks, and Israel sent other planes into Jordan to retaliation for attacks on Israeli border settlements.

The American proposal put forth by Secretary of State William P. Rogers calls for a 90-day cease-fire while U.N. peace negotiator Gunnar V. Jarring of Sweden tries to get preliminary negotiations started between the warring parties.

Israel, in accepting the Rogers proposal, said the cabinet took into consideration the appeal from Nixon to Israel to approve the plan before making its decision.

The Israeli statement said: "Having considered the appeal of the President of the United States, and while continuing its commitment to its basic policy guidelines and authorized statements, the government has decided to subscribe to the latest peace initiative of the government of the United States and to appoint at the appropriate time a representative for peace negotiations without prior conditions under the auspices of Ambassador Jarring within the framework of U.N. Security Council Resolution 242 and with the aim of reaching a binding contractual peace agreement.

"Taking into account the clarifications provided by the government of the United States, and not withstanding the dangers inherent in the matter, Israel is prepared to subscribe to the proposal of the United States concerning a cease-fire for three months, at least on the Egyption front. Israel's position in respect of a cease-fire on all sectors including the Egyptian front on the basis of reciprocity in accordance with the resolution of the Security Council remains in force.

"The Ministerial Committee will draft proposals as to the precise language of the reply of the government of Israel to the government of the United States."

The six Gahal ministers in the cabinet met until a short time before the cabinet meeting began and reaffirmed their decision to quit the government, the sources said. They said the decision to leave the National Unity government was not unanimous, however.

In the Arab world, the guerrilla leader Yassir Arafat was leading a protest in Amman against Egypt's and Jordan's acceptance of the U.S. proposals. The Egyptian information minister said Arabs opposing it were being "childish."

Breezes Help Clear Smog Over New York

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Breezy weather brought New Yorkers relief, at least temporarily, today from a blanket of smog that has made the city seem like the largest stuffy room in the world.

City Air Resources Commissioner Robert Rickles reported the pollution level today was about half as bad as Thursday and "poses no danger to anybody at this point."

Rickles said that if weather conditions do not deteriorate again the first stage pollution alert declared Wednesday by Mayor John V. Lindsay probably would be lifted at 3 p.m.

The city already has allowed the Sanitation Department and municipal housing authority projects and hospitals to resume some of the trash burning limited under the alert.

Rickles said brisk winds and the cooperation of motorists, who heeded pleas to leave their cars at home and rely on mass transportation, had made the difference. But he noted that the forecast was for continued hot, humid weather.

The sultry weather that contributed to the pollution problem also caused an electrical power crisis.

Consolidated Edison Co. reduced its voltage output to many customers for the fifth straight day to make sure there was enough power to go around. The utility, crippled by the breakdown of its two largest generators earlier this summer, issued another plea to all consumers — big industry and small households alike — to conserve power.

The 3 per cent reduction in voltage for the boroughs of Manhattan, the Bronx and Brooklyn was matched by other utilities in most of eastern New York so they could channel reserves into Con Ed.

Thursday was the 58th day this year that New York City's air was described as unhealthy.

Lindsay, who earlier in the week had considered banning unessential automobile traffic in lower Manhattan, urged commuters to leave their cars at home and rely on mass transportation. He followed his own suggestion and rode the subway to City Hall Thursday.

Outside City Hall, 20 young people demonstrated to demand that the city be closed to all outside automobile traffic. They wore black robes and hoods and six of them had on gas masks.

Officials in Washington had barricades ready in case a full pollution alert was called. The master plan calls for a ban on all but essential traffic in the capital if the smog reaches the critical point.

Washington, like most of the East Coast, expected little relief. Thunderstorm activity in southeastern Pennsylvania lowered the pollutant levels in Philadelphia, but the outlook was for the situation to develop again before the weekend.

A first-stage pollution watch in five Southern counties of New Jersey was canceled. It had lasted two days, the longest in the state's history. But smoke in northern New Jersey increased.

West Virginia extended a pollution alert, began Munday though the weekend. Industry was told to surb smoke and residents were asked not to burn trash.

Heavy showers wasted away pollution in Georgia after two days.

Japan's post-war industrial boom brought pollution—both air and sea—to a new peak in recent weeks. The government today established an emergency headquarters headed by Prime Minister Eisaku Sato.

Nearly 9,000 persons have been treated for eye, throat and lung ailments because of smog since July 18 in Tokyo. Factory wastes flushed into the sea have created a scum thick enough to interfere with navigation in some Japanese ports.

ence by helicopter to the western white house in San Clemente and a meeting today with Secretary of State William P. Rogers on the Middle East.

The President also made these points:

— The South Vietnamese government, contrary to what president Nguyen Van Thieu appears to be saying, will permit members of the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong, to run for office as NFL members in elections to decide the future of South Vietnam. Thieu's recent statements saying Communists could not participate were merely semantical concessions to a provision of South Vietnam's constitution prohibiting Communist candidates.

—The .3 per cent increase in wholesale prices in July, the highest in the past six months, was a disagreeable part of an otherwise encouraging downward trend for the past six months. "The inflation is being cooled and it will continue to be cooled if we can continue to have responsibility in the conduct of our budget problems," the President said.

—Both the Soviet Union and the United States know that if war breaks out between the two nuclear giants "there will be no winners." For that reason, there is some hope that the current nuclear arms limitation talks in Vienna will be successful in curbing deployment of "more instruments of destruction when both have enough to destroy each other many times over."

He pointed out that since the United States stopped deploying land based missiles in 1967 the Soviet Union had installed 724. They have built 13 nuclear submarines since the United States stopped building them and will have a fleet equal to America's by 1975.

—Federal officials will go to the south to assist with school desegregation and their number will depend on the need. "We are not going to have a forced policy in this area." the President said. "Our policy is one of cooperation rather than coercion."

—Recent smog-filled days on the East Coast were "perhaps fortunate" because they served to emphasize the urgency for Congressional action on the environmental measures he has recommended.

Jordan and the United Arab Republic have signalled their agreement to the peace proposal put forward by Secretary of State Rogers June 19 but Israel had been reluctant to go along with it because of the provision for a 90-day cease fire.

The plan also calls for Israel to pull back from portions of the Arab territory it has occupied since the 1967 war and begin talks under United Nations auspices.

Nixon said both the United States "and others" have attempted to assure Israel that the Arab nations, being supplied with most of their armaments by the Russians, would not use the ceasefire to increase their military power.

news conference, "I don't think we'll have a chance like this again."

Of Sen. Clark Bradley, San Jose, the only Republican holdout, Reagan said, "I don't know how he's going to explain his refusal to the beleaguered taxpayers."

Reagan lost one supporter, at least temporarily, when Sen. Tom Carrell, D-San Fernando, was hospitalized. His office said he was suffering exhaustion but some senators said they understood he suffered a mild stroke.

Sen. Walter Stiern, Democratif chairman of the Senate Revenue and Taxation Committee, met privately with Reagan Thursday and told reporters that night:

"I have not changed my position. I cannot vote for this tax increase bill."

Stiern, who broke Defocratic ranks and voted for Reagan's embattled state budget bill earlier in the month, had been on the governor's list of possible vote switches. He said they had an "amiable" meeting.

Bagley said he was "very disappointed" with Stiern's decision. He said Stiern "has been given figures by Democratic staff members who are out to sabotage tax reform."

Church Yard Landing For Marin Pilot

A 52-year-old San Rafael man flying a Hamilton Air Force Base Aeroclub plane made a forced landing in a Sonoma churchyard yesterday and escaped injury, Sonoma County Sheriff's deputies reported.

James N. Grady of 60 Ridgewood Drive was flying a Piper Cherokee to the air base from Colusa County when engine failure forced him to land the plane at 1:30 p.m. in the yard of St. Leo's Church.

The church's new cinder block barbecue pit and 30 feet of fence were destroyed and the plane's left wing and landing gear suffered light damage, deputies reported.

Grady was forced to hit the barbecue to avoid striking caretakers on the lawn of the church, according to the report.

Cause of the engine failure was not determined.

Headquarters at Kompong Speu was rushed to the scene shortly after dawn. Even with help from Cambodian Air Force T28 fighter-bombers, they failed to dislodge the Viet Cong. They reported five Cambodian troops were wounded.

Military officials in Kompong Speu told UPI correspondents Kenneth J. Braddick and Kent Potter the five-battalion attack on Kirirom had not gotten under way.

Military spokesmen said U.S. and South Vietnamese infantrymen and planes killed 44 Communist troops Thursday in a running battle in the Central Highlands. Two U.S. helicopters were shot down.

Besides the helicopters, U.S. forces lost two other aircraft to ground fire in Vietnam Thursday—An Air Force A1 Skyraider and an Army Cobra helicopter gunship. One crewman died and two were wounded.

Military spokesmen said six Americans were killed and 35 wounded Thursday in minor ground fighting and booby trap explosions throughout South Vietnam.

Judge Denies Plea To Drop Thurber Case

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Frank J. Thurber, accused of the murder of Independent-Journal employee Allan W. Daly, was denied a request today for dismissal of charges and for reduction of bail.

Municipal Court Judge Frank W. Shaw continued the case until Aug. 7 at 11 a.m., agreeing with Deputy Dist. Atty. Pierre Merle, who said dismissal would be an idle act since Thurber would promptly be rebooked and held for the San Francisco grand jury. The case goes to the grand jury Monday night.

Thurber, held in lieu of $250,000 bail, is also accused of conspiracy, robbery and burglary in connection with Daly's fatal shooting July 4 in Daly's San Francisco home.

Two San Bruno teen-agers on Wednesday admitted killing Daly and were turned over to the California Youth Authority for indefinite terms.

They are expected to testify against Thurber, 45-year-old member of the Newspaper Mailers Union local 18, an affiliate of the San Francisco Typographical Union 21, which has been on strike against the I-J since Jan. 7.

by a visit of Correctional Officer John A. Mattson to the Independent-Journal today to assert that "there isn't any possibility of a strike." Mattson has served at San Quentin for 10 years.

Thompson said that he, as president of the San Quentin Chapter of the California Correctional Officers Association which represents 95 per cent of the guards, had not been approached about a strike.

What individual members of the association talk about is their own business, he said.

A meeting of all guards called for 4:20 p.m. Tuesday is not to discuss the possibility of a strike, he said.

Nelson has been invited to the meeting to explain his views on the memo, Thompson said, adding that Nelson will not be present through the whole meeting at which establishment of a safety committee and an open discussion period are also scheduled.

powers," that it was "so superficial as to make evaluation impossible," and that there had been no contribution by cities to preparation of the plan.

Vice Mayor Warren Hopkins of Rohnert Park also was worried about levying of new taxes, but McInnis pointed out that ABAG had no such power at present and that it relied strictly on membership dues to operate.

Acquisition of open space and housing construction, he said, would be achieved as it is done now — with combined outlays of local and federal money.

The document drew strong support from San Francisco representatives. Dianne Feinstein, chairman of the board of supervisors, declared herself a "strong believer" in regional government. Such an agency must be created, she said, "if we are to solve problems of air, water and open space . . ."

Newell Case, vice mayor of Walnut Creek and former ABAG president, warned regional government critics that the choice was either to accept a voluntary association like ABAG or face imposition of a regional agency by the state legislature.

Several delegates objected to the designation of controversial highway routes, such as the Southern Crossing, in the regional plan and McInnis assured these were drawn only to indicate future traffic in a specified corridor.

'Fortunate Dope Fiend' Helps Others

By JOAN LISETOR

You look at Mary Anne, and you wonder how old she is, one minute she looks so young, the next, so mature.

When you ask she answers readily - 20. She tells her story so easily because she has told it so many times before.

"I am a fortunate dope fiend," Mary Anne begins.

Born and reared in the East Bay, Mary Anne married when she was 16. She left her husband because he was using drugs but went back to him the following year.

"WHEN I went back I started smoking grass because I thought it would help us to get along better," she says. "I dropped acid and dug it, 15 or 20 times. Then I had a bad trip and stopped. I tried speed five or six times, but I didn't like that either."

Her husband was a heroin addict and supported his habit by selling it. She helped him sell it and kept it for him, because if he had it he would use it.

"One day I was depressed and my husband suggested I get loaded," she explains. "It made me sick, but I enjoyed it."

She says it was a surprise to her that she could inject anything into her arm because she had always hated needles and dreaded shots.

Thinking she could never get hooked, Mary Anne started taking heroin on Fridays nights and Saturdays.

"IT WAS A weekend thing," she says, "but pretty soon the weekend was including Sunday and Monday, and I was hitting all week.

"About a month and a half passed and I woke up feeling sick one morning. I thought I had the flu so I took some heroin to be okay. I got sicker so I got loaded again to feel better and it didn't do any good. My husband told me it was because I was hooked."

Soon after that her husband went to jail for violation of probation.

"He was in jail and I kicked with codine and was clean for a week," she says. "Then he came back, and I started using again and was strung out for seven months."

During the time she was on drugs Mary Anne managed to graduate from business college and hold a job as a secretary in a hospital. When it was necessary she could "kick" for a couple of days by using codine or morphine.

Then her husband went back to jail.

"I COULDN'T support a $50 to $75 a day habit and was running out of ways to make money. I knew I either had to clean up or become a prostitute, and I was determined I wouldn't hit rock bottom.

She went to San Francisco General Hospital and then to Mendocino State Hospital where she stayed for nine months.

"I am a graduate of 'the family'," Mary Anne explains.

Family programs at the hospital use game and encounter session techniques to help addicts stay off drugs. After her "graduation" Mary Anne went to Arizona as a drug counselor, where she earned $650 a month.

After about a year in Arizona, Mary Anne came back to the Bay Area to visit her parents and her 3-year-old daughter who lives with them. While she was here she contacted Rex Hutchinson, a friend from Mendocino who runs Center Point, a center on D Street in San Rafael for young people trying to kick drug habits.

"I saw Center Point, and I liked what was going on," she says. "I went back to Arizona, and I kept thinking about it. I decided I would rather help Center Point because I like what Rex is doing."

SHE CALLED Rex and asked him what he could pay her if she quit her $650 a month (including room and board) job and came to work for him.

"He said, 'nothing', but I came anyway," she says.

Mary Anne has been at Center Point since the beginning of July, which she says is long enough to know she is going to stay.

Her duties consist mainly of helping Rex, who is doing a great deal of speaking before groups he hopes will help them raise funds they need to keep the center running.

"We see kids from all walks of life at the center, and they are all the same," says Mary Anne, whose other duties include running the games and encounters, giving out information on the center and caring for the house.

She is living at the center, a large, immaculate flat located over an antique store and hopes to bring her daughter there to live with her.

"As soon as we receive a grant and have some money I want to have her with me," she says. "This is a positive environment, and my bad life is all over with."

SHE SAYS on an average day they have about 15 kids drop in at the center, and some are not even on drugs but just want someone to talk to. The center has a guest room used for kicking bad trips. When an addicts has kicked, Rex and Mary Anne will help him find a home and a job and continue to offer him the encouragement, support and understanding they feel only one dope fiend can give another.

No drugs are allowed at the center, including marijuana, which Mary Anne says is harmful because of the environment in which it places a young person. If it is legalized, she says, you take away the crime, but you still have the problem.

"The kids seem to go from wine to grass to heroin," she says, "and I would not want my younger sister to go that route."

That society is becoming aware of the problem, Mary Anne says, is half of the battle.

"It is hard to stay clean and would be so easy to go back on the spoon," she says. "Once you have kicked it is a constant battle.

"I just wish I had the money I spent on dope."

FORMER HEROIN addict, Mary Anne, is on the staff of Center Point, a drop-in house for young persons trying to kick drug habits. Through games, encounter sessions and just plain talk she and the founder of the center, Rex Hutchinson, have helped many young persons with problems. The center is located over an antique shop at 805 D Street in San Rafael. (Independent-Journal photo)

Safety Measures Suggested For U.S. Working Mothers

In the United States, an estimated five million children under the age of six are left in charge of another person while their mothers work.

According to the United States Department of Labor, women represent one in three of the nation's work force. As opportunities for employment broaden for married women, there will be more mothers of small children holding jobs.

How safe are these youngsters? How well protected against accidents are the children and the "proxy" parent in charge?

The Council on Family Health, a non-profit organization sponsored as a public service by members of the drug industry, suggest these measures.

IMPRESS UPON the children that they are expected to obey the person in charge.

Emphasize to the babysitter that under no circumstances is she to leave the children alone at home, even for one moment.

TO HELP PREVENT, potential poisoning, store all of your cleaning agents and household chemicals out of sight and reach of the children. Direct the adult in charge that she must keep her eye on these things when she uses them, and replace them high in a cabinet when finished.

IF MEDICATION is to be administered to the children, tell your babysitter the exact dosage and frequency. Instruct her to recap the medicine and return it to its proper storage place immediately after use.

If she takes medication she is to follow the same safety rules about keeping the medicine out of reach of the youngsters.

TO HELP prevent burns and scalds, teach your baby sitter to keep pot handles turned toward the side or rear of the stove, to test the children's bath water before letting them enter the tub, to keep matches out of the children's reach.

If there is a discarded refrigerator or freezer on your home premises, remove the doors or seal them against the the possibility of a child getting inside.

Children can be taught to put their playthings away when

BABYSITTERS should know the common rules of first aid and working mothers should have the telephone numbers of a doctor, a neighbor or friend, near relative and parents' places of employment written where they can be easily found.

Avoid Cycling Hazards By Following The Rules

Beautiful summery days bring cyclists out on the road in large numbers, and cycling can be a healthy activity so long as people use common sense and follow the recommendations of the various safety councils.

1. Before going down a long or steep hill, check brakes and luggage for anything loose. Be sure the brake blocks make good contact with the rim, but do not touch the tire. Put your hat on firmly, if you wear one, and wear glasses if you have them. A bug in the eye at high speed can mean a crash.

2. Never argue with a car. Looking to the rear to check on an approaching car is dangerous since it may cause you to go into a ditch. Learn to use your ears so as to be aware of oncoming cars.

3. Practice riding in a straight line. The zig-zag cyclist confuses drivers and causes accidents.

4. It is a big help for motorists if the cyclist uses hand signals. In most states these are the same signals used with an automobile.

5. Very often in cycling accidents the motorists failed to see the person on a bicycle, so wear bright colors and if you cycle at night, use plenty of light and reflector tape.

6. A good cyclist recognizes road hazards and takes precautions against them. These include loose sand or gravel, wet blacktop surfaces, sticks, stones and glass.

7. Crossing diagonal railroad tracks is tricky. The cyclist's best bet is to cross them in a perpendicular direction under full control.

8. Warning devices that use sound such as bells or horns, are particularly useful in giving pedestrians warning.

9. Cyclists should always ride with traffic.

10. Like mailmen, cyclists do not always find the dog to be man's best friend. If pursued by a dog, it may be best to walk the bike on the far side of the road.

One final word of warning is directed to parents with beginning bicyclists — see that they are fully instructed in traffic laws and safe practices; keep in mind that it is dangerous to purchase a bicycle too large for the youngster's immediate needs.

All in all, in cycling as in any other human pursuit, the best rule is the Golden Rule. Courtesy to motorists, pedestrians and co-cyclists usually helps to make your experience outdoors a happier and healthier one.

Woman A Masochist To Continue Loving A Husband Who Beats Her

DEAR HELEN:

Three years ago I thought my life was just beginning. I met the man of my dreams, fell madly in love. Then my troubles started.

You know the old story about saving yourself for your husband? I did, but he never believed it. He says a woman can fake the virginity thing.

When I denied having a previous lover, he'd knock me around. But we always made up. Then he started accusing me of being unfaithful. Every time the fellows would joke about some sexy dame, he'd come home from the bar and accuse me of being her. More beatings! He even beat me once because he said I'd love my children more than I would him —if we had children, which we don't.

Next, he took up with another woman, saying I deserved it. He brought her home one night and I left. Next day he came after me and, because I love him so much, I went home —only to get another beating. My sister saw my bruises and told the family. Now he says I go around trying to get sympathy by telling everybody about our private life.

I'm only 21 and young enough to start over, but I can't stop being hung up on him. He's wonderful when he isn't mean or jealous or stepping out or drunk. That's about one-fifth of the time. Am I foolish for hoping things will get better? — B.B.N.

DEAR B.:

You're a masochist if you continue "loving" a man who beats you four days out of five. Unless he benefits from professional help (and usually this type won't even seek it) I don't give your marriage much hope. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Ministers are supposed to be above reproach. This one isn't. He tells his secretary he is going out to make visitations, then he meets one or another married woman, and not to save their souls.

He even approached me once, saying he would cut a ministerial meeting one day short if I'd meet him in a distant city. I almost fell for his sweet talk — until I found out about the others.

His church is half-way supported by females who think he is in love with them. Oh, he's a spellbinder on Sunday. On other days, he's a spell caster.

Would it be un-Christian to complain to the mother church? — CONCERNED LAYMAN (WOMAN)

DEAR CON:

That depends on whether you have proof or a grudge. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I've always been on the side of the policemen, figuring the kids exaggerated this "brutality" bit.

But the other day I was standing inside a building when a policeman came over to question some teenagers on a playground. They weren't doing anything wrong, but two boys had long hair. He used a string of four-letter words and told them to "Get the . . . home." They were just talking. Is this necessary? — D.G.

DEAR D.:

No. But it isn't representative either. Why didn't you get this policeman's badge number and report him? — H.

'Twas A Great Strain' For Him To Date Royalty

London — Sadly, there are harsh restrictions in the more informal social life of a princess. This problem is highlighted by the romance of Sandy Harper, the blonde-haired, 22-year-old polo player whose name has been so often linked with Britain's Princess Anne.

A girlfriend whose company he can enjoy without the unbelievable pressures which accompany royalty is pretty Brenda Sweeny, 19.

"Sandy used to take Princess Anne out a lot," says Brenda. "But not so much now. It was such a great strain."

Brenda and Sandy — He's the son of Col. Alec Harper, Midhurst polo-playing friend of Prince Philip and Viscount Cowdray — have even talked of marriage.

Auburn-haired Brenda's ambitions stray rather far from the passion of her father who was 1937 British amateur golf champion and competed for the British Open at St. Andrew's only last week.

"I don't enjoy golf at all. I suppose I am too close to it," she says. "If you want to know, my real ambition is to be a bongo-player. I have taken lessons from a Jamaican and would love to play with a group one day."

Meanwhile Brenda, who was educated in Switzerland, America, Spain and England, is turning to that promised land for pretty girls — modeling. And the photographer who is guiding her with his lens is stately-home owner the Marquis of Bath's younger son, 35-year-old Lord Christopher Thynne.

Demand That Proprietor Stand Behind His Goods

BY SANDRA HAGGERTY

I remark to the woman in front of me in a neighborhood food market that, according to produce signs, cantaloupes are on sale —four for a dollar — and the checker has just charged her 30 cents for one. She shrugs her shoulders and says quietly, "Oh well, it's only five cents . . ."

Eight-year-old Marcus "makes groceries" for his mother in the small, corner grocery store — where, without question, there is a substantial mark-up on all items.

I appreciate the pressure on small businesses to compete with big businesses, but why should poor people — those least able financially — carry the burden of this competition?

AFTER SELECTING all the items on his list,Marcus has 35 cents left. He's using food stamps, so no cash change can be given to him. The proprietor hurriedly guides him into purchasing 35 cents worth of immediately available candy, stacked on check-out stand, to round out his food stamp purchase.

Only five times seven . . .

THE EASY Credit Furniture Store's window signs shout to the passers-by that the summer (winter, spring or fall) clearance sales are on. Prices have been slashed and big savings are available. Problem is that easy credit costs — a lot. And any money spent on an unneeded or duplicate item — just because the sale price is so very reasonable —is no savings.

The sign in the five and dime store says free wastebasket with purchase of $5 worth of merchandise. When one needs only $2 worth of goods, $3 is an awful lot to pay for a 45-cent plastic wastebasket.

The just-purchased milk is sour and/or the bread is moldy. "Throw it out," says Marcus' mother, wearily.

The blue jeans purchased at the neighborhood discount store come apart at the seams when they are laundered. "We'll have to try and get downtown to buy some more," sighs another exasperated mother.

The waitress brings you an egg omelet that is hard as a rock. It's unedible, so you leave it on the plate — paying for nutrition you're not receiving.

THE ABOVE-MENTIONED incidents are seemingly small but regular agitations for many consumers. Some of us fight our displeasure with a proprietor's products and services by taking our business elsewhere. But there are others whose circumstances, lack of transportation and so forth, make it impossible for them to deprive neighborhood stores of their patronage, which is the most powerful show of displeasure. This being the case, consumers should demand that each proprietor stand behind the goods and services he provides. This takes extra effort and much inconvenience, but these goods and services are not gifts; we are paying plenty for them.

And whether the savings or issue be five cents on the purchase of a cantaloupe or $50 on easy-credit carrying charges, gimme five . . . on the black side.

Today is Friday, July 31, the 212th day of 1970 with 153 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning star is Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1792 director David Rittenhouse laid the cornerstone in Philadelphia for the U.S. Mint, the first building of the federal government.

In 1940 Adolf Hitler banned the practice of Christian Science in Germany.

In 1953 Senate Majority Leader Robert Taft of Ohio died in New York City.

A thought for the day: Henry Thoreau said, "It takes two to speak the truth, one to speak, and another to hear."

23,000 Mice Flown For Cancer Research

NEW YORK (UPI) — Twenty-three thousand relatives representing 23 generations have been committed for study in the Catholic Medical Center of Brooklyn and Queens.

The relatives are mice flown in from the School of Medicine of the University of Miami, Fla., as part of a cancer research project funded by the National Institute of Health. The project is directed toward development of therapy for breast cancer.

The mice are needed to show the importance of the same genetic strain in natural immunity to cancer cells.

Columnist Feels Responsibility To Recommend His Own Books

Perhaps I should look embarrassed about praising my own book, but I have a responsibility to my readers. I owe it to them to recommend all the good bridge books, as they come out, and the best books in many years are my new Pocket Books of Bridge Puzzles. Today's hand, taken from the introduction to Book No. 2, may show you the general idea of these inexpensive paperbacks.

TRY IT FIRST

Try to make six spades against the most reasonable defense, ticking off the cards in the diagram as you play them. Then compare your own effort with the description of the winning line of play that follows.

Take the king of clubs and lead a low trump to the king first since, as South, you don't know about the bad trump break. A normal break in spades would give you 12 easy tricks.

When you discover the 4-0 trump distribution, lead a club to dummy's ace to make sure East doesn't get rid of a club while your back is turned. Cash the top hearts, discarding a diamond and ruff a heart. Take the top diamonds next and ruff a diamond.

RUFF IN PASSING

Next lead a low trump to dummy's ace and return the last heart. Your last cards are the Q-7 of trumps and the losing club. If East discards or follows suit, you will ruff with the seven of trumps, cash the queen and give up the last trick simultaneously to the top trump and the top club. If East were able to ruff, you would discard the losing club and take the last two tricks with your trumps.

PENNY A HAND

The six puzzle books recently published in this series each contain 90 bridge hands for you to test your skill with, together with instructions for working them as puzzles. At a cost of less than one cent per hand the new books are almost as big a bargain as your daily newspaper.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 3 no trump and the next player passes. You hold:

♠—J 10 9 8
♥—Q J 4 3
♦—Q J 10
♣—Q J.

ANSWER: Bid 6 no trump or four clubs.

In this case a bid of four clubs would be the Stayman Convention, asking partner to bid a major suit of four or more cards. However, the immediate jump to 6 no trump is just about as good when you have so many honor cards.

Cleveland Conductor George Szell Dies

GEORGE SZELL
Sandpapered his batons

CLEVELAND (UPI)—George Szell, who sandpapered his batons to a fine point and as carefully fine-tuned the Cleveland Orchestra into one of the world's finest, died Thursday night.

Szell, 73, had been hospitalized since suffering a heart attack after he returned from a tour of east Asia earlier this summer.

Born in Budapest on June 7, 1897, he was a piano prodigy and made his debut with the Vienna Symphony at the age of 10. He switched to the podium during his teen years and was a guest conductor with the Berlin Philharmonic at age 17. But he never lost his touch on the keyboard and at rehearsals in later years would often show piano soloists how he wanted the music performed.

He was chief conductor of the Berlin State Opera and of the Berlin Broadcasting Company orchestra in the 1920s and moved to Prague in 1929. Guest appearances in the United States began in the 1930s. He was in America when World War II began and decided to stay.

After successes as guest conductor of the Los Angeles Symphony, the New York Philharmonic, the Boston Symphony and the Metropolitan Opera, Szell became conductor of the Cleveland Orchestra in 1946. On the podium, he left little doubt as to who was in charge. Enemies he made, particularly among musicians in the second ranks who considered him a bully. Admirers considered him an artist who sacrificed popularity for musical perfection.

There is no doubt that he succeeded in building the orchestra into one of the finest —the best in the world according to some critics. The critics also considered him second only to Toscanini among conductors.

He fired 12 musicians in his first year at Cleveland. He was curt with musicians in his tedious, no-nonsense rehearsals. But despite his overbearing presence, he handled his baton with precision. He would spend long periods rubbing his baton with fine sandpaper, bringing it to a thin, tapered point. There was no doubt at what point in his downbeat the music was to begin.

His preference was for the German - Austrian composers. Beethoven and Schubert were staples of the Cleveland Orchestra. He had little regard for Russian and French composers nor for contemporary music.

Szell was once asked about his long stay in Cleveland and replied, "People in New York should stop considering everything outside New York as outlying. We are not provincial. My audience is of the highest level anywhere. If they hadn't been, I would not have stuck here so long."

Szell is survrived by his wife, Helen, whom he married in 1938. They had no children.

Brass Knuckles Bring Jail Term, Probation

Daniel Lee Temple, 22, of San Rafael, has been placed on probation for two years and ordered to spend six months in the county jail by Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court.

Temple had pleaded guilty to a charge of carrying brass knuckles when arrested Feb. 2 in San Rafael.

FAMILY

"Boatniks" — The packed boat harbor of Newport Beach, the utter chaos created by weekend yachtsmen, an accident-prone Ensign in charge of the harbor and three jewel thieves trying to escape to Mexico are the ingredients of this wacky comedy.

"Out-of-Towners" — Refreshingly funny spoof on big city life. Misadventures of a small city businessman who takes his wife with him for a job interview in New York City. Hilarious comedy.

"Swiss Family Robinson" — Welcome reissue of fine Disney favorite telling of a Swiss family marooned by shipwreck on a tropical island. Story told with wealth of detail.

"Undefeated" — A warm, full bodied post-Civil War adventure story. Plot is enriched by touches of humor and warm friendships that develop between former adversaries when they join together in a common goal.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Beneath the Planet of the Apes" — Science fiction, the sequel to "Planet of the Apes" concludes the story and combines an amusing fantasy with a very real and grim message. Very well done.

"Downhill Racer" — A brilliant study of the development of a ski champion. Action sequences are complimented by story about the dynamics of sports competition.

"Hawaiians" — Film based on last half of James A. Michener's novel "Hawaii". The story centers on the man who developed the first pineapple plantation and a Chinese matriarch who founded a dynasty. Plot quite complicated.

"Paint Your Wagon" — A lusty, irreverent script is framework for a musical set in a mining camp during Gold Rush days. Elaborately mounted broad comedy, raucous and at times tasteless, not suitable for young children.

"Patton" — An unusually well-made film, with a brilliant characterization by George C. Scott. Very strong dialogue. It shows Patton as a complex man who is a military disciplinarian who sacrifices his men in order to win battles.

"Reivers" — A weekend adventure when an 11-year-old boy loses his childhood innocence and discovers the waywardness of men. Story has good human values, but it is regrettable that the action in a brothel makes film unsuitable for younger audiences.

"Z" — Remarkable film about a political assassination. Powerful combination of action and suspense providing profound insights into today's troubled politics. Subtitles in English.

BORDERLINE
(Most sources say Adults Only)

"Easy Rider" — Two hippie drug pushers ride their motorcycles to New Orleans. Film relates their experiences including a wild LSD trip and a senseless tragic ending.

"Man Called Horse" — Compelling but unforgivably brutal melodrama about a 19th century English aristocrat who is captured by a Sioux tribe. Accurately detailed tribal rites and Sioux tongue spoken adds realism.

"Woodstock" — Interesting documentary of last summer's famous rock festival. Nudity, obscene language, use of drugs and love making may keep from the audience those most interested in seeing it. Parental guidance advised.

ADULTS ONLY

"Adventurers" — Three hours of graphic scenes of violence and sex. Characters are unbelievable take-offs on contemporary people, plot revolves around jet set. Big budget film but direction and acting are disappointing. Mediocre.

"Liberation of L.B. Jones" — Superior acting gives realism to this depressing film about racism on part of both black and white in deep South. It is unpleasant to witness the physical and mental brutality, but such a movie could not be both pleasant and honest.

"M-A-S-H" — Title stands for Mobile Army Surgical Hospital. Antiwar film deals wth three surgeons. Scenes are gruesome as they are funny. Bittersweet element of truth in action and dialogue.

2 Missing Japanese Found Killed By Bears

OBIHIRO, Japan (UPI)—A search party Wednesday found the mutilated bodies of two missing mountain climbers near Mt. Kamuiekuchi-Kaushi on the island of Hokkaido. Authorities said it appeared they had been killed by bears.

The searchers shot and killed a bear in the area where the bodies of Kazutoshi Takesue, 21, and Yoshitaka Kawahara, 18, both of Fukuoka, Japan, were found.

United Crusade Sets Area Goal

OAKLAND (UPI)—The United Bay Area Crusade has set a record campaign goal of $16,850,000 for 1970, an increase of $334,200 over last year.

In announcing its goal Thursday, the crusade said its funds go to 180 member agencies and 18 voluntary agencies not affiliated in five San Francisco Bay Area counties—San Francisco, Alameda, Contra Costa, Marin and San Mateo.

Last May the organization said it made emergency grants of $338,205 for the first time to non-member service agencies, primarily to help minorities.

SERVING ALL OF MARIN COUNTY

THIRD SECTION — SAN RAFAEL, CALIFORNIA, FRIDAY, JULY 31, 1970 — 15

BUDDIES — Joseph Johnson and Bruce Robinson search for properly plump plums, but Brian Robinson has already found his and is about to put it away. Johnson became a guest of the Robinsons at their Sleepy Hollow home through the Friendly Town program. He found their hospitality as delightful as their plums.

OPERATION FRIENDLY TOWN

Bridging Inner City, Suburban Youth

By LARRY MOWELL

There is no law against racial and cultural segregation produced by population patterns as Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania pointed out in a recent Senate debate.

Since there is no law against de facto segregation that would force blacks and whites, rich and poor, to live together and since they often don't mingle, many children grow up without exposure to racial and cultural minorities.

Friendly Town is trying to combat this kind of narrow upbringing. It is advertised as a "program which will allow children from inner city families to visit for 10 days with host families in the suburbs, and hopefully allow suburban youth to visit in the inner city homes. In effect it is a chance to build bridges of understanding between the families of the inner city and the suburbs."

Although Marin youngsters have shunned the experience in inner city homes, about 20 ghetto youngsters have been invited to Marin homes this summer so that suburbanites can learn about racially and culturally different people.

Mrs. Robin Robinson of Sleepy Hollow, Marin chairman and a participant in the program, said, "We don't want a kid that's raised like our kids."

Joseph Johnson, 15, a black high school student from East Oakland who went home today after a 10-day visit at the Robinsons clearly has not been reared like 15-year-old Bruce Robinson.

The Robinsons live in a spacious hilltop home at 475 Fawn Drive where Bruce and his two brothers and sister have a pool table, basketball hoop and swimming pool fed by a thundering artificial waterfall.

Within easy access are the surrounding grassy hills and fruit trees, baseball fields, movies and the beach.

Joe came to Marin with a totally different set of experiences. His mother owns a home too small for her seven children, ages 7 to 15.

Mrs. Johnson works as a nurse's aide in an Oakland convalescent hospital, but is now in the hospital recovering from back surgery. She strained her back lifting a patient.

Mr. Johnson has left his family, according to Joe.

Of his neighborhood, Joe said, "It's noisy because people they can't get together out there. They're always fighting and busting windows, throwing cans, stuff like that."

"It's quieter here. You can do more things out here. They burnt all the movies down in Oakland."

He said the Robinsons took him to "Paint Your Wagon" the second night he was with them because he couldn't go at home.

Although he is able to play baseball and basketball at Oakland playgrounds and bowl and play pool, his activities are otherwise limited to home, he said.

He said he saw the ocean for the first time during a jaunt to Stinson Beach and visited Mount Tamalpais, also for the first time.

Going to a strange home was hard — "I was scared and quiet" — but the Robinsons soon put him at ease, he said.

They catered to his desires and even celebrated his 15th birthday with him July 21, Joe said.

Joe — clearly awed by the plush surroundings in Sleepy Hollow — said he would like to live in such a place someday, but added he hadn't learned anything specific from the visit.

Bruce on the other hand, said, "I've learned what it's like. He's told me about Oakland and where he lives. It's a rough place. People fight around there."

The brief visit was more than just a learning experience though. The boys became friends.

Joe said he would like to return next summer and pay visits in the interim. Bruce said, "This guy's almost a perfect match "and favored inviting the Johnson family over for social occasions.

"This is where you have real success when the same families want to see the same kids again," Mrs. Robinson said.

The Robinsons had been apprehensive about this year's visitor because last year's did not work out. "The guy last year was shy and didn't fit with the family," Bruce said.

However, Joe did. He played baseball with Bruce, Brian, 13, and Dale, 10, and listened to the San Francisco Giants on the radio with the trio.

Talking mostly about baseball and playing games with the Robinson boys, Joe said he felt at home.

Joe and Bruce are one of about 200 such pairs throughout the Bay Area and Santa Cruz, Mrs. Robinson said.

That represents a twenty-fold increase for Friendly Town since its inception in Contra Costa County in 1966. Originally involving 10 host families and 12 guest children, the program now encompasses more than 1,000 families, according to Mrs. Robinson.

The young persons — usually 8 to 14 years old — are placed in families with children of the same age and 75 per cent to 85 per cent want to repeat, she said.

Participating children are recruited by schools, friends, church organizations, and, increasingly, by those who have gone through the experience, Mrs. Robinson said.

However, ghetto parents are afraid to send their children to the suburbs because of possible reactions against rioting in the cities, Mrs. Robinson said, and often a personal friend or nun has to persuade them.

Joe got involved because his mother is a friend of a recruiter in Oakland. Two of his sisters, Vicki and Wanda, are also participating in the program this summer in San Anselmo and Mill Valley homes.

The program's target is de facto segregation, but 10 days of fun-filled exposure to suburban living are worthless noblesse oblige unless something meaningful develops from them.

As Mrs. Robinson pointed out, real success comes only when the families involved continue to see each other after the visit is over.

Former Marin Narcotics Dealer Receives Suspended Sentence

A Marin Superior Court judge yesterday suspended a state prison sentence for a former Fairfax narcotics dealer in hopes that a federal prison term he is now serving will be sufficient punishment.

Darren Guy Erlin, 25, was convicted in May by Judge Joseph G. Wilson of three narcotics offenses stemming from arrests in 1968.

Considered to have been the center of a large-scale dope operation, Erlin also faces a $554,017 federal marijuana tax lien. The huge tax was imposed on pot seized in two raids on a house at 33 Redwood Road where Erlin lived.

Erlin, who has also used the first name of Darrow, is serving a two-year federal sentence for selling LSD in 1967.

Judge Wilson found him guilty in May of possessing marijuana for sale as well as possessing marijuana and heroin.

A probation officer, Jesse Johnson, yesterday recommended that Erlin be sent to state prison after he completes the federal term, a proposal seconded by Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas.

Judge Wilson, however, noted that Erlin had "stayed out of trouble" since his arrest in April, 1968, and had lived a constructive life as a businessman in Hawaii until he went to prison last spring.

He warned Erlin that if he "becomes involved in narcotics again," he will immediately impose the prison sentence. He placed Erlin on probation for three years.

Erlin's former wife, Eloise, arrested with him, has completed a term of probation and paid a $500 fine. Another man involved in the drug operation, Gilbert Rance Dart, 26, of San Diego, is serving a prison sentence, and a third, John Floyd Lindley, 26, of El Monte, spent a period in jail.

Two Corrections In School Board Story

The Independent-Journal erred yesterday in a story on the Sausalito School District in reporting that Jackie Harris was the only Marin City resident on a screening committee to help select two principals. Ann Fisher, also lives in Marin Ann Fisher, also in Marin City.

The I-J also erroneously identified James T. Toliver Jr. as an administrative assistant for the district. His new title is special assistant.

Aviation Panel To Probe Joint Use Of Hamilton

Prospects for joint civilian-military use of Hamilton Air Force Base will be discussed again Tuesday by the Marin County Aviation Commission at 8 p.m. in the board of supervisors chambers at Civic Center.

Commissiosers will discuss Winfield O. Salter's proposal for a comprehensive study of joint use of Hamilton field and a request by Golden Pacific Airlines of San Francisco for daily commercial flights out of Hamilton by its Beechcraft 99, a twin-engine craft with a capacity of about 15 passengers.

Francis E. Torr, manager of Gnoss Field, will report on the possibility of getting federal funding to buy five additional acres to the south of the county airport.

Court Rules State Must Pay Schools

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The U.S. Court of Appeals ruled yesterday that the state Department of Education must turn over $8 million it had been withholding from local school districts.

The ruling, which upheld a lower court order, means that 10 districts in Marin and three in Southern Sonoma will benefit to the sum of $276,982.

The state money had been withheld during the 1968-69 school year from districts which received equivalent amounts of federal funds as aid to ease the impact of children of military personnel on enrollment.

Edward Harper, spokesman for the education department, said he had been notified by the state attorney general's office that the decision would not be appealed. He said he would send checks to districts soon.

Rebates to Marin and Southern Sonoma districts will be: Dixie, $9,118; Fairfax, $853; Larkspur, $2,083; Marin Junior College District, $7,996; Mill Valley, $3,182; Novato, $107,711; Reed, $1,542; San Rafael elementary, $3,575; San Rafael high, $8,180; Sausalito, $4,330; Cotati, $4,149; Old Adobe, $3,854; Petaluma elementary, $9,069, and Petaluma high, $11,340.

Suspects Nabbed In Auto Theft

Booked into Sonoma County Juvenile Hall were Louis Joseph Watkins, 16, of 2121 Chapman-Lane; John Norman McMurphy, 17, of 50 Eastman Lane, and his brother, Marvin James McMurphy, 14.

The youths were arrested yesterday by Healdsburg police after they were found in a car that had been reported stolen by Petaluma police. William Osborn, 40 Woodworth Way, Petaluma, had told police his car was stolen Wednesday night while parked on Water Street.

Proposal Will Ask College Bond, Tax

The Marin Junior College District board agreed by consensus last night to seek voter approval in November of a $16.9 million bond issue and a 25-cent override tax for an indefinite period.

No vote was taken at the workshop session, reported Supt.-President John A. Grasham, but the staff will have ballot proposals ready for board action at next Thursday's regular meeting.

The twin proposal would hold the district tax rate at approximately the 1969-70 level while providing operating funds and money to develop the north campus site near Novato and complete the building program on the Kentfield campus of College of Marin.

The tax rate proposal would kill an existing 35-cent override, due to expire in mid-1972 anyway, and substitute the 25-cent override for an unspecified period. The money would be used for general operating funds.

The district has been operating with a basic tax rate of 35 cents per $100 assessed valuation for more than 30 years, a figure which board members call unrealistic today.

Research by the county schools office shows, the board was told, that only two school districts — the college and Sausalito — have overrides for limited periods, while 16 Marin school districts have override taxes authorized for unlimited periods.

The bond issue would be spent for capital improvements on both campuses. The board wants to insure that more than half the total will go for the new campus, and wording of a ballot proposal to that effect is to be presented next Thursday.

The tax rate to pay off 25-year bonds, as projected by the county auditor's office, would vary from 19 cents to 12 cents per $100, with the bonds sold in three chunks to level off the payments.

The board also reviewed a proposed equipment list for the science center under construction at Kentfield, and is expected to approve the list officially next Thursday.

Five Hurt, None Serious, In Two Separate Accidents

Five persons were injured, none seriously, in two separate accidents in Marin yesterday, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Three were hurt in a one-car accident at 8:45 p.m. on the Bolinas-Fairfax Road, south of the Meadow Club stables, officers said.

According to the highway patrol, a car driven by Melody A. Baum, 19, of 1214 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, eastbound, left the road on a sharp curve and came to rest at the foot of a dirt hill.

Jeffrey A. Olener, 23, of the same address, a passenger in the car, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a fractured right finger. Passengers Karen Brenner, 23, and Mark Becker, 22, also of the same address, were treated at the hospital for multiple scrapes and bruises.

Don L. Ceballos, 31, of 9½ F Street, San Rafael, was treated for multiple scrapes and bruises at Marin General after his motorcycle collided with an auto driven by Arthur E. Pierottie, 56, of 33 College Park, Kentfield.

The highway patrol said Ceballos was injured about 6:15 p.m. as he was going west on San Pedro Road when the Pierotti auto, eastbound, attempted to turn north onto Summit Avenue.

Motorcycle Repair Shop Gets Permit

An application to allow a motorcycle repair and parts sales shop at 85-A Bolinas Road in Fairfax was approved last night by the city's planning commission — just barely and with conditions.

Commissioner Harold S. Lezzeni abstained on the 3-2 vote which approved the application of Clifford L. Gibson for a conditional zoning permit for the motorcycle shop, according to Eileen Foster, commission secretary.

Lezzeni did not explain the reasons for his abstention, nor did Commissioner John J. Hourihan explain his negative vote.

Chairman E. Ross Parkerson said he voted against the application because he was concerned about the noise that might come from the shop.

In approving the application, the commission stipulated that all repairs be made inside the building, road tests not be performed in residential areas, and the shop be open only from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekdays, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays, and closed Sundays.

The Fairfax Planning Commission also:

PREZONING — Continued until Aug. 27 a public hearing on prezoning of two parcels of property west of Fairfax which are being considered for annexation. The continuance came at the request of the owners of another parcel who said they also may seek annexation.

LOT SPLIT — Approved a lot split for property at 41 Azalea Avenue, owned by Howard DuPree, on the condition that no building permit be issued until off-street parking is provided for one of the lots.

DEVELOPMENT — Continued until Aug. 27 consideration of preliminary plans for a residential development between Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Olema Road. The commission asked the applicant, Gentry Development Co. to consider lowering the density of the proposal and adding a pedestrian pathway and recreational area.

ZONING — Put over continued discussion of the proposed zoning ordinance to a special meeting at 8 p.m. Aug. 20.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Heart Attack And Stroke Query Like Oldie: Chicken And The Egg

J.H.J. writes: "Is the heart affected by a stroke?" This is a good question and in a way reminds us of the oldie, "What came first, the chicken or the egg?" A relationship exists in that most victims of stroke not only have hardening of the brain arteries but also of the coronary arteries.

A circulatory disturbance in one system may affect the other. In essence, a person who survives a stroke may develop coronary thrombosis at a later date. The cerebral hemorrhage or thrombosis is not, in the strictest sense, the cause, but might be a contributing factor.

HIGH BLOOD pressure also hastens hardening of the arteries and enlargement of the heart. The hypertensive who develops a stroke already has some heart trouble, and if anything happens to the old pump, it is not fair to blame the lesion in the brain.

A more important aspect of this question concerns the opposite situation. Can a heart attack cause a stroke? A study conducted in New York City revealed that a heart attack preceded a stroke in at least half the victims. In many instances, the coronary thrombosis was missed because the symptoms of the stroke were more dramatic.

IN ADDITION, the victim was unconscious or too confused to tell the physician about his chest pain. The heart attack proves to be more serious than the stroke and is responsible for half the fatalities.

The chance of developing a stroke after coronary thrombosis is greatest when the attack is followed by a marked drop in blood pressure or the old ticker is too weak to pump enough blood into the brain.

A LESS COMMON cause of stroke occurs when clots (emboli) form in the heart and shoot upwards into the brain. This is more likely to happen when the pulse becomes irregular because of a fibrillation of the auricles.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.

GRAINY GALLBLADDER

L.R. writes: My doctor said there is gravel in my gallbladder. Does gravel usually develop into stones?

REPLY

Yes, in that all gallstones begin as grains of sand. On the other hand, gravel is small enough to get out of the gallbladder. This is done by keeping the structure active so it will eliminate bile from time to time. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on gallstones.

TREATING FRACTURES

T.R. writes: How are broken ribs treated?

REPLY

Fractured ribs usually heal regardless of treatment. Most physicians strap the involved side with strips of adhesive or apply a wide elastic bandage around the lower thorax. For immediate relief, some physicians also inject procaine into the nerves adjacent to the involved rib.

COCKTAILS AND CHOLESTEROL

D.R.T. writes: Do cocktails make a high blood cholesterol higher?

REPLY

Except for a trace of oil in the olive, there is no cholesterol or fat in cocktails. To my knowledge, no research has been done on the effect of alcohol on the blood cholesterol level.

CALMS THE PERSON

S.N. writes. Does phenobarbital kill pain or just have a calming effect?

REPLY

It calms the person but does not relieve pain. If discomfort is severe, the drug may not have a tranquilizing action because it is difficult to relax when something hurts.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Property And Person Defense

What right, if any, does an owner have to defend his property and his family?

DEFENSE OF PROPERTY

As a rule the landowner must warn or ask the trespasser to leave his place before he can force him off. He may use force, but not excessive force, to defend his property or to eject trespassers.

Typically, "excessive" force would apply to such things as the use of spring guns, high voltage fences, or traps. They might well injure the trespasser, to say nothing of children and others who may be hurt unintentionally. As a rule, barbed wire on farms and spiked walls around factories are regarded as legitimate.

A typical case of the use of force: The bartender ejects his noisy patron. If he uses only what force he needs to do that job, he is all right. But if he beats up his patron afterwards, he may well have a damage suit on his hands.

Or take Wilbur: After getting harrassing phone threats he found a vandal late one night on his place, looking as if he carried a bomb. Wilbur told him to leave and fired a warning shot. When the trespasser stood his ground, Wilbur shot him. The court found the shooting was legally justified, as not an excessive use of force in these circumstances.

DEFENSE OF PERSONS

Any force needed to protect a person, his family, or guests on his place is legal. Such a defender must have reason to believe that he or his family is in real danger.

"Necessary" force is what reasonably appears at the time in the particular circumstance to be necessary. In the face of what appears to be a danger, one may use necessary force, even though, as later events may show, he was mistaken about the real danger.

Where one has a reasonably safe way to escape harm, he should use it rather than use deadly force. If an intruder is in one's home, however, the dweller has no legal duty to retreat. He can use all the force he needs to remove the intruder.

'Itai-Itai' Illness From Bad Water

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A Japanese chemist said Thursday that polluted water caused a bone disease called "itai-itai" in two areas of Japan.

Prof. Jun Kobayashi of Okayama University told the International Association for Water Pollution Research that minerals dumped into a river by a large mine and then drunk by villagers downstream caused the illness.

The disease claimed more than 100 victims since it was first identified shortly after World War II said Kobayashi. It is mainly found along the Jintsu River in the Toyams area of Japan.

State Auto Will Test New Fuel

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A state car using liquified natural gas will make a smog test drive next week from Mexico to the Oregon border.

The State Air Resources Board said Thursday tests would be made of the volume of air pollutants emitted, operational cost per mile and vehicle performance characteristics.

The car, which will make the run on Monday and Tuesday, is one of a San Diego-based fleet with engines modified to operate on liquid natural gas. Officials said emission tests on the fleet disclosed "a substantial drop in air pollutants."

The test vehicle will be equipped with two 37-gallon tanks, enough fuel for approximately 450 miles of travel.

Principal Choice To Be Weighed

Appointment of two principals for the Sausalito School District will be discussed at a meeting of the school district board Saturday at 9 a.m. in Bayside School, according to Supt. Robert E. Spain.

District trustees have been talking with the five finalists for the posts this week and will complete interviews tonight, Spain said.

Adoption of a final budget for 1970-71 will also be considered by the board. On July 20, trustees adopted a $1,328,028 publication budget which would keep the district's total tax rate at its current level of $3.555 per $100 of assessed valuation.

'Sesame Street' Colleagues Rake TV's Commercialism

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Television is the greatest invention since the printing press, a former network executive said Thursday, but it is missing its chance to spread learning and racial tolerance across America.

In a no-holds-barred hearing before a Senate subcommittee, Michael Dann and two colleagues from the highly successful children's show, "Sesame Street," raked commercial networks for allegedly glorifying white middle America while the black and poor watch in frustration.

"Sesame Street" was in turn attacked back by a Mexican-American spokesman who said the education show for preschoolers is as "racist" as the rest of the TV industry.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale,D-Minn., chairman of a special Senate committee studying equal educational opportunities, openly marveled at the statistics the witnesses presented.

Dann, until three weeks ago a senior vice president at CBS-TV and now vice president of the Children's Television Workshop (CTW) that produces "Sesame Street," summed up the "total saturation" of the American television industry.

"It reaches all of the people all of the time," he said. "All you need is the ability to pay your power bill. There are Americans who may not have an indoor toilet but they do have a TV antenna."

According to CTW president Joan Ganz Cooney, even 90 per cent of poor families have at least one television set.

She also said preschoolers watch an average of eight hours of television a day —most of it geared to white, middle-class values that leave minority group children feeling "something is wrong with them" because they can't identify.

Her show, she said, is deliberately aimed at these disadvantaged youngsters to provide learning experiences through an integrated cast.

Restrictions Due 'Second Homes'?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Developers of "second homes" for Californians need more regulation, conservationists have told the State Environmental Quality Study Council.

Harold A. Berliner, Neveda County district attorney, told a council session Thursday many such recreational subdivisions are formed for speculative purposes and homes are not constructed on them immediately.

That means, he continued, that the land is cleared and "every time it rains, down the dirt comes, just like nature intended." The result is ruined streams, he said.

Richard S. Whitehead, a Santa Barbara planning consultant, suggested amending the state subdivision map act or passing planning and zoning laws to establish minimum standards for rural developments.

Two Windows Broken At San Rafael Bank

TELEVISION IN REVIEW

Film Captures Day Of Moon Landing

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Notes to watch television by:

"A day in the life of the United States," a film portrait of America on July 20, 1969, when man first landed on the Moon, will be a one hour and 45-minute special on CBS-TV Sept. 8 . . . Charles Kuralt will be the reporter for the broadcast, for which the network had 43 cameras at 33 locations across the nation recording scenes of American life on that day.

Perry Wolff, writer and executive producer of "A Day in The Life of the United States," describes it as "a modest effort to make a film equivalent to John Dos Passos' 'The 42nd Parallel' — a cross-section of life in the United States . . . America captured, frozen in a day of time" . . . Says the Network: "From the first light of sunrise on the coast of Maine to the last ray of sunset on the island of Kauai, Hawaii," the filming tried to record "what America was like on the historic day when Americans brought the world into a new age."

A report on the plight of the nation's small private colleges —from paying their bills to finding enough paying students —will be presented on NBC-TV's "First Tuesday" next week . . . Same program offers a segment on the problems plaguing the project to turn the Queen Mary into a tourist attraction at Long Beach, Calif. . . . ABC-TV is canceling its daily soap opera "The Best of Everything," based on the book and movie, as of Sept. 25.

NBC-TV has scheduled for the coming season a two-hour drama based on the Charlotte Bronte novel "Jane Eyre," with George C. Scott and Susannah York, and with London the site of the filming . . . Also scheduled during the season by NBC-TV is a program about the artistry of violinist Jascha Heifetz, to be taped in Paris; and a documentary concerning attempts to salvage and restore what is believed to be the flagship of Christopher Columbus, the Santa Maria, off the coast of Haiti.

Singer-composer Jerry Reed, who made a good impression hosting the "Harper Valley, U.S.A." special with Jeannie C. Riley, will be a regular next season on CBS-TV's Glen Campbell series . . . Nearly 42 per cent of American television homes had color sets as of July 1, according to NBC estimates . . . Mae West's planned special is reported to have been called off, at least for the time being, and some observers feel one reason is the strongly negative reviews that charged tastelessness in a current movie in which she appears "Myra Breckinridge."

NBC-TV's four-hour adaptation of Fletcher Knebel's best-seller about political intrigue in Washington "Vanished," will be seen in two-hour segments on successive nights in the coming season, and Richard Widmark has been signed to play the President of the United States . . . John Wayne is reported set to star in a 90-minute, Nov. 29 NBC-TV special that pays tribute to America in dramatic, humorous and musical forms, and has countless big name guests along with a tremendous budget.

'KEEP COMMUNITY AWARE'

Novato Group Sets Sights On Race Rift Prevention

Novato is in an ideal position to head off the racial problems that have led to confrontation, chaos and disruption in other cities throughout the United States.

That's the belief of Raleigh Floyd, 32-year-old president of Novatans for Racial Equality, who spoke last night with the enthusiasm of a hometown booster.

Novato, a predominantly white, middle-class suburb, has only a few minority families located throughout the city, and as Floyd explained, "There is a relative air of calm."

In this climate there is time to plan "and come up with solutions for the betterment of the community," rather than have confrontations later, he contended. "Now, nobody is polarized. Nobody is pushed."

Floyd and Novatans for Racial Equality have their sights set on housing for low and moderate-income families, multi-ethnic studies at Novato schools and jobs for people from low-income families.

People have asked "Why stir up the sleeping dragon?," Floyd said. His answer is: "Why wait until it's up and breathing fire?"

One of the principal objectives of the group is "to keep the community aware," he said. "There is no room for complacency."

There have been some racial incidents, but nothing major, and "we hope to keep them to a minimum," Floyd said.

Minority families are moving into Novato, "primarily out of the military," but the high cost of housing is a barrier, he asserted.

The reason there aren't more moving in is "more economics than discrimination," Floyd said.

A three-year-resident of 2057 Carolyn Way, he said there was no bias shown when he was house-hunting and he described his neighborhood "as the best we ever lived in."

Floyd described Novatans for Racial Equality as a group of citizens, not connected with the Congress of Racial Equality or any other such organization.

RALEIGH FLOYD
Seeks racial amity

While other similar groups elsewhere were formed after problems arose, the Novato group was formed to prevent such problems, he explained.

The lack of low and moderate income units is keeping people out of the city, Floyd said. He favored the proposal before the city council that a planned development at San Marin East have 10 per cent low and moderate income units. "Not only for minority groups, but anyone at that economic level."

Floyd, particularly interested in multi-ethnic studies at schools, said such studies would be relevant and would serve the student in the future.

There would be workshops to prepare teachers, who have "little minority exposure," with some background in ethnic studies, he explained.

He also has urged the hiring of minority teachers, but many prefer to work in ghetto areas, and cost of housing keeps the "young ones out because they can't afford to live here,' he said.

The task of finding jobs for minority youths is difficult," Floyd conceded, particularly since there is no public transportation system to get them to and from jobs.

Novatans for Racial Equality, with about 50 members, is open to all and hopes to have some influence in the growth of the community, he said. "Novato has the potential to be one of the most progressive cities."

Floyd likes Novato so much that he commutes to his job as a teacher of technical training at Philco Ford in Palo Alto, spending four hours a day on the road, rather than move.

"I like Novato's potential," he said, perhaps thinking of the future of his son, Raleigh Floyd Jr., who was nearby celebrating his sixth birthday, complete with space suit and new watch.

Floyd, a native of Chicago, said he once thought of moving back, but decided after a visit: "I have a son, and I didn't want to go back there and have him end up in a gang."

Floyd's wife, Carol, a teacher at Tamalpais High School, was busy presiding over the birthday cake.

Even Plymouth Rock Has Signs Of Times

PLYMOUTH, Mass. (UPI)—Plymouth Rock, where the pilgrims landed from England in 1620, bowed to the times Thursday when someone painted "revolution" in black letters on it.

The lettering was discovered by a local policeman and was removed before any tourists showed up at the historic site.

Little League In Its Second Generation

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Little League has finally come full circle. Twenty-four years have passed since the first year of national tournament play, enough time for two generations to have played. It is by now an American institution.

In its 18th season in Marin County, the program has not quite bridged a generation. Yet there is evidence of its maturity. Bill Johnson, 19, who played for the Corte Madera Lions seven years ago, has grown up to become the team's manager.

Closer to the point is the case of Angelo Colombo, 49, who in 1952 became the first president of the first league in the county. Now he has a son who was the star of the Marin team tournament last week.

Back in 1952 Colombo, a teacher at San Rafael High School then as now, was known as a "tough luck" guy. He broke his nose four times, and fractured his leg, as an old Independent-Journal article explains, "while negotiating a slide into third base." All this happened while playing second base for a semi-pro team known as the San Rafael Athletic Association, a group of young men with an aspiration for civic improvement.

No youth baseball program existed in San Rafael when, in 1952, the athletic association began to form plans for the city's first Little Leage. Since the project had no local precedent, it had to be founded from scratch. Sponsors had to be solicited (some of the first were the police, the Optimist Club and Taveggia and Brusati Sporting Goods Co.), a playing site was needed and the Little League offices at Williamsport, Pa., had to approve everything.

By Easter of that year, the San Rafael American Little Leage had been born; eight teams, playing on a field built with community-donated support that stood near what is now the corner of Lincoln and Second streets.

At the time, the A.A. was optimistic that Little League would grow in the county. "We felt it would catch on, that there would be teams in every city," says Colombo.

It caught on all right. By 1960, all but one of the county's present 16 leagues had been formed. As for the San Rafael American League, it was joined in 1954 by the National League. The A.A. and Colombo managed its affairs until the mid-fifties, when the Parks and Recreation Department took over.

Today thousands of boys play Little League in Marin. In fact, the county comprises by itself an entire district of California Division II, Section 2. The program has advanced to the extent that some leagues have weekly newspapers, and many have fields that would make the National League franchise department sit up and take notice. (Novato's Rancho field is of tournament quality, and will serve as the site of the Section II playoffs next month.)

For all its progress, however, the character of Little League has not changed much over the years. Colombo suggests that greater exposure to the game that kids receive today has increased the quality of play somewhat, but that as far as playing rules and sophistication of the game are concerned, he finds little difference.

One thing that has changed, by the nature of the program's growth, is the size of post-season tournaments. An annual team tournament has been added to the all-star compmetition, so that it's now possible for a boy to play eight games in two weeks. Regarding that, Colombo says, "I think the kids can handle it, as long as parents don't make it a high-pressure situation."

It shouldn't matter if a kid strikes out or makes an error, says Colombo. "The important thing is to let them play and have fun. It's a great experience."

'Fantastic' Describes Mudcat

By JOE SARGIS

OAKLAND (UPI)—"The man is fantastic. What more can you say."

That was Oakland A's manager John McNamara's way of describing his ace reliever—Jim (Mudcat) Grant.

The veteran righthander, who has been around the block a few times, hardly believes what is going on himself, but he'll take it.

"This happens once in a while so it isn't a fantasy," said Grant, who made his 49th appearance of the season Thursday night and picked up his 18th save. "Don Drysdale had a streak like this as a starter, though, and so did Bob Gibson, so I know it's real, but sometimes it's even hard for me to believe."

EIGHTH TIME

Grant rescued Jim Hunter, his favorite starter and "Soul Brother" for the eighth time while helping the A's nip the Boston Red Sox, 2-1. Hunter went 6 1-3 innings and gained his 15th victory.

Naturally, he was tickled to death with Grant's pitching.

"He's something else, isn't he?" Hunter said, sipping a beer and resting comfortably in the A's dressing room while Grant was being interviewed for radio.

"Don't forget, I'm doing my job, too," added Hunter. "I get paid for going as far as I can and he (Grant) gets paid for saving me. It's a happy combination and it's working out just fine for both of us and the ball club as well."

AGREES

"Jim's right," Grant said later. "This is the ideal situation. The starter gets a victory and I get a save."

Hunter came out in the top of the seventh with one out, a run in and runners on first and second. Grant retired Carl left center and after a passed ball moved the runners up a base each, he got out of the inning on a foul popup by Tony Conigliaro.

John Kennedy reached Grant for a meaningless single with two out in the eighth and Mudcat went on to get the next four men in a row and nail down the decision.

The victory was the eighth in the last nine games for the A's and put them a half game behind second place California and eight in back of Minnesota in the American League West.

SENATORS

The Washington Senators are in town tonight for the start of a four-game weekend series. It gives the A's a fine chance to get closer to the Twins, who play Detroit during the weekend.

"Now's our big chance to get back in the race," said McNamara. "I'm not taking the Senators lightly but I'd rather

The Players Show Their Strength In NFL Strike

CHICAGO (UPI)—The show of strength in pro football's first strike appeared to favor the players today since less than a handful of veterans reported to National Football League training camps in defiance of the Players' Association.

Instead the players' negotiating committee, headed by president John Mackey of the Baltimore Colts, received almost 100 per cent backing from club after club. Such support was indicated during an all-night meeting Wednesday when 87 players representing every one of the 26 teams stood in meeting to express their position and then voted unanimously to strike.

WILL BEND

"The players will stay out as long as it takes," Mackey said. "We are willing to bend, but the owners will have to be willing to bend, too."

Only one well-known veteran, linebacker Mike Curtis of the Baltimore Colts, broke ranks with the players. An all-pro selection in 1968, he checked into the Colt camp but refused to comment on his decision.

Two Pittsburgh veterans, punter Bobby Walden who played in the Pro Bowl game last year and defensive back Curtis Gentry, also reported.

The hardline position taken by the players left the negotiations with the owners in a stalemate. Mackey said that the players had not wanted to break off negotiations earlier this week and that the owners walked away. "Our understanding is they will get in touch with us," he said. "We are available."

SCATTER

The players who attended the Wednesday meeting scattered quickly Thursday with a few remaining in Chicago. The owners' negotiating committee was in New York, and the owners apparently were leaving the next step in the dispute, which centers on how much money should be contributed to the player pension fund, with them.

"We do not have a meeting scheduled," George Halas of the Chicago Bears said. "If we should need one, I suppose that Lamar Hunt and I would call it. But we're leaving this to the negotiating committee until they feel they have something for us to ratify."

Halas is president of the NFL's National Conference and Hunt, of the Kansas City Chiefs, president of the American Conference. It was their telegrams to the veteran players Wednesday, announcing that training camps would be opened at 6 P.M. Thursday and calling on the veterans to report, which precipitated the player action.

Mackey said the NFLPA telegraphed Halas, Hunt, Tex Schramm, chairman of the negotiating committee, and commissioner Pete Rozelle that the players "now officially are on strike."

The message also said the players believed it would be in the "best interests of the fans and professional football to quickly conclude the dispute."

"If we sit down with the idea that we want to settle," Mackey said, "this can be concluded quickly. You're always close as long as you're talking. We were talking, and we're hoping that we start talking immediately."

Veterans of only one team were in training, the Kansas City Chiefs, who play the College All Stars tonight. Their player representative, Jim Tyrer, said if the dispute was not settled, the Chiefs would have camp after the all star game.

The dispute was nearing the point where the owners might have to cancel exhibition games scheduled next weekend, one on Aug. 7 and eight on Aug. 8. However, the players believed that if a settlement was reached this weekend the games could go on.

Stiff Test For Giant Pitchers

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants' pitching staff, weakest earned run average in the National League, gets its stiffest test of the season starting tonight.

Over the next five days, the Giants will play seven games. To get things rolling, the schedule finds the Giants playing doubleheaders both tonight and Saturday against the Philadelphia Phillies.

Pitching the first two games will be Juan Marichal (4-9) and Frank Reberger (2-4). Gaylord Perry (14-10) and Rich Robertson (6-6) are Saturday's probables and newcomer Don Carrithers may make his initial appearance in the series closer Sunday.

San Francisco both made and lost ground Thursday. The idle Giants picked up a half-game on Atlanta in their battle for third place in the NL West. The Braves dropped a 4-2 decision to St. Louis. Conversely, the Giants fell another half-game behind first place Cincinnati, which downed Pittsburgh, 8-4.

Chiefs Two-Touchdown Favorites Over All-Stars

CHICAGO (UPI)—The 37th College All Star football game will be played under the lights in Soldier Field tonight and pro football's champion Kansas City Chiefs, although able to practice for only five days, were a solid two touchdown favorite.

The game will be televised by ABC (Channel 7), beginning at 6:30 p.m. (PDT).

Both teams were affected by the National Football League Players' Association strike. The Chiefs didn't begin to workout until last weekend when the NFLPA, in response to a request from the Chiefs' players, agreed to let them practice and play the game.

BOYCOTT

The All Stars were hit also and the players boycotted practice for one day in support of the NFLPA and then displayed a lack of enthusiasm when it was uncertain the game would go on.

But over the past week both clubs have solved their problems. "I look for our squad to do a very good job," Chiefs coach Hank Stram said. "The artistic aspect of the game may be hurt a little bit, but I think we will execute much better than people anticipate."

(Among the Chiefs players is tight end Reg Carolan of Novato, returning after being sidelined last season with a knee injury.)

Coach Otto Graham of the All Stars was fearful chiefly because his team has not had its usual scrimmage with a pro team. "The pros are human," he said, "and you can tell that to our boys all day long but they aren't sure, you haven't sold them.

RUN SCARED?

"I hope we don't go out there and run scared and not play for a half because we don't know the pros fall down too when they are blocked or tackled."

Graham declared his team had talent, and in some positions, he said, were better than last year. "We have some good defensive linemen and we have some good defensive backs," he said. "Our quarterbacks are good, we have good receivers and good running backs."

It will be Graham's 10th game as coach of the collegians and he has won two. Last year his team staged a furious last period rally against the New York Jets before losing 26-24.

Stram has never been in the All Star game although he was invited to participate as a player in 1943 and had to decline because of military commitments. "I think this game is one of the benefits we won in the Super Bowl," he said, "and it's like home coming to me. I grew up in the shadows of Soldier Field."

The game was expected to draw nearly 70,000 fans.

DEERSKIN, NOT PIGSKIN FOR BACCAGLIO

Martin Baccaglio of Novato, defensive end for the Cincinnati Bengals of the National Football League, will get in some deer hunting when the season opens tomorrow.

"It's the first time in a long time I've been around here for the opening of Coastal deer season," he said today from his Novato home where he is staying pending the outcome of the NFL players strike.

"It's unfortunate," Baccaglio said about the strike. "I think both sides are guilty of being obstinate, but I will stick with my fellow players and won't report to camp until I get the okay."

"To tell you the truth," said the 25-year-old Baccaglio, "it surprised me to see how cohesive a group the players association turned out to be."

San Rafael Reaches Little League Semis

San Rafael American Little League All-Stars earned their way into tonight's semifinals of the Marin County tournament with a victory that took two days to complete at Novato's Rancho School.

San Rafael youngsters had ended up tied, 6-6, with the Novato American Little Leaguers Wednesday when darkness halted play after eight innings. Yesterday evening the two teams picked up where they left off and after two innings San Rafael came out on top, 8-6.

San Rafael will take on Fairfax at Strawberry, in one semifinal game tonight and Marinwood takes on Novato National at Hamilton Air Force Base in the other. Both games start at 6 p.m.

After both San Rafael and Novato went scoreless in the first of their two-inning scrap yesterday, San Rafael broke the ice with two runs in the top of the 10th, the first scoring on a single through the box by Bryon Shelley and the second coming home on an error.

Novato almost got the two runs back in its half of the 10th but San Rafael rightfielder Gary Johns saved the day, jumping nearly a foot off the ground to rob John Weston of a home run with a man on base. The ball was actually out of the

Moody Latest Golf Dropout

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

HARRISON, N.Y. — Name players are dropping like flies from the field of the $250,000 Westchester Golf Classic. Orville Moody, the 1969 U.S. Open champion, became the fourth casualty when he withdrew this morning because of an ankle injury.

Yesterday old pro Ben Hogan withdrew with a painful knee, and Lee Trevino and John Lotz were disqualified, Trevino because he overslept and missed his starting time, Lotz for failing to sign his scorecard.

Tommy Jacobs took the opening day lead in the tournament with a five-under-par 67, his best first round score in several years.

be playing them now than Detroit."

ADVANTAGE

Thursday's game was a key one for the A's and they took advantage of their only two opportunities to score. Bert Campaneris singled as leadoff man in the first inning, stole second and third and scored on Felip Alou's sacrifice fly. In the third, Hunter doubled and scored on another double by Rick Monday, who got three of the A's nine hits.

A walk to Tom Satriano and singles by Mike Andrews and Reggie Smith netted the Red Sox run in the seventh and brought on Grant, who now has A's 100 games.

The 2 2-3 innings of shutout relief lowered his earned run average to 0.94.

Like McNamara said, the man is fantastic.

SANTA ROSA — Not a single Oakland Raider player reported to the opening of the team's training camp for veterans yesterday afternoon. Coach John Madden and his staff were on hand all day, but went to an early dinner when none of the veterans showed up.

In a meeting earlier at Tom Keating's East Bay Home, the veterans voted 23-0 to join the players strike.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — Eugene Thomas, a running back, was the only veteran to show up yesterday at the San Francisco 49ers training camp in defiance of the players strike.

Thomas, a free agent who was a member of the Kansas City Chiefs for two years but has been unable to land a job in either the NFL or AFL the past two seasons, actually reported two weeks ago with the rookies. He was told by coach Dick Nolan to wait until the veterans reporting date, which was yesterday.

Marin Netters In Finals

Five Marin County players swept into today's singles finals, and the team of San Francisco's Eric Lee and Tiburon's Dan Tierney breezed as expected into the final round of doubles as the 12th annual Marin County Junior Hardcourt tennis tournament turned into its home stretch at the Mill Valley Tennis Club.

In yesterday's feature semifinal match, Mill Valley's Andy Moffat got by Jerry Suyderhoud of San Anselmo in boys 18-and-under, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3. It was the second time in as many days that Moffat, the tournament's top seed, had to struggle.

Bench Surprises Himself With Season's Showing

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Johnny Bench is more surprised than anybody else by his success.

The Cincinnati catcher, closing in fast on a number of home run records, continued his astounding hitting spree Thursday night as he cracked his 35th homer of the year to spark the Cincinnati Reds to an 8-4 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Bench now has a good chance to top Roy Campanella's all-time record of 41 homers for catchers set in 1953. He also has a shot at the club record of 49 hit by Ted Kluszewski in 1954. And of course, there's always Roger Maris and those 61 homers. But Bench is lagging there. Maris had his 35th homer in 1961 on July 15.

SURPRISED

And what does the 22-year-old Cincinnati slugger think about the furor that's swirling around his head?

"No one is more amazed than I am at my hitting," he says. "I'd be lying if I said I wasn't. After all, I predicted that I'd hit only 30 homers when the season started. But look at it now. I just don't know what to say."

Bench is now hitting .298 and has driven in 99 runs to lead both leagues in that department. Teammate Tony Perez is right behind him in homers and RBI's, however. But Perez, who cracked his 31st homer Thursday night to lift his runs-batted-in total to 98, denies that there's any rivalry between him and Bench.

NO RIVALRY

"I don't worry about catching Bench," Perez says. "I'm glad he's hitting the way he is. Everytime he hits one I figure that's glue (money) in my pocket."

In other National League action, Chicago whipped Houston, 6-3, Los Angeles topped Montreal, 7-3 and St. Louis beat Atlanta, 4-2. The other clubs were not scheduled.

In the AL, Oakland trimmed Boston, 2-1, Milwaukee belted Washington, 6-2, Kansas City trimmed Detroit, 3-2, in 10 innings and Cleveland edged Minnesota, 3-2.

Vince Cheered By Flowers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington Redskin head coach Vince Lombardi was elated and cheered Thursday by the arrival at his hospital room of a spray of flowers from the striking National Football League Players Association.

Lombardi, who underwent his second operation in a month Monday, made a special point of showing the flowers and a get-well message to a visitor — Col. O. C. Krueger, business manager of the Redskins and a long-time friend.

The card with the flowers said: "Our sincere best wishes and prayers are with you. You are a great coach and a great individual to all of us."

Club officials continued a policy of silence on the nature of Lombardi's second operation or his condition except to report he was "resting comfortably."

Bench's homer—a two-run shot—started a four-run first inning for Cincinnati. The Reds added three more runs in the second inning when they buched four hits with a walk. Perez cracked his homer in the seventh as Tony Cloninger, with relief help from Don Gullett, won his fourth game.

WILLIAMS

Billy Williams drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single to spark the Cubs to a four-run fourth inning. Johnny Callison's solo homer accounted for another Chicago run. Ferguson Jenkins pitched an eight-hitter for his 12th victory. He was tagged for homers by Denis Menke and Cesar Cedeno.

Jeff Torborg drove in four runs with a three-run homer and a single to lead the Dodgers to victory. Bill Russell banged in two runs for Los Angeles with a single and a triple. Bill Singer yielded six hits for his eighth victory.

Lou Brock hit two solo homers and Joe Torre added another to give St. Louis its triumph. Starter Jerry Reuss had a four-hit shutout going into the ninth inning when Orlando Cepeda led off with a single and Clete Boyer followed with his 11th homer. Chuck Taylor then came on to preserve Reuss' second victtry.

FISH AND GAME

Tomorrow's The Day For Coastal Hunters

By AL GIDDINGS

Tomorrow morning at approximately 5:45 a.m. or one-half hour before sunrise, the coastal deer season will open and remain open until Sept. 13. Then there will be a two-week interval before the inland deer season opens on Sept. 26.

The limit on bucks in the coastal counties remains at two per hunter, forked horns or better. The only catch this year is that a person killing a buck in a coastal county (two deer district) won't be able to hunt in the inland seasons in a one deer district.

This year, the Fish and Game Commission passed a new law that reads: "Every person upon killing a deer in an area where the bag limit is one deer shall immediately fill out both parts of both his "A" and "B" tags, punch out clearly the date of kill on both tags, and attach them to the antlers of the deer." I suppose many people will get fouled up this year if they don't properly read the regulations, Section 362 (the section that covers this new law is on page 27 of the hunting regulations now available at your licensed sporting goods stores).

SECTION 2016 which should be noted reads: "It is unlawful to enter any lands under cultivation or enclosed by a fence belonging to, or occupied by another, or to enter any uncultivated or unenclosed land where signs forbidding trespass are displayed at intervals not less than three to the mile along all exterior boundaries, and at all intervals not less than three to the mile along all exterior boundaries, and at all roads and trails entering such lands for the purpose of discharging any firearm or taking or destroying any mammal or bird on such lands without having first obtained written permission from the owner of such lands, or his agent, or the person in lawful possession thereof." Even target shooters can be cited under the wording of this section.

This year also, those who shoot a buck must havetheir tags validated. (Page 26 of the hunting regulations has a list of those people eligible to validate tags this year.) And be sure you mail in the report card part of your tag. The validating officer should always take this part for mailing; it simplifies things. This part of the tag is already addressed and stamped.

HAVE YOU noticed the lack of water in Papermill Creek this year? And there is algae growth that is extremely bad, especially in the Point Reyes area of the Giacomini Dam. A number of people have bitterly complained about this; they feel the Marin Municipal Water District is short changing the ecological conditions of the streams below Kent Dam and Nicasio Dam.

Some checks were made, and he total amount of water being resently released from the am is 1.2 cubic feet per second, and this from Nicasio Dam, nothing from Kent. This eems unbelievable with the wa-er district oweing plants of 7,-00 steelhead to this stream area in payment for the pollution it created several months ago when an estimated 3,-000-4,000 wild silver salmon and steelhead yearlings were killed. One and two-tenths cubic feet per second is a flow three feet wide and four inches in depth — a drop in the bucket as compared to what's needed to really keep the salmon and steelhead fishery going. The Department of Fish and Game has no water rights for summer releases. Why? I can't understand it, nor has Taylor Park any rights for releases.

Flows are now dependent on Giacomini Ranch's repariam rights at Point Reyes. I believe the water district grants releases here when he asks for them. I called the Fish and Game Department about this and the fisheries branch is attempting to get some releases. I hope so! Everyone should work together on this or our steelhead and salmon runs will just dry up.

THIS SHOULD giveyou a laugh! The other day I bought a 12-foot aluminum car-top boat. I have used four Klamaths (Trailer boat's aluminum boat) in fish and game work for 20 years of patrol. Never had I been dumped! Ha! I tried this new boat by rowing it around Tomales Bay five minutes after I bought it. Then it happened! I took my first spill into the bay. Yep, the boat turned over in about seven feet of water — cold-cold water!

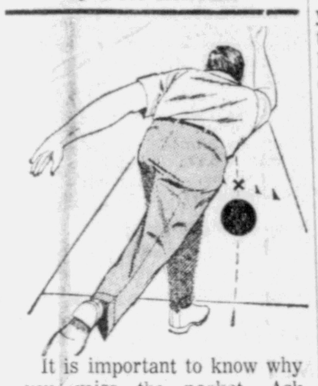
I've always wanted this to happen but only if I could later write about it, so here's what I have to say: The first thing is that you lose your breath! So, stay with the boat, until you get your breath back and don't panic! (Most boats float enough to keep you afloat if you hang on!) In my case, this took about three minutes. By this time, a boat with one man aboard got to me, but because the gunwales (sides of his boat) were too high, and with the heavy wet clothes and shoes I had on, I couldn't make the climb. (Be sure you have your rescuer put his motor in neutral because your legs have a tendency to go up and under the boat and could be badly cut.

I TOLD MY comforting friend that I was fine, and that I would swim ashore, but for him to watch me staying alongside until I was ashore. This we did, then he went back, picked up the floating oars and towed the boat in to the beach. Actually, there was nothing to it, but it could have been disaster.

Use a good boat, it sure can keep you warmer. I had no gear, just the oars, so the total loss was one oarlock. But the gain was an unforgettable experience.

BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER



It is important to know why you miss the pocket. Ask yourself, Did my ball go over the spot I was aiming at, or to the right or left? Be sure you can answer this question after every shot.

Many bowlers claim to use the spot system. But after aiming at a certain point on the lane, they don't really follow the path of their ball. It is a matter of concentration.

AT&T Stock Rings A Long, Firm Tone

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. We have read conflicting opinions on the merits of holding American Telephone shares. We are retired and have held some of our 420 shares since 1911. Now we are 'up in the air" about what to do. We will abide your advice. H.G.

A. Because differences of opinion are what keep the stock market operating, it is not surpirsing that Telephone, held by 1 out of every 10 U.S. stockholders, is subjected to frequent and diverse analyses by the "experts". H. Romnes, chirman, has cited recently several factors expected to foster improved year-to-year earnings comparisons. Prominent among them is the June 30 expiration of the surtax, which last year reduced net 32¢ per share. A continued upsurge in long-distance telephone calls and new telephone installations plus recent boosts in some interstate rates will also boost 1970 revenues significantly. With construction outlays of $7 billion scheduled this year, members of the Bell System should benefit from the firmer tone and reduced interest rates apparent in the bond market. You should not disturb your Telephone holdings, which provide a secure and generous 6 per cent yield.

Q. I would appreciate your thoughts on the purchase of Penn Central at this time. P.T.

A. Quite frankly there are just too many attractive, deeply-discounted and financially sound issues available to sink hard-earned funds into asset-rich but cash-poor Penn Central. However, the liquidity difficulties, which forced Penn Central Transportation to file bankruptcy, have focused increasing attention on the financial conditions of other corporations. Analysts, brokerage firms and advisory services have been scrambling to compile lists of companies with particularly favorable debt structure. Standard & Poor listed about 75 New York Exchange companies with no long-term debt. Among those debt-free corporations are five which appear to offer above-average appreciation potential: Marlennan Corp., Maytag Company, Plough, Inc., Polaroid Corp., Walker, Hiram G. & W. All have well-established uptrending earnings patterns and a record of increasing dividends.

Market On Mixed Side Near Close

NEW YORK (UPI) — The list had a mixed appearance on active trading with about an hour remaining Friday.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average was off 0.95 to 733.78 shortly before 2:30 p.m. It had been up more than 5 points earlier.

Of the 1,480 issues traded, 638 advanced and 543 declined.

At the start the market moved up smartly on Israel's acceptance of U.S. peace proposals for the Middle East. Then it started back tracking.

One analyst said he believed the announcement by President Thieu of South Vietnam that he would not accept a coalition government with the communists helped to blunt the rally.

Among the most active stocks were Hanna Mining which traded a block of 285,000 shares at 40 off 1¼ and another of 55,000, both for Institutional Investors. Electric & Musical also active, traded a 20,000 share block and an 80,000 share block both at 4½, unchanged.

Parke, Davis, also among the most active, attracted some demand. The company said Thursday that it had a tentative agreement to merge with Warner-Lambert. Warner-Lambert, however, pointed lower.

There were a number of point size swingers in the electronics but in both directions.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were mixed on moderately active trading.

Publicly-Owned NYSE Broker Airs Profit Drop

NEW YORK (UPI) — Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette, the New York Stock Exchange's only publicly-owned member firm, has reported a sharp drop in net income for the first half of 1970.

DLJ was in the vanguard of the drive to alter big board regulations to permit member firms to sell their own stock to the public. The firm put its own common stock on the market early in April at $15 a share and it was quoted at $7½ bid, $8 asked on the over-the-counter market Thursday.

First half profits dropped to $605,000, or eight cents a share, from $1,930,000, or 26 cents a share, in the comparable 1969 period. Commissions, fees and other income dropped to $10,824,000 from $16,062,000.

SEARS, ROEBUCK AND CO., Mafco, Inc. (a subsidiary of Marshall Field and Co.) and Urban Development Co. (a subsidiary of Aetna Life) will join in a quarter-billion dollar land development to create a new town in Lake County, Ill., 30 miles north of Chicago. "New Century Town" will be built in two stages - the first to be a regional commercial center requiring about 18 months to complete. Construction is scheduled to begin next year with completion of the entire project in five to 10 years.

LATIN AMERICAN AGRIBUSINESS DEVELOPMENT CORP., a newly formed venture of 12 major corporations, has elected James T. Halom as president and chief executive officer. He was formerly vice president of the Latin American Group of W.R. Grace and Co., New York. Shareholders Adela Investment Co., Bank of America, Borden, Inc., Cargill, Inc., Caterpillar Tractor Co., CPC International, Inc., Deere and Co., Dow Chemical Co., Gerber Products Co., Monsanto Co., Ralston Purina Co. and Standard Fruit and Steamship Co.

BEMIS CO., INC., earnings per share for the three months ended June 30 were 38 cents, compared with 39 cents for last year's quarter. Pre-tax income for the three months amounted to $3.8 million, a 24-per cent increase over last year's comparable $3.1 million.

Blue Cross Will Increase Rates Of Small Groups

OAKLAND (BW) — For the first time in more than three years, Blue Cross in Northern California will rase rates for employee groups of less than 100 employees beginning Sept. 1.

The increase will affect about 7 per cent of the total Blue Cross membership in Northern California. The aggregate amount of the increase will be about 28 per cent. However, the percentage will vary depending on the benefit patterns of each particular group.

In announcing the increase, Blue Cross noted that since March 1, 1967, the last rate increase for these community rated groups, hospital service charges have risen more than 40 per cent to the point that daily hospital charges of $100 are common.

During the same period of time, doctor care charges have increased 17 per cent, a rate close to that experienced by the rising cost of living index. Therefore, the rates for the hospital portion of the programs will bear tht heaviest portion of the increase.

Hospital Opening Set For End Of August

ABAG Approves 20-Year Plan To End Urban Sprawl

By DAVID DIETZ

BERKELEY — The 20-year regional plan of the Association of Bay Area Governments — which seeks an end to the urban sprawl through intergovernmental cooperation — encountered surprisingly light opposition last night and was approved by an overwhelming vote of the association's general assembly.

Delegates from only five of the 84 cities represented on the general assembly voted against the plan, with 20 absent, and all eight county members endorsed it.

Among the dissenters were the cities of San Anselmo and Rohnert Park.

As envisioned in the document, which its backers insisted was merely a development guide and not a detailed land-use plan, the Bay Region in 1990 would include a series of "growth corridors" to accommodate a projected rise in population from the present 4.7 million to 7.5 million. (Details of the plan were reported in the Independent-Journal on March 27.)

Critics among the delegates feared for the most part that the document would lead to a regional government with broad taxing powers that would usurp home rule, but the dissent was swallowed in an outpouring of enthusiasm by nearly a dozen speakers.

Marin Supervisor John F. McInnis, chairman of ABAG's planning committee and chief shepherd of the plan, expressed surprise at the outcome.

He had told newsmen before the meeting in the Hotel Claremont that he expected resistance from local government to be "varied and violent."

However, the plan is yet to undergo a year of public hearings throughout the Bay Area and McInnis, noting that the document "gives cities and counties a tool against which to compare their planning efforts," said he fully expected modifications. The plan "is not the final product for all time," he told delegates.

Last night's vote came with a sense of urgency, however, since ABAG had been required by federal officials to submit a regional plan by Oct. 1, otherwise face a shutoff of sewer, park, mass transit and open-space matching funds.

While observing that the goals of the plan may be desirable, Mayor James F. Reed of San Anselmo told delegates the document was unacceptable because it failed to outline a program under which the purchase of open space and construction of housing would be accomplished, that it threatened "another layer of general purpose government with broad taxing

So you think a child's summer is all fun and sun and tans at the beach, eh? Well, Linda Brandt (left), 9, got a chilling surprise today when she slid into the San Rafael High School pool for a swimming class. With the morning temperature clinging to the 60 mark, this July vacation day was no fun for her companion, 8-year-old Tony Podesta (right), either. Another young mermaid, swimming away, doesn't mind, though. (Independent-Journal photo by Alfred M. Arn)

U.S. Peace Plans Accepted In Israel

Government Heeds Plea From Nixon

TEL AVIV (UPI) — The Israeli cabinet, heeding an appeal from President Nixon, today accepted the U.S. Middle East peace proposals that include a three-month cease-fire on the Egyptian front. Egypt had accepted the proposals earlier.

The decision was taken by the cabinet in the fourth crisis session of the week despite the threat of a walkout by the six Gahal Party members of the National Unity Coalition that would imperil the government of Premier Golda Meir.

The six members of the hawkish party voted against accepting the proposal according to the Israeli State Radio which said the vote in the cabinet was 17-6 with no abstentions. However, they did not immediately walk out but caucused again to decide their course.

EDGE OF CRISIS

Political sources said it was unlikely Gahal would take any firm decision before Sunday, leaving the country still teetering on the edge of a governmental crisis. The Gahal bloc, which has 26 seats in the 120-seat unicameral parliament, had decided Tuesday to walk out if the cabinet said yes.

Despite the threat, the Gahal ministers were invited to sit on a ministerial committee which will draft the official Israel reply.

The Israeli statement today said Israel was prepared to subscribe to the U.S. proposals for 90-day cease-fire "at least on the Egyptian front." This ruled out a cease-fire now on the Jordanian front where Arab guerrillas have threatened to continue the war.

VAGUE WORDING

The U.S. proposals were vaguely worded and Israel was forced repeatedly to seek clarification from Washington on their meaning. The Rogers proposals spoke specifically of a cease-fire on the Suez Canal front and hopefully of the other fronts.

But during the 90-day period the belligerents could begin preliminary discussions which would settle the problem on a cease-fire on other sectors with Ambassador Gunnar V. Jarring acting as mediator, and hopefully, to prepare for negotiations to write a formal end to the conflict.

Cabinet Secretary Michael Arnon said Gahal's threat to quit was not discussed at the two-hour cabinet meeting.

COMMITTEE SET

He said the committee appointed to draft the reply was Mrs. Meir, Foreign Minister Abba Eban, Defense Minister Moshe Dayan, Deputy Premier and Minister of Education Higal Allon, Minister of Religious Affairs Zerah Warhaftig, Tourist Minister Moshe Kol; Minister of Justice Yaacov Shapiro and Minister without protfolio Nathan Peled.

He said Gahal was invited to

DURING CEASEFIRE

Nixon Vows No Egyptian Buildup

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—President Nixon says Israel need have no fear of a threatening Arab military buildup during the 90-day ceasefire that is a cornerstone of the U.S. Mideast peace plan both sides have now accepted.

The Israeli Cabinet's acceptance of the formula came less than 12 hours after Nixon stressed anew, at a news conference, that the United States continues committed to a policy of keeping Israel stronger than its Arab neighbors.

The cease-fire had been the touchiest point with the Israelis, with a bitter controversy taking place within Premier Golda Meir's Cabinet over whether acceptance might allow the Egyptians to build up their forces and bases along the Suez Canal.

In his nationally broadcast news conference Thursday night in a hotel ballroom, Nixon said: "If there's a ceasefire, a natural proposition connected with that — and conditioned with that — is that there will be a military standstill during that period." He added:

"I believe that Israel can agree to the ceasefire and can agree to negotiations without fear that her position may be compromised or jeopardized in that period."

Touching on a number of other points in his first news conference outside Washington since becoming President, Nixon also took a sympathetic view toward southern school districts facing the "very difficult problem" of desegregation.

He raised the unpopular spectre of higher taxes in 1972 if "those very well-intentioned Congressmen and Senators" keep appropriating more money than he has asked for and said he would decide next week whether to veto measures on federal housing and education that contain almost $1 billion more than he requested.

"I am going to make some hard decisions, vetoing some popular measures if I believe that those measures would result in increasing prices or require an increase in taxes," Nixon said.

"We can avoid an increase in taxes and we can avoid an inflationary budget in 1972 but only if we get the cooperation of Congress in these next two to three months."

The President met with newsmen at the Century Plaza Hotel here and appeared confident and unruffled despite irritating technical problems that resulted in his voice being unamplified for the 150 reporters seated in front of him.

He returned immediately after the half-hour news confer-

One American Escapes Uruguay Kidnap Team

MONTEVIDEO, Uruguay (UPI)—Two American officials and a Brazilian diplomat were kidnaped by unidentified armed men believed to be Tupamaros terrorists today. Police said a fourth kidnap attempt against a U.S. embassy official failed.

The kidnaped men were identified as Gordon Jones, 27, a U.S. vice consul, who managed to escape his assailants although wounded; Dan Mitrione, 50, of the International Development Agency, (AID), and Brazilian consular official, Aloysio Mares Dias, 41.

An American embassy official said there was also an attempt to kidnap the cultural attache, Nathan Rosenfeld, 48, but that it failed. He gave no details.

Mitrione is from Richmond, Ind. Jones was identified only as a Californian, and Rosenfeld, a New Yorker.

All of the kidnapings occurred within minutes of each other in widespread sections of suburban Montevideo. Mitrioni was captured in suburban Malvin when a car with five pistol-waving men in it blocked off his car and seized him. Minutes later, a second group of men seized Mares Dias, 41, leaving his home at Carrasco, a beach area 10 miles from downtown Montevideo.

There was no precise information on how Jones was seized but police said he was in a car which his kidnapers intercepted. Police said they bound Jones hand and feet but that he somehow managed to throw himself out of the car while it was in motion.

Jones hobbled to a small store where he told the shopkeeper "They tried to kidnap me. I'm from the American embassy." Police said Jones had a minor head wound, apparently inflicted by a blunt instrument, but that his condition was not serious.

There was no positive identification of the kidnapers.

Guard Chief Rules Out Prison Strike

The president of the San Quentin Prison correctional officers association said today there is "no chance" of a strike at the prison.

Arnold Thompson ruled out the possibility of a strike in a conversation with the Independent-Journal, though talk of a strike continued to circulate among other correctional officers at the prison.

The guards were reportedly concerned about a memo by Warden Louis A. Nelson criticizing the firing of a gun by a guard in two recent prison incidents.

Several guards told the Independent-Journal that widespread discontent with 5 per cent wage increase had been smoldering and that the warden's memo had been "the last straw." One informant, who asked not to be identified because his job might be involved, said, "They've got a real bad situation there."

That opinion among the guards was divided was attested

B52s In Heaviest Viet Bombing In 6 Months

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. B52 bombers carried out their heaviest raids in six months across Vietnam in a series of missions ending today. The U.S. Command said other American warplanes went after guerrilla supply lines in Laos and Cambodia.

B52s dropped at least four million pounds of bombs in 19 raids over South Vietnam in the 48 hours ending at noon, military spokesmen said. The raids were the heaviest since the 20 missions flown Jan. 28-29.

The bombers struck at targets ranging from one mile south of the Demilitarized Zone (DMZ) dividing the two Vietnams to the U Minh Forest near the nation's southern tip.

The raids followed reports that three veteran Communist regiments had moved back into South Vietnam from Cambodia. The strikes in the north pounded buildups in sectors near the Laotian border where Allied troops engaged in heavy fighting with Communist forces three weeks ago.

Nine of the raids came in the 24 hours ended at noon today, seven of them in mountain jungle border regions of the northern provinces of Quang Tri and Thu Thien. Two others hit targets from three to four miles from the Cambodian border and 78 to 79 miles northwest of Saigon.

Field reports from Phnom Penh said a Communist attack before dawn today on a Cambodian artillery position 40 miles west-southwest of the capital had blocked Highway 4, connecting the capital with the port of Kompong Som.

Cambodian army units sent in reinforcements led by armored cars to try to reopen the highway.

The severing of the highway prevented Cambodian troops from getting reinforcements by road to the five-battalion unit moving up to assault the Kirirom Plateau, a few miles west of the roadblock.

Military officers near the scene said an armored battalion from 2nd Military Division

Election In Orange Key To Tax Feuding?

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — An ace-in-the-hole special Orange County election next month loomed today as a growing possibility to dislodge Gov. Ronald Reagan's deadlocked tax revision program.

Republicans in the legislature and top aides to Reagan reported the state Senate election quickly is taking on added significance as a possible life preserver for the embattled $1 billion proposal.

As support for the legislation slipped by another crucial vote, 13 intransigent senators showed no sign of weakening their opposition. One redoubled his.

The governor's legislation dangled a mere two votes away from the 27 needed for Senate approval. Administration supporters have been unable to recruit them.

Sen. Robert Lagomarsino, R-Ojai, Senate manager of the bills, didn't even attempt another run at passage Thursday and administration strategists openly discussed the growing possibility of shelving the program until after the Aug. 18 election in Orange County.

Two Republicans, Dennis Carpenter and Douglas Irvine, are the only candidates for the vacant seat of John G. Schmitz, R-Tustin, who was elected to Congress.

Each is regarded as a virtual certain vote for passage of the program. Carpenter is GOP state chairman and Irvine is a land developer.

Assemblyman William M. Bagley, R-San Rafael, chief sponsor of the administration's package, and George Steffs, legislative secretary to Reagan, said several "alternative possibilities" are being studied as levers to jack the program loose.

"One of the other possibilities is if in the special election Carpenter wins, we'll have a vote," Steffes said.

Bagley agreed that legislation could be shelved "for a few weeks until we get the vote from Dennis Carpenter."

Steffes said other holdout Democrats were identified as "possibilities" to switch their votes while Bagley noted there are certain legislative maneuvers to keep the administration's plan viable.

Basically, the legislation, which has passed the Assembly, proposes a massive $1 billion shift away from the property tax during the next four years to statewide taxes. Some taxes would be increased and others decreased so the entire package would result in a wash.

Reagan told reporters at a

BOMB DAMAGE TO OAKLAND HALL OF JUSTICE

Jagged windows attest to force of explosion from bomb which was planted in first-floor lobby of the Oakland Hall of Justice late yesterday, shattering at least 30 windows but causing no injuries. Damage was estimated at $20,000. The explosion, heard 18 blocks away, was "probably a pipe affair," according to police. Glass was blown across four lanes of busy Seventh Street.

East Room Painted

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The East Room of the White House, where most formal social events are held, has been repainted "a slightly warmer shade of white" with gold benches and gold draperies.

The colors are basically the same used when the room was last painted in 1965.

Belfast Slaying

BELFAST, Northern Ireland (UPI)—British troops, under attack by stones and firebombs, shot a 19-year-old boy to death and dispersed a crowd of youths with nausea gas early today in a Roman Catholic area of Belfast.

It was the first serious violence in Northern Ireland since rioting early this month in Belfast's Catholic Lower Falls Road district in which three persons died.

An army spokesman said Daniel O'Hagan, 19, of Belfast died with a gasoline bomb in his hands when shot in the neck by an army marksman after being warned three times.

Residents of the New Lodge Road area where the disturbance occurred told newsmen O'Hagan had not thrown any gasoline bombs.

Darwin Questioned

TULSA, Okla. (UPI)—Charles Darwin believed all forms of life on earth evolved from one or a few simple forms.

A Santa Barbara, Calif., biology professor said today evolutionists were beginning to give up the Darwinian concept of evolution.

"In the last letter he is known to have written," Dr. Bolton Davidheiser said, "he stated the belief that life came from non-living matter by natural means.

"Evolutionists today, and the college textbooks, teach that life developed from inanimate matter by natural means and then evolved into all known forms of living things."

20,000—No Music

MIDDLEFIELD, Conn. (UPI) —The keystone to a rock festival is supposed to be rock music — hard-driving, electric, music —hard-driving, electric, heavy, wailing vocals and 12-foot speakers. It supposedly fits with long hair, nude swimming, drugs and peace signs.

Close to 20,000 people at Powder Ridge have everything but the rock music.

The festival was banned by a Middlefield town court and upheld by the Connecticut Supreme Court. The owners of Powder Ridge — a ski resort in the winter—were arrested when festival devotees started showing up by the thousands despite the court's ruling.

The police would like them not to be there, but really aren't trying to make them leave—so far. The Connecticut Highway Patrol has sealed off the two roads into the 300-acre plot and some of the utilities have been turned off.

Nixon Hits Officials On College Troubles

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif. (UPI) — President Nixon Thursday night accused university leaders of blaming him for their own shortcomings.

The problems of dissent mushrooming into violence and students shouting obscenities at visiting speakers are "not problems for the government," Nixon said.

The President obviously was chafing under recent criticism directed at his administration by Dr. Alexander Heard, the Vanderbilt University chancellor who recently ended two months as a special liaison for the academic community with the White House.

In reports made public last week, Heard and his assistant, Dr. James Cheek of Howard University, harshly criticized the Nixon administration for failing to communicate with young people.

Showing some anger and considerable exasperation, the President chose his news conference in Los Angeles to reply.

"The problem of communicating with students and other groups is a perennial one. It existed in previous administrations. It exists in this one," Nixon said.

"However, I would only say that in order to maintain balance we have to recognize that, for university presidents and professors and other leaders to put the blame for the problems of the universities on the government primarily . . . is very shortsighted."

He pointed out that his administration was moving toward an end to the war in Vietnam and the draft and dealing with problems of the environment.

"But once all those things are done, still the emptiness and the shallowness, the superficiality that many college students find in college curricula will still be there.

". . . The problem that we have of dissent on campus not remaining a peaceful challenge, which is perfectly appropriate and defensible, but dissent becoming sometimes violent, sometimes illegal, sometimes shouting obscenities when visiting speakers come to campus, this is a problem that is not a problem for government.

Thieu Visions 50,000 GIs' Aid To 1973

SAIGON (UPI) — President Nguyen Van Thieu said Thursday night he expects 50,000 American troops to remain in South Vietnam as late as 1973 as a "residual force" to protect supply bases.

Thieu said he foresaw a continuing American presence in South Vietnam similar to that in South Korea.

The South Vietnamese president made his remarks at a dinner for a group of Western correspondents at Independence Palace.

Thieu told the correspondents he had not been informed what American plans were for troop withdrawals beyond mid-1971. President Nixon has announced plans to cut American forces in South Vietnam to 284,000 by the middle of next year. There now are about 405,000 Americans in the country.

Thieu said he would ask the Americans for arms to equip one million more members of the People's Self Defense Forces (PSDF), unpaid civilian volunteers who serve as local security forces on a part-time basis. Thieu said there now were about 500,000 PSDF members.

The PSDF would not need the most modern weapons, such as the American M16 automatic rifle, Thieu said. But he said he would like to see the PSDF armed with some bigger weapons to give them more firepower.

Thiew said he foresaw a limited war in the future that eventually would "fade away." He said he believed the operations of Communist forces would be restricted to jungle areas along South Vietnam's frontiers. He said the increased PSDF would be needed to provide security in other parts of the country.

Manson Team Attacks Linda's Use Of Drugs

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—The account of seven murders at the Tate-LaBianca homes related by state witness Linda Kasabian was the "fantasy" of a drug-impaired mind, according to defense attorneys for Charles Manson and his "family" codefendants.

Paul Fitzgerald, the chief defense counsel, took over cross examination of Mrs. Kasabian Thursday and attempted to nullify three days of testimony in which she gave an eyewitness account of the killings last Aug. 8-9.

Fitzgerald told newsmen that the defense for Manson and three female codefendants would be based in principal on the contention that Mrs. Kasabian, a 21-year-old blonde who lived with the family for one month, was not mentally competent.

Under cross-examination, Mrs. Kasabian admitted taking LSD, peyote, methedrine or "speed", mescaline, and morning glory seeds.

"My sole purpose for taking hallucinogens was for realization—God-realization," she said.

"And were you successful in realizing God?" Fitzgerald asked.

"I realized you don't have to take peyote or LSD to discover God," she replied.

Mrs. Kasabian said she had had delusions while under the influence of drugs, but insisted she did not suffer from "flashbacks" after the drug had wore off.

"Has taking LSD altered your personality?" Fitzgerald asked.

"Yes, it has altered it, I believe, to a certain extent, because it has showed me a lot about myself," she replied.

"Are you any different than you were during July and August 1969 just prior to the Tate-LaBianca slayings?" Fitzgerald questioned.

"I sure am," she replied. "I've come to a lot of conclusions about reality and right and wrong."

She appeared unflustered by Fitzgerald's steady hammering at her use of drugs and whether it had affected her perception of reality.

Earlier, she testified how on the night following the Sharon Tate slayings, Manson drove a group to the home of Leno LaBianca and tied up the grocer and his wife, then sent Leslie Van Houten, Charles Watson and Patricia Krenwinkel into the house, telling them, "Don't let them know you're going to kill them."

She said after leaving that trio at the LaBiancas, she and Manson walked hand-in-hand on the beach, she confided in him that she was pregnant, and he ordered her to slit the throat of a man she had met.

"I said, Charlie, I'm not you, I can't kill anyone," she said.

Manson ignored her, she said, and gave her a pocketknife, telling her to slit the man's throat as soon as she stepped inside the door of an unidentified man's apartment.

She deliberately knocked at the wrong door, she said, "because I didn't want to kill anyone."

Meanwhile in New Orleans, the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals today delayed for at least two more weeks the extradition from Texas to California of Watson, charged in the Tate-LaBianca murders. The court ruled Watson could not be sent back to California before Aug. 15, and gave Watson's attorney until Aug. 8 to file further appeals that would delay extradition even more.

The ruling blocked efforts by Texas Attorney General Crawford Martin, who had wanted Watson extradited immediately.

Californian Charged In Arctic Death

WASHINGTON (UPI) —A Mexican-American technician has been charged with murder in the mystery slaying of a research team commander on a remote ice island afloat in the Arctic Ocean some 300 miles from the North Pole.

Mario J. Escamilla, 32, of Santa Barbara, Calif., was arraigned Thursday before U.S. Magistrate Stanley King in suburban Alexandria, Va., in the shooting death of Bennie Lightsy of Louisville, KKY. A preliminary hearing was set for Aug. 5.

The bearded Escamilla, in handcuffs and chains, was flown to Dulles Airport Thursday along with Lightsy's body. He was accompanied by the four investigators who flew to the island Monday to try to unravel details of the death, which had remained a mystery because of poor radio communications.

Escamilla was charged under maritime law because the ice floe is considered the same as a ship at sea flying the U.S. flag. He was arraigned at Alexandria because maritime law states that men charged with crimes on the high seas will be tried at the first U.S. port of call. The federal court at Alexandria was the nearest court to Dulles Airport, the first place the plane landed on the mainland, and therefore considered its port of call.

The ice station managed to relay word of Lightsy's death July 16 to Point Barrow, Alaska, but had been unable to establish more than sporadic radio contact since then.

There are 115 farms, covering 93 acres, within the city limits of New York.

Ferry Commuter Parking Lot Urged

A committee of Golden Gate Bridge District directors yesterday recommended that the district lease a 60,000-square-foot parcel in north Sausalito for a commuter parking lot.

A feeder bus will shuttle commuters free between the lot, just north of the Army Corps of Engineers installation and the district's downtown ferry landing.

The district should lease its own buses for the feeder service until it comes up with a permanent arrangement for the service, the committee agreed.

The ferry service to San Francisco is to start sometime between Aug. 15 and Sept. 1.

The cost of the lease will be about $500 a month, the district's attorney, Thomas M. Jenkins, estimated. The monthly rent is $300, and the proposed lease also provided that the district pay a share of the property taxes.

The owner of the property is Donlon J. Arques, who owns adjacent property that could be added to the lease if the district decides to put its North Sausalito terminal at this location, Jenkins noted.

The proposed lease was for one year, but after a 35-minute closed meeting, the joint transportation and finance-auditing committee asked Jenkins to seek an option for a second year.

The district's engineer, Robert E. Shields, estimated the district's cost for clearing debris from the lot at $10,000. He said the cost of fencing, landscaping, and surfacing with gravel would be "nominal", but declined to give a figure.

Jenkins said that the monthly cost of leasing other property in the area, property which already was cleared of debris, would be considerably higher.

The property fronts on Bridgeway, and at its rear has a right-of-way across the railroad to a fishing pier owned by Arques. The foundation of the pier is in good condition, Shields said.

The committee voted, 7-2, on leasing the property, directors Joseph E. Sheeks of Belvedere and Ben K. Lerer of San Francisco dissenting. Sheeks, noting the district's naval architect will report in only six days on his long-range water transportation plan, said action should be postponed to be sure the site was in accord with the long-range plan.

Lerer agreed, scoring the committee's recommendation for what he termed "head-on spending without the proper advice."

Gen. Mgr. Dale W. Luehring assured the committee that the naval architect, Philip F. Spaulding, had approved selection of the Arques property.

Jenkins explained the closed session was to discuss the value of several properties in the area "and the possibilities of condemnation."

The committee voted unanimously to reject all four bids received last month to provide the district with buses for the Sausalito feeder service and for charter commuter clubs.

Several directors ind they wanted to avoid the i mine field sowed by a brewing conflict between two of the bidders, Marin County Transit Systems of Marin City and Community Enterprises of Petaluma.

The recommendation that the district operate its own feeder buses will have to be temporary because there is no time for competitive bidding, thus only up to $5,000 can be spent, Jenkins said.

Director Stephan C. Leonoudakis asked if the district could give the temporary lease to the Marin City company, but Jenkins objected there would be "some definite legal problems," and the idea was dropped.

Lerer, noting the company "was in the field before anyone else," said that "every possible consideration should be given to them instead of to some Johnny-come-lately."

The committee's recommendations will go before the board at 10 a.m. next Wednesday, when a special meeting is set in toll plaza offices.

Chavez Looks To Vegetable Fields

DELANO (UPI) — Cesar Chavez, who organized vineyard workers, now is turning his attention to a dispute with the Teamsters Union over who will represent farm workers in the vegetable fields.

The day after his AFL-CIO United Farm Workers Organizing Committee announced victory in its efforts to represent grape workers, Chavez Thursday announced a march to Salinas, center of the lettuce industry.

He said his followers, many of them Mexican-Americans, would trudge to Salinas by Sunday.

The Teamsters, stealing a march, previously announced reaching agreement with the growers of lettuce, celery, carrots and other crops in both the Salinas and Santa Maria vaileys.

Nine Boys, Girl Enlist In Navy

Ten Marin youths including a girl enlisted in the navy in July at the Navy Recruiting Station in San Rafael, according to Recruiter Jarrell E. Mitcham.

Enlisting in the WAVES was Annette Crawley of 125 Edward Avenue, Santa Venetia, who is in training at the Naval Training Center, Bainbridge, Md.

The nine men who enlisted and were sent to the Naval Training Center in San Diego are: Corte Madera — Ronald Barber of 10 Tamal Vista Boulevard; Novato — Terry Nelson of 10 Gertrude Lane and Allen McHugh of 37 Baca Vista; Paradise Cay — William Gray of 8 St. Lucia Place; Point Reyes Station — Larry Ault; San Rafael — George Wells of 1450 Lincoln Avenue and David Morey of 413 Jewell Street; Santa Venetia — Dennis Baumann of 301 Vendola Drive and Daniel Dowell of 137 Vendola Drive.

Bridge District May Aid Struggling Bus

The deficit-plagued Marin County Transit System, operator of the Tiburon feeder bus service, was offered a tentative helping hand yesterday by a committee of Golden Gate Bridge District directors.

The joint transportation and finance-auditing committee, at the urging of Marin County Supervisor Michael Wornum, recommended that the bridge district seek a joint powers agreement with the Marin County Transit District to subsidize the struggling company.

No figures were mentioned, but Wornum told newsmen after the meeting he hoped the district could come up with $4,000 a month.

This is the same amount the Marin City-based company now gets from the transit district, but that subsidy is due to expire on Aug. 15. It has been extended previously several times.

Wornum said that the transit district, unlike the bridge district, was not required to seek competitive bids before paying the subsidy.

He said the subsidy to the company "would keep them going."

The district's attorney, Thomas M. Jenkins, said that the subsidy would be legal to the extent that it was for intercounty transit servict. Most of the company's service fits the requirement since it is part of the ferry service to San Francisco.

Director Joseph E. Sheeks of Belvedere noted, however, that the district's policy was to spend its money only when such a feeder service was to a system owned or operated by the district. A private carrier operates the Tiburon Ferry.

Wornum covered this point by winning committee approval of his recommendation that "we make any alterations in our policies to accomplish this" subsidy.

Sheeks strongly criticized the City of Tiburon for not doing more to encourage use of the feeder bus. He objected that the city recently blacktopped downtown road shoulders, thus encouraging more commuters to park downtown.

He said that the city should be made a part of the proposed joint power agreement, and be "required to limit all-day parking."

The committee's recommendation was voted, 7-2, directors Lowell Edington of Napa County and San Francisco Supervisor Peter Tamaras dissenting.

Edington cautioned against "entanglements" that could deprive the bridge district of the control it should have over its transit operations.

The recommendations will go to the full board at 10 a.m. next Wednesday.

Bolinas Panel To Air Sewage System Study

A report from an engineering firm on the feasibiltiy of the proposed sewage disposal system for Bolinas will be discussed today at a special meeting of the Bolinas Public Utility District board at 7:30 p.m. in the district office.

Clerk Jane Boyer said the report will be given by representatives of the engineering science division of Bradberry and Associates of Los Altos. She said the board will also discuss the site of the proposed treatment plant and other facets of the disposal system which are contingent on the report.

Bel Aire Panel To Hire Private Consultant To Study Flood Plans

A master plan for a $560,000 drainage project developed by Marin's public works department for the flood-prone Bel Aire area of the Tiburon Peninsula is now said to contain all the problems but few solutions to winter flooding.

The plan, which the county previously thought had been approved, came under question Wednesday night by residents and board members of the Bel Aire Flood Control Zone.

Claiming the plan contained questions yet to be answered, the zone's advisory board shrugged off a public works department recommendation of accpetance and voted 3-to-1 to hire a private consultant to study the plan.

Charles E. Murphy, county flood control engineer, reported yesterday that board chairman Stanley G. Bennett cast the lone dissenting ballot saying hiring a consultant "would be a waste of money." James D. Hougland, the fifth member on the board was absent.

Murphy in April told the Independent-Journal the master plan had been approved during the April 21 meeting. Yesterday he said three members of the board had since sent him letters stating such approval had not been given.

He attributed the mixup to the advisory board's approval of accumulating reserve funds for the project through a property tax rate increase.

(In June, the board requested the board of supervisors to increase the flood zone's tax rate from 8.5 cents to 50 cents per $100 assessed valuation. Supervisors agreed and this year's budget now stands at $27,500 with about $25,000 going into the reserve fund.)

The plan, which has been in the works for more than a year at a cost to Bel Aire residents of about $2,500, also came under question as to the required expenditure of more than a half-million dollars to provide new drainage culverts and enlarge existing facilities.

Board member Howard Stenzel told the I-J yesterday he voted in favor of the consultant because he wants an outside professional opinion on the plan.

Calling the plan, lacking in specifics, Stenzel said he was bothered by "so large an expenditure for such a small area in order to come up with a workable plan to keep us from flooding."

Phoebe H. Brown, who also voted in favor of hiring the consultant, charged that the plan was "not accurate or precise" and added that the plan simply outlines what the problems are.

Mrs. Brown said that Donald H. Frost, director of the county's public works department told the board the plan had to be executed as a package. "We can't do it (flood control) a little at a time to alleviate the immediate problems with this plan," she said.

Another observer at the meeting, Roger A. Danford, president of the Bel Aire Homeowners Association, levelled the same criticism.

"The plan is broken down into three phases," he pointed out, "but Frost said the implementation of one phase without the others would be worthless."

He added that Frost said construction could not begin until the zone had secured the needed funds.

"The county had recommended we increase our taxes for reserves of $50,000 a year, but even at that and a minimum construction cost increase of 5 per cent a year we could never catch up," he added.

Other residents charged that the county is contributing to the flooding of the area in the meantime by allowing continued development of the higher areas in Bel Aire along Blackfield and Circle drives.

They claimed that during the heavy December rains, about 35 homes sustained flood damage, adding the damage was partly caused by new development trailings clogging existing drainage gutters.

Pope Firm On Dutch Celibacy

UTRECHT, The Netherlands (UPI)—Pope Paul VI has rejected an appeal by Dutch bishops to allow married men to be ordained priests, the bishops said today in a communique.

The communique said the Pope told Cardinal Bernard J. Alfrink, Roman Catholic primate of the Netherlands, in two audiences earlier this month, "The reasons for maintaining the traditional tie between priesthood and celibacy of the Latin church are also valid today — perhaps even more than in other times."

Alfrink told the Pope that Dutch bishops had agreed it "would serve the interests of the church" if the church allowed married men to be ordained priests. Alfrink also recommended that in special cases priests who had married should be allowed to remain priests.

The communique said Alfrink expressed concern about keeping a sufficient number of priests in the church in the Netherlands.

The communique said, "For the Pope this is a well considered conviction of conscience which he knows to be supported by the bishops in general, even though he knows there are bishops having a different opinion."

Girl, 17, Tells Of Brodnik Killing

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Another witness to the shooting of patrolman Joseph Brodnik has testified the officer was killed in a fight with a group of youths on a Mission District street.

On the stand Thursday was Elizabeth Kossowski, 16, daughter by a previous marriage of Mrs. Irene Jarzyna, 45, who preceded her in court and gave a similar story. Both said they watched from across a street.

The girl said Brodnik and his partner, Paul McGoran, stopped the youths and an argument resulted in a fight as the youths jumped McGoran and Brodnik rushed to his partner's aid.

"One (of the boys) pulled out and he had a gun in his hand and his arm was stretched and he shot one fire," the girl declared.

Disputes Reduce Churches' Membership And Influence

The National Observer did a roundup recently which showed most American churches are losing both members and money.

According to the National Observer's findings, the Latter-day Saints (Mormon) and Southern Baptist churches are the only major sects which continue to gain in membership. The Roman Catholic Church last year reported a decline in its American membership for the first time in history.

Losses in income are greater than losses in membership, the survey found. The National Council of Churches, which includes leading Protestant faiths, planned to cut its budget from $19 million last fiscal year to $14 million this year. The American Baptist Convention was planning a $2 million reduction from its $16 million budget of last year. Other denominations also reported cuts.

THE DECLINES in money and membership are accompanied by disputes within the churches as to their proper roles. Episcopal and Presbyterian churches have seen a good deal of infighting in late years as to how far the clergy should go as "social activists," and where the role of emissary of Christ leaves off and that of partisan politician begins.

A close-to-home example of the current schisms is to be found in the San Francisco Catholic Archdiocese. Members, and even clergy, are divided over the participation by priests — with diocesan blessing — in demonstrations in behalf of Cesar Chavez's United Farm Workers Organizing Committee. Most of the farm workers whom Chavez seeks to bring under the banner of his union are Catholics.

The question, hotly debated in church circles, is whether the priesthood should become organizers for him.

THE DIFFICULTY that churches encounter when their clergy assume "social activist" roles is that those members who hold opposite beliefs in the secular dispute involved are then hard put to accept the clergy's role as teachers for Christ.

Columnist James Kilpatrick, commenting on the National Observer's findings, wrote recently:

"Of course religion must be relevant, but relevant to what? Relevant to Vietnam? To the draft? To the demands of black militants for reparations?"

He then suggested that there is a greater relevance — relevance to God.

INTERESTINGLY ENOUGH, the intra-church disputes that divide the clergy and drive away parishioners generally arise because churchmen are trying to solve someone else's disputes. They are injecting themselves into foreign policy, or into economics, or politics — in none of which does their training for the cloth particulary qualify them.

Perhaps their own disputes would vanish, and they would then be better able to bring to bear the moral suasion that might prevent some of the injustices that disturb them, if they were to heed the words spoken 180 years ago by Edmund Burke when he denounced a preacher for using the pulpit to support the French Revolution. Said Burke:

"Surely the church is a place where one day's truce ought to be allowed to the dissensions and animosities of mankind."

lossom Time

Late July and early August cannot e compared with April in Marin for umbers of blossoms. But they do not o badly this season, thank you.

In our own relatively poor garden, e have the following plants blooming ow: fuchsias, honeysuckle, roses, peunias, love-in-the-mist, lily-of-the-Nile, scarlet-runner beans, geraniums, Shasta daisies, nasturtiums, English daisies, alyssum, gladioli, hydrangeas, zinnias, feverfew, fragrant tobacco plant, and even some surviving blooms of veronica, a spring flower.

Marin is indeed marvelous.

Two-Year Legislative Session Offers Some Advantages

By JACK COOPER

SACRAMENTO (CNS) — he legislative reorganization an that passed the Assembly d is now before the Senate ounds like a step in the right rection.

You will have your chance vote on it next November, if e Senate follows the Assemy's lead and gives it the necsary two-thirds vote.

It is progressing through the gislature as Assembly Conitutional Amendment 2, and as introduced by Assembly peaker Bob Monagan, who is ell versed in the inefficienes of the present system.

THE PLAN CALLS for vo-year instead of one-year sessions. This is the way it is done in Congress.

A worthy piece of legislation introduced in the Assembly may not be enacted in the Senate by the time the session ends and vice versa, and all bills die, under the present system.

Keeping the session alive for two years would allow time for proper consideration of each house's legislation by the other. It would also save the cost of reprinting and reintroducing such bills in a second session.

The assembly believes this would save it $100,000 a year in printing bills alone.

THE PLAN in ACA 2 would also eliminate the five-day veto session, which might as well be eliminated since it has never been used.

It was designed to take vengeance on Pat Brown for his pocket vetoes, but it took effect after Pat left office.

The other major change would allow the Legislature to call itself into special session, something that only the governor can do at present.

There are times when some tired newsmen wistfully wish the governor could make 'em all go home, but if the separation of powers is to be observed, the power to convene seems essential.

One of the way English kings of old used to keep Parliament out of their hair was to simply not call 'em into session. Or to dissolve the session if it seemed to be getting out of hand.

IT WOULD BE a nice change, if during those two-year sessions there could be devised some requirement that legislative committees take definite action on a bill, one way or the other.

It has become harder and harder around here to find whether a bill is dead or merely in a coma. Part of this to avoid hurting a fellow lawmaker by killing his bill outright.

This is impossible to cure, of course, since the rule of 41 in the Assembly or 21 in the Senate says if you have the votes, you can do ANYTHING. And we've seen a lot of bills rise Lazarus-like from the dead to everyone's astonishment.

A two-year session is going to be pretty hair-raising for any organization that wants to kill a bill. At least now the agony ends when the Legislature adjourns sine die.

WHAT OUR READERS SAY

Hospitality Found In Hospital Stay

I recently came home from Ross General Hospital, where I went due to a heart condition. It was the tenth hospitalization since 1955. The ninth was in 1967. While there this time I was deeply touched to see the same concern, devotion, understanding and sincere kindness in the whole staff, from doctors all the way down, as it was in 1955.

True — it is a job — but how can we ever repay this sincere and deep concern for each patient? It truly is a "hospitality" hospital — all the way.

To those who may be going into the hospital for the first time, have no apprehension — the care and consideration is the best, with all those fine modern medical improvements, I know!

Public Employee Not Open Book

Bravo! Bravo! Cheers for the North Marin County Water District. I support their stand against providing the press or any individual the names and salaries of their employees. To do so compares with your going out and asking your neighbor about his personal financial matters.

A "public employee" is not an open book for the public or the press to delve into at will and reveal whatever financial or personal bits of information they desire.

A "public employee" is a worker who labors, indirectly, for the people of a community and for a wage within which the limits have been set.

District Seeks To Raise Interest

The Mill Valley School District has called for a bond election to be held on Sept. 15, 1970. Voters will be asked to increase from 5 per cent to 7 per cent the interest rate that may be paid on $760,000 of unsold school construction bonds.

This letter is written to urge a yes vote. By way of background it should be noted that $3,500,000 school construction bonds were authorized to be sold by the voters of the school district in 1967. $760,000 remain to be sold. The school district had planned to sell $500,000 worth of bonds in April, 1970, and $260,000 in April of 1971, but obstacles were encountered: Customary purchasers felt that they could no longer continue to purchase 5 per cent bonds.

When the voters authorized the district to sell $3.5 million in bonds in 1967, the maximum interest public agencies could pay was 5 per cent. Under recent legislation, 7 per cent is permitted, but voters must authorize the higher rate.

The moneys are essential to the construction of Mill Valley's long-awaited middle school, lands for which have already been acquired and plans for which are completed. Since these are replacement bonds only, the effect on the tax rate will be negligible. Everyone's support is necessary to make sure of the passage of this vital measure on Sept. 15.

Chamber's Role In Promoting City

As president of the Corte Madera Chamber of Commerie, I wish to commend your editorial of July 18, entitled, "Growth For Growth's Sake No Longer Good Enough."

It has long been the philosophy of the Corte Madera Chamber of Commerce that its function is to aid in the development of the Town of Corte Madera as a "whole" community as opposed to its polarization into a "business" community and a "residential" community.

The chamber implements this belief through open board meetings once a month which any interested person may attend, with monthly invitations sent to homeowner associations and town officials. Open communication has led to mutual understanding and trust.

The chamber sponsors activities for the entire citizenry such as candidates' nights, a July 4th celebration, a Christmas carol program, and an Easter egg hunt.

The chamber also takes an active interest both locally and on a county-wide basis in legislative matters which will affect our entire community.

Through our diverse activities, the chamber hopes to create an atmosphere of unity in the Town of Corte Madera in order that existing businesses will thrive to the benefit of the individual and the town as a whole . . .

Growth for growth's sake is not only "no longer good enough" — it is no longer good business.

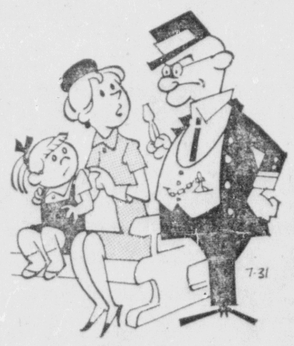
Bumping along on the Long Island Railroad from Babylon to Penn Station, a mother tried valiantly to convince the conductor that the daughter accompanying her was under 12 years of age, and therefore entitled to ride free. "Better hurry and convince him," advised a bitter commuter in the seat behind her. "The way they run this line, your kid may be over 13 by the time we get to New York!"

When a veteran hunter had his hat shot off at the opening of the deer hunting season, he wisely designed for himself a bold black-and-white striped chapeau that he insisted could not puzzle even the rawest amateurs who now were joining in the sport. He was wrong, however. The very day he donned the new hat, a woman hunter plugged him in the back of the neck.



"You were standing less than a hundred yards from this poor man," the investigating officer told the weeping lady. "How could you possibly have mistaken him for a deer?"

"But I didn't," she answered indignantly. "I thought he was a zebra."

THE DRUMMONDS

Death Of 'Southern Strategy' May Be To Nixon's Advantage

By ROSCOE and GEOFFREY DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — The most significant political event since the 1968 election is the widening breach between President Nixon and Sen. Strom Thurmond, his foremost southern supporter.

It was Senator Thurmond who clinched the nomination for Richard Nixon at Miami Beach. Now he is excoriating Nixon for his actions to complete school desegregation. And he is warning that the people who gave him the presidency "also can take it away."

THIS IS a large-size political explosion which bears on the future of Richard Nixon and the future of the Republican party.

Its effects may well be quite different from what they appear to be.

The Thurmond attack is likely to turn out to be a political asset.

While Thurmond's support certainly helped get Nixon the nomination, the withdrawal of his support may well strengthen Nixon's prospects for reelection in 1972.

The reason: A "southern strategy" —primarily a sectional policy on desegregation —was workable for a nonincumbent presidential candidate, but it is unworkable for a President in office. The kind of southern strategy which might have held Thurmond as an ally was making it increasingly difficult for President Nixon to govern the country, as he was discovering.

THERE WERE TWO threads to the Nixon southern strategy. He rightly argued that Democratic presidents had made the South a kind of "whipping boy" for political advantage and he avowed to end that. He also tried to give the South more time, more leeway, more flexibility in desegregating the public schools, and at this point he was brought up short by the Supreme Court.

The court ruled that 16 years was long enough to wait for some states to comply with the law. It decided that 16 years of "all deliberate speed" which had in the main worked out as all deliberate slowness must come to an end. It was not the Warren Court which made this decision, it was the Burger Court, and the verdict was: Desegregate now.

Understandably, Senator Thurmond didn't like it.

He hoped Mr. Nixon would forget the Supreme Court ruling. But that was something the President couldn't and wouldn't do. When it came to choosing between keeping Thurmond as an ally and discharging his duty to execute the law of the land, there was no doubt what President Nixon would do.

THURMOND'S REAL gripe isn't that Nixon is discriminating against the South. His real complaint, which he can't bring himself to put candidly, is that Nixon is treating the South the same as the whole country — and Thurmond doesn't like it.

But President Nixon had no other choice if he were to govern the nation evenhandedly.

He is faithfully carrying out the verdict of the Supreme Court.

He is supporting the decision of the Internal Revenue Service that private schools which discriminate against Negroes will lose their tax-exempt status.

Contrary to Thurmond's contention, this does not mean that people are denied freedom of choice to support any kind of private schools they prefer; it simply means that federal funds — through tax exemption — will not be available to promote illegal discrimination.

THE VIEW that Nixon's loss of Thurmond will in the end prove to be Nixon's gain rests on these propositions:

That most southerners are ready to accept desegregation of the public schools as inevitable, if not welcome.

That many southern voters will not be disposed to punish Nixon for carrying out the law of the land.

That some defections in the South will be more than offset by new support elsewhere in the nation.

That by 1972 it will be evident that Richard Nixon will be more acceptable to many southern voters than any Democratic alternative.

INSIDE WASHINGTON

Senator Probes Storage Of A-Weapons Abroad

By ROBERT S. ALLEN and JOHN A. GOLDSMITH

WASHINGTON — Storage of nuclear weapons by the United States at bases around the world may be the next target of Pentagon critics on Capitol Hill.

The ingredients for a major controversy have been simmering for several weeks. So far, several congressional committees have become involved, along with the Pentagon and the State Department.

Sen. Stuart Symington, D-Mo., is the prime mover in an effort to learn more about how and where nuclear weapons are stored. He is acting as chairman of a Foreign Relations Subcommittee on U.S. Security Agreements and Commitments Abroad.

Symington's interest in nuclear weapons storage surfaced briefly about a week ago when that subcommittee made public previously classified hearings on U.S. security arrangements on Taiwan. Symington had asked Maj. Gen. Richard G. Ciccolella, former chief U.S. military adviser there, about nuclear weapons maintained on Taiwan. Symington expressed disbelief when Ciccolella testified that he didn't really know about nuclear weapons.

LESS THAN a week after his exchange with General Ciccolella, Symington pressed for weapons storage data in another forum, a closed-door session of the Senate Military Appropriations Subcommittee.

According to our informants, Symington sought information from Vice Adm. Lloyd M. Mustin, director of the Defense Atomic Support Agency, a seldom publicized Pentagon office which studies the effects of nuclear weapon blasts and manages the nuclear weapons stockpile.

In the course of his questioning Symington asked Mustin to supply for the record a list of nations where the U.S. has nuclear weapons. The upshot of his request, we are told, was that the subcommittee staff and official stenographer were banished from the already secret hearing room so that the information could be supplied — but off the record.

The senator is reported to have stated that unusual storage arrangements for nuclear weapons in foreign nations are common knowledge, except in the United States. Symington is understood to have complained that the U.S. maintains a nuclear weapons stockpile in one nation where the government can be overthrown at any time. He asked what would happen to the weapons if that should happen.

TWO WEEKS after the discussion with Mustin, Symington arranged for a Foreign Relations Committee briefing by State Department officials on nuclear weapons deployed in foreign nations. That session was also held under extreme security precautions.

The question now is whether Symington, and his Foreign Relations Subcommittee, will seek to get the weapons data on his subcommittee record.

Under the Atomic Energy Act it is still another congressional committee — the Joint Committee on Atomic Energy — which must be kept fully and completely informed on all atomic energy matters. That committee keeps the weapons program and the weapon stockpile under continuing review.

Flag Guardian Scores Twice To Better Sausalito's Banners

Sausalito's downtown branch of the Bank of America is sporting a bright, new American flag these days, to replace the worn and rather faded national symbol it had been flying for several months.

Credit for the patriotic improvement probably belongs to Bill Thompson, Sausalito's unofficial "flag guardian." Thompson, whose son owns a tobacco shop on the same street as the bank, was the man arrested last winter after a scuffle which occured when he took down the bank's flag because it had been flying all night.

He says he had watched the bank's banner deteriorate and finally sent a heated telegram to a B of A vice president in San Francisco, trying to arouse a bit of guilt around offices of the mighty financial institution.

The tactic apparently worked, because the bank had a new flag up within days.

Thompson is also responsible for the city's finally taking down its California state flag which had flown night and day for several months because its flagpole had a broken cable.

Ired by the tattered, disreputable condition of the bear flag, he fired off a telegram to Governor Reagan and a missive to the city council.

And the old flag, which at least one city official had said was impossible to remove without hiring a pole climber, was down a few days later.

AN I-J REPORTER'S brother, stationed in Saigon in a relatively safe desk job, won a really desirable prize recently in a "Soldier of the Week" contest sponsored by his company.

As the winner, he was privileged to spend three days with an air cavalry helicopter support mission somewhere in the jungles. The second prize winner was even more fortunate: he was allowed to spend two days in the field with the infantry. The company commander is apparently the one who thought up the prizes and everybody loves a C.O. with a good sense of humor.

It is rumored a number of the lucky winners have offered to donate their prizes to charity, perhaps one which benefits high army officers.

SALLY STANFORD is again talking about putting her life story on film, this time with an independent film company from New Orleans. Producer Jack H. Barry, who was entranced by Miss Stanford's witty autobiography, "Lady of the House," is working hard to get her to sign an option on the book, but the lady in question is cautious. Barry said he would like to get Jill St. John to play the leading role. "She's not as pretty as Sally," he said, "but we'll fix her up."

Miss Stanford says she wants to make sure any film about her past is in good taste and a first-class production, "just as my life was."

Post Office Is Seeking New Site In Marshall

I-J Special Report

WASHINGTON — A new post office will be built in Marshall, Postmaster General Winton M. Blount has announced.

Blount said his office is seeking a 3,000-square-foot site on which to build the new facility under the lease-construction program.

Under the program, a successful bidder will purchase a predesignated site, construct the building to post office requirements and lease the structure to the department.

The new structure is to provide 640 square feet of interior space and 80 square feet of platform space. Space for parking and maneuvering of postal vehicles will cover 2,216 square feet.

The present post office, located Shoreline Highway near the Marshall Hotel, has only 110 square feet of interior space and does not provide platform or parking areas. It will be vacated when the new structure is built.

Council For Civic Affairs Asks More Time On Budget

More time should be provided during the annual county budget sessions to allow citizen groups to make recommendations on cutting or adding, the Marin Council for Civic Affairs has declared.

George Ellman, council chairman, said his group met with County Administrator Alan Bruce Wednesday night and complained that budget items are presented and decided in such a brief time that citizens have little or no time to research and recommend.

"Mr. Bruce defended the present system very well, and we reached no conclusions," said Ellman.

Council members also discussed the wisdom of endorsing candidates in local elections. Ellman said the consensus is that the organization will continue to look at each issue and candidate as they come up and decide whether or not to endorse.

Betty Forry, acting chairman of the subcommittee on mental health, reported her group will delve into the mental health administrative structure to see if any recommendations can be made for improvement.

The council wll skip the August meeting because many members will be on vacation. Next regular meeting will be held at 8 p.m. Sept. 30 at the Civic Center.

Psychiatrist To Continue Work

Greenbrae Psychiatrist Dr. Edward E. Shev, who has been doing psychiatric screening for Novato Police Recruitment for the past two years, will begin twice-a-month confepences with the Novato police in August, City Mgr. Charles A. Brown has reported.

Dates and times of the sessions have not been set as Dr. Shev is on vacation, according to Brown.

The psychiatrist was interviewed by the council during the budget sessions on the value of such sessions. The council budgeted $160 per month for the sessions for 10 months, Brown said.

Plans Denied For Gate, Chain Fence

The Larkspur Planning Commission denied plans submitted Tuesday by the Tamalpais retirement residence for gates and chain link fence around the center.

The Independent-Journal erroneously reported Wednesday that the plans had been approved.

COUNTY COMMENT

By WILLIAM D. (BILL) FUSSELMAN

More On Cities-County Overlap; Are We One People, Or Two?

Fusselman

When I sat down to write the column last week I had intended to comment on something entirely different from the copy I did send in. Tuesday's I-J the story, short as it was, "Relocation of Sheriff's Cost Is Studied," appeared to be timely and important so I just started to write without any preparation.

Upon reading the column in the Friday issue it seemed that I should have developed the picture for more depth. So here goes and again without prejudice.

You will recall that I said that this was no time to be splitting hairs as to who benefits by law enforcement and the protection of the individual, and gave examples of activities, accepted without question as to which area — incorporated or unincorporated — footed the bill. The following, I believe, gives that view of greater depth.

THE SUPERVISORS, themselves, have no legislative authority in the cities. The city councils pass the ordinances there.

It follows then that departof supervisors have no greater power than the parent organization.

Here are the dollar costs of that situation which are paid by the taxpayers in both areas — 63 or more per cent by those in the cities and 37 or less by those in the other areas of the county, without protest by the city councils:

	$ 169,080
Administrator's office (Admin. controlled)	140,025
Personnel Dept.	98,728
Purchasing Dept.	48,483
Planning Dept.	410,344
Parks and Recreation	450,939
Total	$1,317,599

Parks and Recreation anticipate that $21,710 will be received in entrance fees. Also, purchasing will service all county offices, some of which will serve both areas to an undetermined amount, dollarwise.

IN GENERAL TERMS population and assessed valuations work out the same percentages (63-37). It's therefore reasonable to assume operational costs of county offices, other than those listed above, will follow. A computer could prove this to be wrong.

Again the question is simply are we one people or are we two groups foreign to each other?

The underlying trouble is that our taxpayers are the victims of those who while temporarily in power insisted on setting all operations up in the grand manner. No consideration was given to the sum total.

Things have followed the same course as ethyl gasoline — no thought of the side effects. You are stuck though. A change of formula can't help much.

DINING OUT AND INNS

By HARRY CRAFT

Like British Pub-Type Of Place? Try San Rafael's Mayflower Inn

If you like the British pub type of place, you will enjoy a new one called The Mayflower Inn that opened this week at 1533 Fourth Street, San Rafael (next to Cain's Tire).

The interior and also the exterior are newly redecorated and spanking neat and clean. The Mayflower Inn should provide enough authentic atmosphere, with three of its four principals from the British Isles and speaking with appropriate accents. Dave Maxwell of Corte Madera is from Newcastle-on-Tyne. His wife Rose is from Glasgow, Scotland, about one degree further north. She has been in this country about 14 years. Stanley Brassey is a Liverpool man — but his wife Virginia is American. They live in Daly City.

This is a first restaurant venture for all four, but they have some first-hand knowledge of the kind of food they want to serve. Dave and Stanley are marine architects, which may or may not account for the tables being converted hatch covers and a few other decorative touches.

Fare will be on the side of steak and kidney pie ($1.95 with green peas and chips), sausage rolls, pork pies — and eventually Cornish pasties. Unless there is a call for them, I believe the owners will skip serving fish and chips. Food is also prepared to take out.

The Mayflower will be open seven days a week, at least at the start. Hours of service are from 11:30 a.m. to midnight and as late as 2 a.m. Friday and Saturday nights. There is a wine and beer license and an assortment of imported beers and ales are served. Stocks of California wines will be added. There is a small counter and bar at the rear of the dining room, with dartboards on the wall.

As with all new restaurants, there are likely to be "opening pains" and the Brasseys and Maxwells will need a few days to get into their full stride. But I am sure they will.

STARTING TONIGHT, and continuing for an indefinite period, Bernard's Executive Lounge in downtown San Rafael will feature dancing to a three-piece combo on both Friday and Saturday nights from 9:30 until closing.

SABELLA'S IN MARIN has decorated the back patio of the restaurant with early lamp posts and huge wine presses as planter boxes — another one of Lou Sabella's ideas.

Now on the tantalizing and extensive seafood menu here are tagliarini and clams and calamari served Sicilian style. But the star of the show is still Maine lobster broiled in butter. Lobsters are flown in daily from the East Coast and you can select the one you want from a live tank. Or — as a second choice you can order Australian baby lobster tails. And also there is the surf and turf to consider. Ask for it if it's not on the menu.

Jimmy Diamond entertains in the cocktail lounge Sunday and Monday nights.

ORGANIST BILL McCOY returns to Lin Fa Gardens in the Northgate Shopping Center tonight, replacing Gary Schneider. Bill is booked for a continuing series of Friday and Saturday night appearances in the Mai Tai Lounge. It has been four years or more, I think, since he was here last — except for playing at several of Ethel Barrie's anniversary celebration programs.

WEST MARIN RESIDENTS or those spending a day at Drake's Beach, hiking the Bear Valley trails or watching the annual Hog Island marathon of El Toros on Tomales Bay sponsored by the Inverness Yacht Club on Saturday, Aug. 8, can wind up their excursions with a "sea and land feast" on the grounds of St. Columba's Episcopal Church in Inverness.

BILL McCOY
Returns to Lin Fa

The church members are offering a traditional "down east" oyster roast with sea offerings from the region, barbecued chicken and a number of accessories at $3.75 for all you can eat — $2 for children under 12. Service is from 4 to 8 p.m. But there's also lunch from 12:30 to 3 p.m. with hot dogs, sandwiches and soft drinks.

A liturgical art show will be held at the same time inside St. Columba's Church featuring a collection of vestments, copes and mitres designed by Anna Crosley of San Francisco.

IT'S NOT OFTEN these days that you will find a lowering of food prices when you're dining out — but in the case of caterer-vintner Fred Cherry it seems to amount to that.

Since his food activities are now virtually all on the catering side, handling group affairs, he finds he can charge less than when he operated the Cafe Bon Vin in San Anselmo as a regular restaurant. This comes, he says, from less overhead, prepaid reservations and larger scale buying.

This catering business of his (in which he insists that the wine be given equal billing with the food) is definitely moving out of county, and there's no telling where it may end. He has already handled several arrangements in other parts of the Bay Area, but his latest booking is for a party of 50 — down in Pasadena.

THERE'S A NEW NAME among Marin restaurants — but it does not apply to a new opening, nor even a recent change of ownership.

This is The Rafters in Corte Madera — now used by the Gene Compton Corp. for its food and bar activities at the Edgewater Inn Motel. The general idea is to indicate that it is a separate operation from the motel — and also that it has nothing to do with the former ownership under the Bob's of Marin label which ended several months ago.

Alfred Kendlinger is the manager here. Frits Verburg, former owner of L'Europe, is the chef.

REMODELING WORK in the foyer and dining room at Ramona's in San Rafael has been delayed beyond all expectations, although new equipment is beginning to appear in the newly enlarged kitchen.

But until everything is completed. Ramona Stallings vows she will continue to remain closed at lunch time. Meanwhile, dinners are being served as usual — and usually to a packed house.

COUNTING RAMONA'S, I find that nine Mexican restaurants seem to be flourishing in Marin County.

In San Rafael there are also Maria's Pueblo (which is the oldest in the county) and Gonzales Hacienda. Add to these El Rebozo at the Fireside Motel in southern Marin; El Borro in Tiburon; the recently opened Tio Mario's at 300 Valley Street, Sausalito (about a block south of Valhalla); Senor Alfredo's Mexican Restaurant in San Anselmo; Juarez — also in San Anselmo; and El Toreador at 5929 Redwood Highway in Ignacio.

And there soon may be one more if the Frank Rodarte family finds just the right place for one. The Rodartes, you may remember, formerly were preparing dinner at the Redwood Restaurant in Mill Valley when it was owned by Lou Gorman. They are still looking for a good location.

ZIM'S NEW RESTAURANT in the Woodlands Shopping Center, Kentfield has a party room for receptions and meetings that will seat 60 persons. Make arrangements for its use with manager Jene Jackson.

The Marin County Committee for Wilson Riles has invited artists to contribute their work for a fund-raising art auction on Sept. 18. The location of the auction has not been set.

Riles is seeking to unseat Max Rafferty as state superintendent of public instruction.

Marin Scouts In New Mexico

Eleven Scouts and Explorers and an adult leader from the Marin Council of the Boy Scouts of America are participating in the "University of the Great Outdoors" at Philmont Scout Ranch and Explorer Base near Cimarron, N.M.

The group is spending 12 days hiking mountain trails on the 214-square mile ranch under the direction of their leader, Douglas McVae of 629 Blackberry Lane, Marinwood.

From Troop 94 in San Rafael are Mike Kinney, Bruce and Lane McVae and Dave Tirpack. Also from San Rafael are John Blecka of Post 94; Mark Arrington of Troop 76; David Hall, Steve Murray and John Munson, all from Troop 38, and Dave Mobraten of Troop 55. Carlo Parchini is from Troop 6 in San Anselmo.

Hits Gas Dumping

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (UPI) —Gov. Claude Kirk demanded Thursday the Army abandon any immediate plans to dump 2,675 tons of nerve gas into the Atlantic Ocean off the southeastern seaboard.

And Rep. Paul Rogers,D-Fla., asked the Pentagon to delay shipping the gas across the South, a move scheduled for Aug. 10, because of the "potential of disaster."

Kirk and Rogers, however, appeared to be lodging the only major official objections in Dixie to the plan to dispose of the World War II nerve gas by dumping it 282 miles east of Cape, Kennedy, Fla.

Prisoner Dies In San Quentin Gym

A San Quentin inmate died today while working out in the prison's gymnasium.

Robert C. Porter, 28, collapsed about 9:30 a.m. while chinning himself, Associate Warden James W.L. Park said today. He was dead on arrival at the prison hospital, Park said.

The prison doctor found no signs of violence on the body, according to Park, and the case has been referred to the Marin County Coroner's office for an inquiry into the cause of death.

Porter had been at San Quentin since April 30. He was serving a six months to 10 years term for a Los Angeles County conviction of receiving stolen property, and a five years to life sentence for a second degree murder conviction in San Bernardino County.

SACRAMENTO ROUNDUP

Compromise Hopeful In Medi-Cal Policy

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The Reagan Administration's top health care official expressed hope today a compromise will be worked out "in the next few days" to allow court-delayed Medi-Cal revisions to take effect.

Dr. Earl Brian referred to Superior Court Judge Irving H. Perluss' decision Thursday to delay the effective date of the new Medi-Cal regulations by a month to Sept. 1.

Perluss said a section of the regulations limiting the income ofa Medi-Cal recipient appears to violate federal law. He asked the federal Department of Health, Education and Welfare to advise him on the question of a hearing Aug. 20 after which he will decide whether to allow the changes.

Brian, director of the Health Care Services Department which administers the huge Medi-Cal program, said he was "hopeful we can find a solution to the disputed section of the regulations in the next few days."

The regulations, which would have taken effect Saturday, would require 50,000 medically indigent persons to pay a certain amount of money for medical services before becoming eligible for Medi-Cal.

The new rules would tighten restrictions on ownership of personal property and real property and lower income ceilings. They would affect the 200,000 persons in the medically indigent category, those not on welfare but eligible for certain Medi-Cal benefits.

The disputed section would set a $150 monthly income ceiling on persons eligible for Medi-Cal. Under federal regulations, persons are allowed to receive $158 a month and still be eligible for Medi-Cal.

CREDENTIAL

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan has signed a bill to streamline the state's teacher credentialing system set up nine years ago.

The bill would also reduce the number of "how-to-teach" courses required of student teachers.

Reagan at a formal bill-signed ceremony in his office Thursday called the measure "one of the most fundamental and far-reaching breakthroughs in the history of California's public school system."

Last year the governor vetoed a similar measure but later set up a special study commission on education reform to help write this year's legislation carried by Assemblyman Leo J. Ryan, D-Burlingame.

The bill requires only that a credential applicant hold a bachelor's degree—which includes at least nine units of professional preparation—from a college as a determinant of area of competence for teaching or that the candidate pass an examination in subjects to be taught.

The state Department of Education is stripped of its current authority over teacher licensing under the bill.

BUSING BAN

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Senate Education Committee early Friday approved and sent to the floor a bill banning the busing of public school children without the written consent of their parents.

The measure by Assemblyman Floyd L. Wakefield, R-South Gate, was approved on a split voice vote after a two-hour late night hearing.

BOND PLAN

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Assembly took the rare step of convening as a committee-of-the-whole Thursday to consider a bill allowing approval of local bond issues by a simple majority of the voters.

It was the first such meeting in three years.

The members ended the unusual session at lunchtime without completion of questioning of witnesses or taking any action on the measure by Assemblyman John T. Knox, D-Richmond.

The bill would also end the "lease back" method by which local governments use special funds to build major projects without voter approval.

Meeting as a committee-of-the-whole, all members of the Assembly convene in the chamber and question witnesses. Normally witnesses are not questioned in chamber proceedings.

The device is used on matters of special interest to the entire Assembly. It was last employed in 1967.

Last month the state Supreme Court decided the requirement that local bond issues must be approved by two-thirds of the voters was unconstitutional.

Knox' bill is designed to permit passage of the bonds by a simple majority of the voters.

REMAP BILL

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — The Senate Rules Committee declined Thursday to let a company long associated with the Republican party do its homework on legislative reapportionment.

Senate Democratic Caucus Chairman Mervyn Dymally said the committee decided against signing a contract with the firm of Ed Nichols and Associates. The committee, instead, voted to put out a bid on the contract.

Dymally had appealed to the committee to offer for bid the contract estimated to be worth between $100,000 and $140,000.

TWA Doesn't Want Coast-To-Coast Route

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Trans World Airlines has told the government it does not want to use a newly awarded coast-to-coast route with stops in Omaha and Des Moines because it could not make money on it.

The airline told the Civil Aeronautics Board the route is economically unsound because it does not include a stop in Chicago which TWA originally wanted. The route, as awarded by the government, was between Los Angeles and New York-Washington, with stops at the two Midwestern cities.

Goldberger Charged In Debt Suit

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A suit charging that Teamster official Jack Goldberger has failed to fulfill a debt allegedly owed to a San Francisco electrical contractor and philanthropist, now deceased, was filed yesterday in superior court.

The suit, filed in behalf of the Bank of America, executor of the estate of the late Frank Gentles, asserts that Goldberger, of 19 Meadowcraft drive, San Anselmo, borrowed $26,000 from Gentles in 1966 but stopped paying off the debt when Gentles died last November.

The suit also named the International Brotherhood of Teamsters as a defendant, saying Goldberger had pledged as security his interest in the Teamsters' retirement fund, which would amount to a lifetime pension of $14,000 per year or a cash settlement of $103,000 upon retirement.

According to the suit, filed by attorney John E. Anderson, Goldberger denies the validity of the promissory note and of the security agreement said to be supporting it.

Goldberger, president of Periodical Drivers and Helpers Local 921, an affiliate of the Teamsters international, is awaiting trial in Marin Superior Court for contempt of Court arising from the riotous demonstration at the Independent-Journal on Valentine's Day.

The demonstration had been organized in support of San Francisco Typographical Union 21, which has been on strike against the I-J since Jan. 7.

Renovation Costs Soar On Queen Mary; Probe Set

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—The State Lands Commission Thursday ordered an investigation into the skyrocketing costs of refurbishing the drydocked luxury liner Queen Mary.

The commission, acting under orders from the California Legislature, asked its staff to look into the expenditure of $32 million in tidelands oil revenue for the project by the City of Long Beach. A report is due Dec. 1.

The Southern California port city bought the liner and is converting it into a maritime museum, hotel and tourist attraction.

But the estimated cost of renovation has jumped from the original $8.75 million to $54 million, with $32 million coming from tidelands funds and the rest from private firms and exhibitors participating in the project.

S.F. Papers Face Suit On Tieup

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A biweekly newspaper filed suit Thursday in federal court challenging the newspaper preservation law which President Nixon signed last Tuesday.

The law challenged by the San Francisco Bay Guardian permits newspapers facing financial failure to pool their noneditorial operations without becoming subject to antitrust laws.

In the suit, the Guardian contended that a joint production agreement between the San Francisco Examiner and the San Francisco Chronicle is illegal.

It holds the 1964 agreement between those papers violated antitrust laws and that their jointly set advertising rates discriminated against the Guardian.

Bruce Brugmann, the Guardian's publisher, asked the court to rule on the constitutionality of the newspaper act and to order the resumption of "competition in the daily newspaper market in San Francisco."

The Examiner and Chronicle operate separate editorial and news departments although both are printed by the joinlty-owned San Francisco Newspaper Printing Co.

Brugmann wants the court to order that company to divest itself of assets acquired by the agreement between the two papers.

SOME DON'TBELIEVE IN SIGNS

These noisome and overflowing litter cans in San Geronimo Valley show graphically why the state Division of Highways is ordering most such cans removed in the Bay Area. Placed for motorists' convenience to cut highway littering, the cans have been increasingly used for household garbage surreptitiously deposited. The cans will be removed, starting tomorrow, from everywhere except weigh stations, roadside rests and improved view points, the Division of Highways has announced. Removal will be for a 6-month period to determine the effect on highway littering.

U.S. Peace Proposal Is Accepted

name two appointees if it remained in the coalition.

The Hawkish Gahal Party announced in advance of the cabinet session they would leave the government if the reply was in the affirmative and dispite President Nixon's assurances Thursday night the American proposed three-month cease-fire would not be used for a Soviet-Egyptian buildup.

The right-wing Gahal Party not only opposes a cease-fire but insists that any territory captured from the Arabs in the 1967 Six Day War remain an integral part of Israel. It fears that any negotiated peace could mean the loss of that territory.

Officially stated Israeli government policy is that some of these issues can be negotiated.

President Gamal Abdel Nasser of Egypt accepted the American cease-fire proposals as did Jordan. But his action split the Arab world, with Syria and Iraq condemning his action and with Iraq offering 12,000 troops to the Palestinian Arab guerrillas who have vowed they will not accept a cease-fire.

In the midst of the political developments Israeli Phantoms and Skyhawks bombed Egyptian Suez Canal positions throughout the day in the 71st consecutive day of such attacks, and Israel sent other planes into Jordan to retaliation for attacks on Israeli border settlements.

The American proposal put forth by Secretary of State William P. Rogers calls for a 90-day cease-fire while U.N. peace negotiator Gunnar V. Jarring of Sweden tries to get preliminary negotiations started between the warring parties.

Israel, in accepting the Rogers proposal, said the cabinet took into consideration the appeal from Nixon to Israel to approve the plan before making its decision.

The Israeli statement said: "Having considered the appeal of the President of the United States, and while continuing its commitment to its basic policy guidelines and authorized statements, the government has decided to subscribe to the latest peace initiative of the government of the United States and to appoint at the appropriate time a representative for peace negotiations without prior conditions under the auspices of Ambassador Jarring within the framework of U.N. Security Council Resolution 242 and with the aim of reaching a binding contractual peace agreement.

"Taking into account the clarifications provided by the government of the United States, and not withstanding the dangers inherent in the matter, Israel is prepared to subscribe to the proposal of the United States concerning a cease-fire for three months, at least on the Egyption front. Israel's position in respect of a cease-fire on all sectors including the Egyptian front on the basis of reciprocity in accordance with the resolution of the Security Council remains in force.

"The Ministerial Committee will draft proposals as to the precise language of the reply of the government of Israel to the government of the United States."

The six Gahal ministers in the cabinet met until a short time before the cabinet meeting began and reaffirmed their decision to quit the government, the sources said. They said the decision to leave the National Unity government was not unanimous, however.

In the Arab world, the guerrilla leader Yassir Arafat was leading a protest in Amman against Egypt's and Jordan's acceptance of the U.S. proposals. The Egyptian information minister said Arabs opposing it were being "childish."

Breezes Help Clear Smog Over New York

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Breezy weather brought New Yorkers relief, at least temporarily, today from a blanket of smog that has made the city seem like the largest stuffy room in the world.

City Air Resources Commissioner Robert Rickles reported the pollution level today was about half as bad as Thursday and "poses no danger to anybody at this point."

Rickles said that if weather conditions do not deteriorate again the first stage pollution alert declared Wednesday by Mayor John V. Lindsay probably would be lifted at 3 p.m.

The city already has allowed the Sanitation Department and municipal housing authority projects and hospitals to resume some of the trash burning limited under the alert.

Rickles said brisk winds and the cooperation of motorists, who heeded pleas to leave their cars at home and rely on mass transportation, had made the difference. But he noted that the forecast was for continued hot, humid weather.

The sultry weather that contributed to the pollution problem also caused an electrical power crisis.

Consolidated Edison Co. reduced its voltage output to many customers for the fifth straight day to make sure there was enough power to go around. The utility, crippled by the breakdown of its two largest generators earlier this summer, issued another plea to all consumers — big industry and small households alike — to conserve power.

The 3 per cent reduction in voltage for the boroughs of Manhattan, the Bronx and Brooklyn was matched by other utilities in most of eastern New York so they could channel reserves into Con Ed.

Thursday was the 58th day this year that New York City's air was described as unhealthy.

Lindsay, who earlier in the week had considered banning unessential automobile traffic in lower Manhattan, urged commuters to leave their cars at home and rely on mass transportation. He followed his own suggestion and rode the subway to City Hall Thursday.

Outside City Hall, 20 young people demonstrated to demand that the city be closed to all outside automobile traffic. They wore black robes and hoods and six of them had on gas masks.

Officials in Washington had barricades ready in case a full pollution alert was called. The master plan calls for a ban on all but essential traffic in the capital if the smog reaches the critical point.

Washington, like most of the East Coast, expected little relief. Thunderstorm activity in southeastern Pennsylvania lowered the pollutant levels in Philadelphia, but the outlook was for the situation to develop again before the weekend.

A first-stage pollution watch in five Southern counties of New Jersey was canceled. It had lasted two days, the longest in the state's history. But smoke in northern New Jersey increased.

West Virginia extended a pollution alert, began Munday though the weekend. Industry was told to surb smoke and residents were asked not to burn trash.

Heavy showers wasted away pollution in Georgia after two days.

Japan's post-war industrial boom brought pollution—both air and sea—to a new peak in recent weeks. The government today established an emergency headquarters headed by Prime Minister Eisaku Sato.

Nearly 9,000 persons have been treated for eye, throat and lung ailments because of smog since July 18 in Tokyo. Factory wastes flushed into the sea have created a scum thick enough to interfere with navigation in some Japanese ports.

Israel Promised No Arab Buildup Threat

ence by helicopter to the western white house in San Clemente and a meeting today with Secretary of State William P. Rogers on the Middle East.

The President also made these points:

— The South Vietnamese government, contrary to what president Nguyen Van Thieu appears to be saying, will permit members of the National Liberation Front, political arm of the Viet Cong, to run for office as NFL members in elections to decide the future of South Vietnam. Thieu's recent statements saying Communists could not participate were merely semantical concessions to a provision of South Vietnam's constitution prohibiting Communist candidates.

—The .3 per cent increase in wholesale prices in July, the highest in the past six months, was a disagreeable part of an otherwise encouraging downward trend for the past six months. "The inflation is being cooled and it will continue to be cooled if we can continue to have responsibility in the conduct of our budget problems," the President said.

—Both the Soviet Union and the United States know that if war breaks out between the two nuclear giants "there will be no winners." For that reason, there is some hope that the current nuclear arms limitation talks in Vienna will be successful in curbing deployment of "more instruments of destruction when both have enough to destroy each other many times over."

He pointed out that since the United States stopped deploying land based missiles in 1967 the Soviet Union had installed 724. They have built 13 nuclear submarines since the United States stopped building them and will have a fleet equal to America's by 1975.

—Federal officials will go to the south to assist with school desegregation and their number will depend on the need. "We are not going to have a forced policy in this area," the President said. "Our policy is one of cooperation rather than coercion."

—Recent smog-filled days on the East Coast were "perhaps fortunate" because they served to emphasize the urgency for Congressional action on the environmental measures he has recommended.

Jordan and the United Arab Republic have signalled their agreement to the peace proposal put forward by Secretary of State Rogers June 19 but Israel had been reluctant to go along with it because of the provision for a 90-day cease fire.

The plan also calls for Israel to pull back from portions of the Arab territory it has occupied since the 1967 war and begin talks under United Nations auspices.

Nixon said both the United States "and others" have attempted to assure Israel that the Arab nations, being supplied with most of their armaments by the Russians, would not use the ceasefire to increase their military power.

news conference, "I don't think we'll have a chance like this again."

Of Sen. Clark Bradley, San Jose, the only Republican holdout, Reagan said, "I don't know how he's going to explain his refusal to the beleaguered taxpayers."

Reagan lost one supporter, at least temporarily, when Sen. Tom Carrell, D-San Fernando, was hospitalized. His office said he was suffering exhaustion but some senators said they understood he suffered a mild stroke.

Sen. Walter Stiern, Democratif chairman of the Senate Revenue and Taxation Committee, met privately with Reagan Thursday and told reporters that night:

"I have not changed my position. I cannot vote for this tax increase bill."

Stiern, who broke Defocratic ranks and voted for Reagan's embattled state budget bill earlier in the month, had been on the governor's list of possible vote switches. He said they had an "amiable" meeting.

Bagley said he was "very disappointed" with Stiern's decision. He said Stiern "has been given figures by Democratic staff members who are out to sabotage tax reform."

Church Yard Landing For Marin Pilot

A 52-year-old San Rafael man flying a Hamilton Air Force Base Aeroclub plane made a forced landing in a Sonoma churchyard yesterday and escaped injury, Sonoma County Sheriff's deputies reported.

James N. Grady of 60 Ridgewood Drive was flying a Piper Cherokee to the air base from Colusa County when engine failure forced him to land the plane at 1:30 p.m. in the yard of St. Leo's Church.

The church's new cinder block barbecue pit and 30 feet of fence were destroyed and the plane's left wing and landing gear suffered light damage, deputies reported.

Grady was forced to hit the barbecue to avoid striking caretakers on the lawn of the church, according to the report.

Cause of the engine failure was not determined.

Headquarters at Kompong Speu was rushed to the scene shortly after dawn. Even with help from Cambodian Air Force T28 fighter-bombers, they failed to dislodge the Viet Cong. They reported five Cambodian troops were wounded.

Military officials in Kompong Speu told UPI correspondents Kenneth J. Braddick and Kent Potter the five-battalion attack on Kirirom had not gotten under way.

Military spokesmen said U.S. and South Vietnamese infantrymen and planes killed 44 Communist troops Thursday in a running battle in the Central Highlands. Two U.S. helicopters were shot down.

Besides the helicopters, U.S. forces lost two other aircraft to ground fire in Vietnam Thursday—An Air Force A1 Skyraider and an Army Cobra helicopter gunship. One crewman died and two were wounded.

Military spokesmen said six Americans were killed and 35 wounded Thursday in minor ground fighting and booby trap explosions throughout South Vietnam.

Judge Denies Plea To Drop Thurber Case

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — Frank J. Thurber, accused of the murder of Independent-Journal employee Allan W. Daly, was denied a request today for dismissal of charges and for reduction of bail.

Municipal Court Judge Frank W. Shaw continued the case until Aug. 7 at 11 a.m., agreeing with Deputy Dist. Atty. Pierre Merle, who said dismissal would be an idle act since Thurber would promptly be rebooked and held for the San Francisco grand jury. The case goes to the grand jury Monday night.

Thurber, held in lieu of $250,000 bail, is also accused of conspiracy, robbery and burglary in connection with Daly's fatal shooting July 4 in Daly's San Francisco home.

Two San Bruno teen-agers on Wednesday admitted killing Daly and were turned over to the California Youth Authority for indefinite terms.

They are expected to testify against Thurber, 45-year-old member of the Newspaper Mailers Union local 18, an affiliate of the San Francisco Typographical Union 21, which has been on strike against the I-J since Jan. 7.

by a visit of Correctional Officer John A. Mattson to the Independent-Journal today to assert that "there isn't any possibility of a strike." Mattson has served at San Quentin for 10 years.

Thompson said that he, as president of the San Quentin Chapter of the California Correctional Officers Association which represents 95 per cent of the guards, had not been approached about a strike.

What individual members of the association talk about is their own business, he said.

A meeting of all guards called for 4:20 p.m. Tuesday is not to discuss the possibility of a strike, he said.

Nelson has been invited to the meeting to explain his views on the memo, Thompson said, adding that Nelson will not be present through the whole meeting at which establishment of a safety committee and an open discussion period are also scheduled.

powers," that it was "so superficial as to make evaluation impossible," and that there had been no contribution by cities to preparation of the plan.

Vice Mayor Warren Hopkins of Rohnert Park also was worried about levying of new taxes, but McInnis pointed out that ABAG had no such power at present and that it relied strictly on membership dues to operate.

Acquisition of open space and housing construction, he said, would be achieved as it is done now — with combined outlays of local and federal money.

The document drew strong support from San Francisco representatives. Dianne Feinstein, chairman of the board of supervisors, declared herself a "strong believer" in regional government. Such an agency must be created, she said, "if we are to solve problems of air, water and open space . . ."

Newell Case, vice mayor of Walnut Creek and former ABAG president, warned regional government critics that the choice was either to accept a voluntary association like ABAG or face imposition of a regional agency by the state legislature.

Several delegates objected to the designation of controversial highway routes, such as the Southern Crossing, in the regional plan and McInnis assured these were drawn only to indicate future traffic in a specified corridor.

'Fortunate Dope Fiend' Helps Others

By JOAN LISETOR

You look at Mary Anne, and you wonder how old she is. one minute she looks so young, the next, so mature.

When you ask she answers readily - 20. She tells her story so easily because she has told it so many times before.

"I am a fortunate dope fiend," Mary Anne begins.

Born and reared in the East Bay, Mary Anne married when she was 16. She left her husband because he was using drugs but went back to him the following year.

"WHEN I went back I started smoking grass because I thought it would help us to get along better," she says. "I dropped acid and dug it, 15 or 20 times. Then I had a bad trip and stopped. I tried speed five or six times, but I didn't like that either."

Her husband was a heroin addict and supported his habit by selling it. She helped him sell it and kept it for him, because if he had it he would use it.

"One day I was depressed and my husband suggested I get loaded," she explains. "It made me sick, but I enjoyed it."

Sht says it was a surprise to her that she could inject anything into her arm because she had always hated needles and dreaded shots.

Thinking she could never get hooked, Mary Anne started taking heroin on Fridays nights and Saturdays.

"IT WAS A weekend thing," she says, "but pretty soon the weekend was including Sunday and Monday, and I was hitting all week.

"About a month and a half passed and I woke up feeling sick one morning. I thought I had the flu so I took some heroin to be okay. I got sicker so I got loaded again to feel better. and it didn't do any good. My husband told me it was because I was hooked."

Soon after that her husband went to jail for violation of probation.

"He was in jail and I kicked with codine and was clean for a week," she says. "Then he came back, and I started using again and was strung out for seven months."

During the time she was on drugs Mary Anne managed to graduate from business college and hold a job as a secretary in a hospital. When it was necessary she could "kick" for a couple of days by using codine or morphine.

Then her husband went back to jail.

"I COULDN'T support a $50 to $75 a day habit and was running out of ways to make money. I knew I either had to clean up or become a prostitute, and I was determined I wouldn't hit rock bottom.

She went to San Francisco General Hospital and then to Mendocino State Hospital where she stayed for nine months.

"I am a graduate of 'the family'," Mary Anne explains.

Family programs at the hospital use game and encounter session techniques to help addicts stay off drugs. After her "graduation" Mary Anne went to Arizona as a drug counselor, where she earned $650 a month.

After about a year in Arizona, Mary Anne came back to the Bay Area to visit her parents and her 3-year-old daughter who lives with them. While she was here she contacted Rex Hutchinson, a friend from Mendocino who runs Center Point, a center on D Street in San Rafael for young people trying to kick drug habits.

"I saw Center Point, and I liked what was going on," she says. "I went back to Arizona, and I kept thinking about it. I decided I would rather help Center Point because I like what Rex is doing."

SHE CALLED Rex and asked him what he could pay her if she quit her $650 a month (including room and board) job and came to work for him.

"He said, 'nothing', but I came anyway," she says.

Mary Anne has been at Center Point since the beginning of July, which she says is long enough to know she is going to stay.

Her duties consist mainly of helping Rex, who is doing a great deal of speaking before groups he hopes will help them raise funds they need to keep the center running.

"We see kids from all walks of life at the center, and they are all the same," says Mary Anne, whose other duties include running the games and encounters, giving out information on the center and caring for the house.

She is living at the center, a large, immaculate flat located over an antique store and hopes to bring her daughter there to live with her.

"As soon as we receive a grant and have some money I want to have her with me," she says. "This is a positive environment, and my bad life is all over with."

SHE SAYS on an average day they have about 15 kids drop in at the center, and some are not even on drugs but just want someone to talk to. The center has a guest room used for kicking bad trips. When an addicts has kicked, Rex and Mary Anne will help him find a home and a job and continue to offer him the encouragement, support and understanding they feel only one dope fiend can give another.

No drugs are allowed at the center, including marijuana, which Mary Anne says is harmful because of the environment in which it places a young person. If it is legalized, she says, you take away the crime, but you still have the problem.

"The kids seem to go from wine to grass to heroin," she says, "and I would not want my younger sister to go that route."

That society is becoming aware of the problem, Mary Anne says, is half of the battle.

"It is hard to stay clean and would be so easy to go back on the spoon," she says. "Once you have kicked it is a constant battle.

"I just wish I had the money I spent on dope."

FORMER HEROIN addict, Mary Anne, is on the staff of Center Point, a drop-in house for young persons trying to kick drug habits. Through games, encounter sessions and just plain talk she and the founder of the center, Rex Hutchinson, have helped many young persons with problems. The center is located over an antique shop at 805 D Street in San Rafael. (Independent-Journal photo)

Safety Measures Suggested For U.S. Working Mothers

In the United States, an estimated five million children under the age of six are left in charge of another person while their mothers work.

According to the United States Department of Labor, women represent one in three of the nation's work force. As opportunities for employment broaden for married women, there will be more mothers of small children holding jobs.

How safe are these youngsters? How well protected against accidents are the children and the "proxy" parent in charge?

The Council on Family Health, a non-profit organization sponsored as a public service by members of the drug industry, suggest these measures.

IMPRESS UPON the children that they are expected to obey the person in charge.

Emphasize to the babysitter that under no circumstances is she to leave the children alone at home, even for one moment.

TO HELP PREVENT potential poisoning, store all of your cleaning agents and household chemicals out of sight and reach of the children. Direct the adult in charge that she must keep her eye on these things when she uses them, and replace them high in a cabinet when finished.

IF MEDICATION is to be administered to the children, tell your babysitter the exact dosage and frequency. Instruct her to recap the medicine and return it to its proper storage place immediately after use.

If she takes medication she is to follow the same safety rules about keeping the medicine out of reach of the youngsters.

TO HELP prevent burns and scalds, teach your baby sitter to keep pot handles turned toward the side or rear of the stove, to test the children's bath water before letting them enter the tub, to keep matches out of the children's reach.

If there is a discarded refrigerator or freezer on your home premises, remove the doors or seal them against the the possibility of a child getting inside.

Children can be taught to put their playthings away when

BABYSITTERS should know the common rules of first aid and working mothers should have the telephone numbers of a doctor, a neighbor or friend, near relative and parents' places of employment written where they can be easily found.

Avoid Cycling Hazards By Following The Rules

Beautiful summery days bring cyclists out on the road in large numbers, and cycling can be a healthy activity so long as people use common sense and follow the recommendations of the various safety councils.

1. Before going down a long or steep hill, check brakes and luggage for anything loose. Be sure the brake blocks make good contact with the rim, but do not touch the tire. Put your hat on firmly, if you wear one, and wear glasses if you have them. A bug in the eye at high speed can mean a crash.

2. Never argue with a car. Looking to the rear to check on an approaching car is dangerous since it may cause you to go into a ditch. Learn to use your ears so as to be aware of oncoming cars.

3. Practice riding in a straight line. The zig-zag cyclist confuses drivers and causes accidents.

4. It is a big help for motorists if the cyclist uses hand signals. In most states these are the same signals used with an automobile.

5. Very often in cycling accidents the motorists failed to see the person on a bicycle, so wear bright colors and if you cycle at night, use plenty of light and reflector tape.

6. A good cyclist recognizes road hazards and takes precautions against them. These include loose sand or gravel, wet blacktop surfaces, sticks, stones and glass.

7. Crossing diagonal railroad tracks is tricky. The cyclist's best bet is to cross them in a perpendicular direction under full control.

8. Warning devices that use sound such as bells or horns, are particularly useful in giving pedestrians warning.

9. Cyclists should always ride with traffic.

10. Like mailmen, cyclists do not always find the dog to be man's best friend. If pursued by a dog, it may be best to walk the bike on the far side of the road.

One final word of warning is directed to parents with beginning bicyclists — see that they are fully instructed in traffic laws and safe practices; keep in mind that it is dangerous to purchase a bicycle too large for the youngster's immediate needs.

All in all, in cycling as in any other human pursuit, the best rule is the Golden Rule. Courtesy to motorists, pedestrians and co-cyclists usually helps to make your experience outdoors a happier and healthier one.

HELEN HELP US!

Woman A Masochist To Continue Loving A Husband Who Beats Her

DEAR HELEN:

Three years ago I thought my life was just beginning. I met the man of my dreams, fell madly in love. Then my troubles started.

You know the old story about saving yourself for your husband? I did, but he never believed it. He says a woman can fake the virginity thing.

When I denied having a previous lover, he'd knock me around. But we always made up. Then he started accusing me of being unfaithful. Every time the fellows would joke about some sexy dame, he'd come home from the bar and accuse me of being her. More beatings! He even beat me once because he said I'd love my children more than I would him —if we had children, which we don't.

Next, he took up with another woman, saying I deserved it. He brought her home one night and I left. Next day he came after me and, because I love him so much, I went home —only to get another beating. My sister saw my bruises and told the family. Now he says I go around trying to get sympathy by telling everybody about our private life.

I'm only 21 and young enough to start over, but I can't stop being hung up on him. He's wonderful when he isn't mean or jealous or stepping out or drunk. That's about one-fifth of the time. Am I foolish for hoping things will get better? — B.B.N.

DEAR B.:

You're a masochist if you continue "loving" a man who beats you four days out of five. Unless he benefits from professional help (and usually this type won't even seek it) I don't give your marriage much hope. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

Ministers are supposed to be above reproach. This one isn't. He tells his secretary he is going out to make visitations, then he meets one or another married woman, and not to save their souls.

He even approached me once, saying he would cut a ministerial meeting one day short if I'd meet him in a distant city. I almost fell for his sweet talk — until I found out about the others.

His church is half-way supported by females who think he is in love with them. Oh, he's a spellbinder on Sunday. On other days, he's a spell caster.

Would it be un-Christian to complain to the mother church? — CONCERNED LAYMAN (WOMAN)

DEAR CON:

That depends on whether you have proof or a grudge. — H.

DEAR HELEN:

I've always been on the side of the policemen, figuring the kids exaggerated this "brutality" bit.

But the other day I was standing inside a building when a policeman came over to question some teenagers on a playground. They weren't doing anything wrong, but two boys had long hair. He used a string of four-letter words and told them to "Get the . . . home." They were just talking. Is this necessary? — D.G.

DEAR D.:

No. But it isn't representative either. Why didn't you get this policeman's badge number and report him? — H.

'Twas A Great Strain' For Him To Date Royalty

London — Sadly, there are harsh restrictions in the more informal social life of a princess. This problem is highlighted by the romance of Sandy Harper, the blonde-haired, 22-year-old polo player whose name has been so often linked with Britain's Princess Anne.

A girlfriend whose company he can enjoy without the unbelievable pressures which accompany royalty is pretty Brenda Sweeny, 19.

"Sandy used to take Princess Anne out a lot," says Brenda. "But not so much now. It was such a great strain."

Brenda and Sandy — He's the son of Col. Alec Harper, Midhurst polo-playing friend of Prince Philip and Viscount Cowdray — have even talked of marriage.

Auburn-haired Brenda's ambitions stray rather far from the passion of her father who was 1937 British amateur golf champion and competed for the British Open at St. Andrew's only last week.

"I don't enjoy golf at all. I suppose I am too close to it," she says. "If you want to know, my real ambition is to be a bongo-player. I have taken lessons from a Jamaican and would love to play with a group one day."

Meanwhile Brenda, who was educated in Switzerland, America, Spain and England, is turning to that promised land for pretty girls — modeling. And the photographer who is guiding her with his lens is stately-home owner the Marquis of Bath's younger son, 35-year-old Lord Christopher Thynne.

Demand That Proprietor Stand Behind His Goods

BY SANDRA HAGGERTY

I remark to the woman in front of me in a neighborhood food market that, according to produce signs, cantaloupes are on sale —four for a dollar — and the checker has just charged her 30 cents for one. She shrugs her shoulders and says quietly, "Oh well, it's only five cents . . ."

Eight-year-old Marcus "makes groceries" for his mother in the small, corner grocery store — where, without question, there is a substantial mark-up on all items.

I appreciate the pressure on small businesses to compete with big businesses, but why should poor people — those least able financially — carry the burden of this competition?

AFTER SELECTING all the items on his list.Marcus has 35 cents left. He's using food stamps, so no cash change can be given to him. The proprietor hurriedly guides him into purchasing 35 cents worth of immediately available candy, stacked on check-out stand, to round out his food stamp purchase.

Only five times seven . . .

THE EASY Credit Furniture Store's window signs shout to the passers-by that the summer (winter, spring or fall) clearance sales are on. Prices have been slashed and big savings are available. Problem is that easy credit costs — a lot. And any money spent on an unneeded or duplicate item — just because the sale price is so very reasonable — is no savings.

The sign in the five and dime store says free wastebasket with purchase of $5 worth of merchandise. When one needs only $2 worth of goods, $3 is an awful lot to pay for a 45-cent plastic wastebasket.

The just-purchased milk is sour and/or the bread is moldy. "Throw it out," says Marcus' mother, wearily.

The blue jeans purchased at the neighborhood discount store come apart at the seams when they are laundered. "We'll have to try and get downtown to buy some more," sighs another exasperated mother.

The waitress brings you an egg omelet that is hard as a rock. It's unedible, so you leave it on the plate — paying for nutrition you're not receiving.

THE ABOVE-MENTIONED incidents are seemingly small but regular agitations for many consumers. Some of us fight our displeasure with a proprietor's products and services by taking our business elsewhere. But there are others whose circumstances, lack of transportation and so forth, make it impossible for them to deprive neighborhood stores of their patronage, which is the most powerful show of displeasure. This being the case, consumers should demand that each proprietor stand behind the goods and services he provides. This takes extra effort and much inconvenience, but these goods and services are not gifts; we are paying plenty for them.

And whether the savings or issue be five cents on the purchase of a cantaloupe or $50 on easy-credit carrying charges, gimme five . . . on the black side.

Today is Friday, July 31, the 212th day of 1970 with 153 to follow.

The moon is between its last quarter and new phase. The morning star is Saturn. The evening stars are Mercury, Venus, Mars and Jupiter.

On this day in history:

In 1792 director David Rittenhouse laid the cornerstone in Philadelphia for the U.S. Mint, the first building of the federal government.

In 1940 Adolf Hitler banned the practice of Christian Science in Germany.

In 1953 Senate Majority Leader Robert Taft of Ohio died in New York City.

A thought for the day: Henry Thoreau said, "It takes two to speak the truth, one to speak, and another to hear."

23,000 Mice Flown For Cancer Research

NEW YORK (UPI) — Twenty-three thousand relatives representing 23 generations have been committed for study in the Catholic Medical Center of Brooklyn and Queens.

The relatives are mice flown in from the School of Medicine of the University of Miami, Fla., as part of a cancer research project funded by the National Institute of Health. The project is directed toward development of therapy for breast cancer.

The mice are needed to show the importance of the same genetic strain in natural immunity to cancer cells.

Columnist Feels Responsibility To Recommend His Own Books

Perhaps I should look embarrassed about praising my own book, but I have a responsibility to my readers. I owe it to them to recommend all the good bridge books, as they come out, and the best books in many years are my new Pocket Books of Bridge Puzzles. Today's hand, taken from the introduction to Book No. 2, may show you the general idea of these inexpensive paperbacks.

TRY IT FIRST

Try to make six spades against the most reasonable defense, ticking off the cards in the diagram as you play them. Then compare your own effort with the description of the winning line of play that follows.

Take the king of clubs and lead a low trump to the king first since, as South, you don't know about the bad trump break. A normal break in spades would give you 12 easy tricks.

When you discover the 4-0 trump distribution, lead a club to dummy's ace to make sure East doesn't get rid of a club while your back is turned. Cash the top hearts, discarding a diamond and ruff a heart. Take the top diamonds next and ruff a diamond.

RUFF IN PASSING

Next lead a low trump to dummy's ace and return the last heart. Your last cards are the Q-7 of trumps and the losing club. If East discards or follows suit, you will ruff with the seven of trumps, cash the queen and give up the last trick simultaneously to the top trump and the top club. If East were able to ruff, you would discard the losing club and take the last two tricks with your trumps.

PENNY A HAND

The six puzzle books recently published in this series each contain 90 bridge hands for you to test your skill with, together with instructions for working them as puzzles. At a cost of less than one cent per hand the new books are almost as big a bargain as your daily newspaper.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with 3 no trump and the next player passes. You hold:

♠—J 10 9 8
♥—Q J 4 3
♦—Q J 10
♣—Q J.

ANSWER: Bid 6 no trump or four clubs.

In this case a bid of four clubs would be the Stayman Convention, asking partner to bid a major suit of four or more cards. However, the immediate jump to 6 no trump is just about as good when you have so many honor cards.

Cleveland Conductor George Szell Dies

CLEVELAND (UPI)—George Szell, who sandpapered his batons to a fine point and as carefully fine-tuned the Cleveland Orchestra into one of the world's finest, died Thursday night.

Szell, 73, had been hospitalized since suffering a heart attack after he returned from a tour of east Asia earlier this summer.

Born in Budapest on June 7, 1897, he was a piano prodigy and made his debut with the Vienna Symphony at the age of 10. He switched to the podium during his teen years and was a guest conductor with the Berlin Philharmonic at age 17. But he never lost his touch on the keyboard and at rehearsals in later years would often show piano soloists how he wanted the music performed.

GEORGE SZELL
Sandpapered his batons

He was chief conductor of the Berlin State Opera and of the Berlin Broadcasting Company orchestra in the 1920s and moved to Prague in 1929. Guest appearances in the United States began in the 1930s. He was in America when World War II began and decided to stay.

After successes as guest conductor of the Los Angeles Symphony, the New York Philharmonic, the Boston Symphony and the Metropolitan Opera, Szell became conductor of the Cleveland Orchestra in 1946. On the podium, he left little doubt as to who was in charge. Enemies he made, particularly among musicians in the second ranks who considered him a bully. Admirens considered him an artist who sacrificed popularity for musical perfection.

There is no doubt that he succeeded in building the orchestra into one of the finest —the best in the world according to some critics. The critics also considered him second only to Toscanini among conductors.

He fired 12 musicians in his first year at Cleveland. He was curt with musicians in his tedious, no-nonsense rehearsals. But despite his overbearing presence, he handled his baton with precision. He would spend long periods rubbing his baton with fine sandpaper, bringing it to a thin, tapered point. There was no doubt at what point in his downbeat the music was to begin.

His preference was for the German - Austrian composers. Beethoven and Schubert were staples of the Cleveland Orchestra. He had little regard for Russian and French composers nor for contemporary music.

Szell was once asked about his long stay in Cleveland and replied, "People in New York should stop considering everything outside New York as outlying. We are not provincial. My audience is of the highest level anywhere. If they hadn't been, I would not have stuck here so long."

Szell is survrived by his wife, Helen, whom he married in 1938. They had no children.

Brass Knuckles Bring Jail Term, Probation

Daniel Lee Temple, 22, of San Rafael, has been placed on probation for two years and ordered to spend six months in the county jail by Judge Joseph G. Wilson of Marin Superior Court.

Temple had pleaded guilty to a charge of carrying brass knuckles when arrested Feb. 2 in San Rafael.

FAMILY

"Boatniks" — The packed boat harbor of Newport Beach, the utter chaos created by weekend yachtsmen, an accident-prone Ensign in charge of the harbor and three jewel thieves trying to escape to Mexico are the ingredients of this wacky comedy.

"Out-of-Towners" — Refreshingly funny spoof on big city life. Misadventures of a small city businessman who takes his wife with him for a job interview in New York City. Hilarious comedy.

"Swiss Family Robinson" — Welcome reissue of fine Disney favorite telling of a Swiss family marooned by shipwreck on a tropical island. Story told with wealth of detail.

"Undefeated" — A warm, full bodied post-Civil War adventure story. Plot is enriched by touches of humor and warm friendships that develop between former adversaries when they join together in a common goal.

ADULTS AND TEENS

"Beneath the Planet of the Apes" — Science fiction, the sequel to "Planet of the Apes" concludes the story and combines an amusing fantasy with a very real and grim message. Very well done.

"Downhill Racer" — A brilliant study of the development of a ski champion. Action sequences are complimented by story about the dynamics of sports competition.

"Hawaiians" — Film based on last half of James A. Michener's novel "Hawaii". The story centers on the man who developed the first pineapple plantation and a Chinese matriarch who founded a dynasty. Plot quite complicated.

"Paint Your Wagon" — A lusty, irreverent script is framework for a musical set in a mining camp during Gold Rush days. Elaborately mounted broad comedy, raucous and at times tasteless, not suitable for young children.

"Patton" — An unusually well-made film, with a brilliant characterization by George C. Scott. Very strong dialogue. It shows Patton as a complex man who is a military disciplinarian who sacrifices his men in order to win battles.

"Reivers" — A weekend adventure when an 11-year-old boy loses his childhood innocence and discovers the waywardness of men. Story has good human values, but it is regrettable that the action in a brothel makes film unsuitable for younger audiences.

"Z" — Remarkable film about a political assassination. Powerful combination of action and suspense providing profound insights into today's troubled politics. Subtitles in English.

BORDERLINE
(Most sources say Adults Only)

"Easy Rider" — Two hippie drug pushers ride their motorcycles to New Orleans. Film relates their experiences including a wild LSD trip and a senseless tragic ending.

"Man Called Horse" — Compelling but unforgivably brutal melodrama about a 19th century English aristocrat who is captured by a Sioux tribe. Accurately detailed tribal rites and Sioux tongue spoken adds realism.

"Woodstock" — Interesting documentary of last summer's famous rock festival. Nudity, obscene language, use of drugs and love making may keep from the audience those most interested in seeing it. Parental guidance advised.

ADULTS ONLY

"Adventurers" — Three hours of graphic scenes of violence and sex. Characters are unbelievable take-offs on contemporary people, plot revolves around jet set. Big budget film but direction and acting are disappointing. Mediocre.

"Liberation of L.B. Jones" — Superior acting gives realism to this depressing film about racism on part of both black and white in deep South. It is unpleasant to witness the physical and mental brutality, but such a movie could not be both pleasant and honest.

"M-A-S-H" — Title stands for Mobile Army Surgical Hospital. Antiwar film deals wth three surgeons. Scenes are gruesome as they are funny. Bittersweet element of truth in action and dialogue.

2 Missing Japanese Found Killed By Bears

OBIHIRO, Japan (UPI)—A search party Wednesday found the mutilated bodies of two missing mountain climbers near Mt. Kamuiekuchi-Kaushi on the island of Hokkaido. Authorities said it appeared they had been killed by bears.

The searchers shot and killed a bear in the area where the bodies of Kazutoshi Takesue, 21, and Yoshitaka Kawahara, 18, both of Fukuoka, Japan, were found.

United Crusade Sets Area Goal

OAKLAND (UPI)—The United Bay Area Crusade has set a record campaign goal of $16,850,000 for 1970, an increase of $334,200 over last year.

In announcing its goal Thursday, the crusade said its funds go to 180 member agencies and 18 voluntary agencies not affiliated in five San Francisco Bay Area counties—San Francisco, Alameda, Contra Costa, Marin and San Mateo.

Last May the organization said it made emergency grants of $338,205 for the first time to non-member service agencies, primarily to help minorities.

OPERATION FRIENDLY TOWN

Bridging Inner City, Suburban Youth

By LARRY MOWELL

There is no law against racial and cultural segregation produced by population patterns as Senate Republican leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania pointed out in a recent Senate debate.

Since there is no law against de facto segregation that would force blacks and whites, rich and poor, to live together and since they often don't mingle, many children grow up without exposure to racial and cultural minorities.

Friendly Town is trying to combat this kind of narrow upbringing. It is advertised as a "program which will allow children from inner city families to visit for 10 days with host families in the suburbs, and hopefully allow suburban youth to visit in the inner city homes. In effect it is a chance to build bridges of understanding between the families of the inner city and the suburbs."

Although Marin youngsters have shunned the experience in inner city homes, about 20 ghetto youngsters have been invited to Marin homes this summer so that suburbanites can learn about racially and culturally different people.

Mrs. Robin Robinson of Sleepy Hollow, Marin chairman and a participant in the program, said, "We don't want a kid that's raised like our kids."

Joseph Johnson, 15, a black high school student from East Oakland who went home today after a 10-day visit at the Robinsons clearly has not been reared like 15-year-old Bruce Robinson.

The Robinsons live in a spacious hilltop home at 475 Fawn Drive where Bruce and his two brothers and sister have a pool table, basketball hoop and swimming pool fed by a thundering artificial waterfall.

Within easy access are the surrounding grassy hills and fruit trees, baseball fields, movies and the beach.

Joe came to Marin with a totally different set of experiences. His mother owns a home too small for her seven children, ages 7 to 15.

Mrs. Johnson works as a nurse's aide in an Oakland convalescent hospital, but is now in the hospital recovering from back surgery. She strained her back lifting a patient.

Mr. Johnson has left his family, according to Joe.

Of his neighborhood, Joe said, "It's noisy because people they can't get together out there. They're always fighting and busting windows, throwing cans, stuff like that."

"It's quieter here. You can do more things out here. They burnt all the movies down in Oakland."

He said the Robinsons took him to "Paint Your Wagon" the second night he was with them because he couldn't go at home.

Although he is able to play baseball and basketball at Oakland playgrounds and bowl and play pool, his activities are otherwise limited to home, he said.

He said he saw the ocean for the first time during a jaunt to Stinson Beach and visited Mount Tamalpais, also for the first time.

Going to a strange home was hard — "I was scared and quiet" — but the Robinsons soon put him at ease, he said.

They catered to his desires and even celebrated his 15th birthday with him July 21, Joe said.

Joe — clearly awed by the plush surroundings in Sleepy Hollow — said he would like to live in such a place someday, but added he hadn't learned anything specific from the visit.

Bruce on the other hand, said, "I've learned what it's like. He's told me about Oakland and where he lives. It's a rough place. People fight around there."

The brief visit was more than just a learning experience though. The boys became friends.

Joe said he would like to return next summer and pay visits in the interim. Bruce said, "This guy's almost a perfect match "and favored inviting the Johnson family over for social occasions.

"This is where you have real success when the same families want to see the same kids again," Mrs. Robinson said.

The Robinsons had been apprehensive about this year's visitor because last year's did not work out. "The guy last year was shy and didn't fit with the family," Bruce said.

However, Joe did. He played baseball with Bruce, Brian, 13, and Dale, 10, and listened to the San Francisco Giants on the radio with the trio.

Talking mostly about baseball and playing games with the Robinson boys, Joe said he felt at home.

Joe and Bruce are one of about 200 such pairs throughout the Bay Area and Santa Cruz, Mrs. Robinson said.

That represents a twenty-fold increase for Friendly Town since its inception in Contra Costa County in 1966. Originally involving 10 host families and 12 guest children, the program now encompasses more than 1,000 families, according to Mrs. Robinson.

The young persons — usually 8 to 14 years old — are placed in families with children of the same age and 75 per cent to 85 per cent want to repeat, she said.

Participating children are recruited by schools, friends, church organizations, and, increasingly, by those who have gone through the experience, Mrs. Robinson said.

However, ghetto parents are afraid to send their children to the suburbs because of possible reactions against rioting in the cities, Mrs. Robinson said, and often a personal friend or nun has to persuade them.

Joe got involved because his mother is a friend of a recruiter in Oakland. Two of his sisters, Vicki and Wanda, are also participating in the program this summer in San Anselmo and Mill Valley homes.

The program's target is de facto segregation, but 10 days of fun-filled exposure to suburban living are worthless noblesse oblige unless something meaningful develops from them.

As Mrs. Robinson pointed out, real success comes only when the families involved continue to see each other after the visit is over.

Court Rules State Must Pay Schools

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — The U.S. Court of Appeals ruled yesterday that the state Department of Education must turn over $8 million it had been withholding from local school districts.

The ruling, which upheld a lower court order, means that 10 districts in Marin and three in Southern Sonoma will benefit to the sum of $276,982.

The state money had been withheld during the 1968-69 school year from districts which received equivalent amounts of federal funds as aid to ease the impact of children of military personnel on enrollment.

Edward Harper, spokesman for the education department, said he had been notified by the state attorney general's office that the decision would not be appealed. He said he would send checks to districts soon.

Rebates to Marin and Southern Sonoma districts will be: Dixie, $9,118; Fairfax, $853; Larkspur, $2,083; Marin Junior College District, $7,996; Mill Valley, $3,182; Novato, $107,711; Reed, $1,542; San Rafael elementary, $3,575; San Rafael high, $8,180; Sausalito, $4,330; Cotati, $4,149; Old Adobe, $3,854; Petaluma elementary, $9,069, and Petaluma high, $11,340.

Proposal Will Ask College Bond, Tax

The Marin Junior College District board agreed by consensus last night to seek voter approval in November of a $16.9 million bond issue and a 25-cent override tax for an indefinite period.

No vote was taken at the workshop session, reported Supt.-President John A. Grasham, but the staff will have ballot proposals ready for board action at next Thursday's regular meeting.

The twin proposal would hold the district tax rate at approximately the 1969-70 level while providing operating funds and money to develop the north campus site near Novato and complete the building program on the Kentfield campus of College of Marin.

The tax rate proposal would kill an existing 35-cent override, due to expire in mid-1972 anyway, and substitute the 25-cent override for an unspecified period. The money would be used for general operating funds.

The district has been operating with a basic tax rate of 35 cents per $100 assessed valuation for more than 30 years, a figure which board members call unrealistic today.

Research by the county schools office shows, the board was told, that only two school districts — the college and Sausalito — have overrides for limited periods, while 16 Marin school districts have override taxes authorized for unlimited periods.

The bond issue would be spent for capital improvements on both campuses. The board wants to insure that more than half the total will go for the new campus, and wording of a ballot proposal to that effect is to be presented next Thursday.

The tax rate to pay off 25-year bonds, as projected by the county auditor's office, would vary from 19 cents to 12 cents per $100, with the bonds sold in three chunks to level off the payments.

The board also reviewed a proposed equipment list for the science center under construction at Kentfield, and is expected to approve the list officially next Thursday.

Motorcycle Repair Shop Gets Permit

An application to allow a motorcycle repair and parts sales shop at 85-A Bolinas Road in Fairfax was approved last night by the city's planning commission — just barely and with conditions.

Commissioner Harold S. Lezzeni abstained on the 3-2 vote which approved the application of Clifford L. Gibson for a conditional zoning permit for the motorcycle shop, according to Eileen Foster, commission secretary.

Lezzeni did not explain the reasons for his abstention, nor did Commissioner John J. Hourihan explain his negative vote.

Chairman E. Ross Parkerson said he voted against the application because he was concerned about the noise that might come from the shop.

In approving the application, the commission stipulated that all repairs be made inside the building, road tests not be performed in residential areas, and the shop be open only from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekdays, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Saturdays, and closed Sundays.

The Fairfax Planning Commission also:

PREZONING — Continued until Aug. 27 a public hearing on prezoning of two parcels of property west of Fairfax which are being considered for annexation. The continuance came at the request of the owners of another parcel who said they also may seek annexation.

LOT SPLIT — Approved a lot split for property at 41 Azalea Avenue, owned by Howard DuPree, on the condition that no building permit be issued until off-street parking is provided for one of the lots.

DEVELOPMENT — Continued until Aug. 27 consideration of preliminary plans for a residential development between Sir Francis Drake Boulevard and Olema Road. The commission asked the applicant, Gentry Development Co. to consider lowering the density of the proposal and adding a pedestrian pathway and recreational area.

ZONING — Put over continued discussion of the proposed zoning ordinance to a special meeting at 8 p.m. Aug. 20.

Suspects Nabbed In Auto Theft

Booked into Sonoma County Juvenile Hall were Louis Joseph Watkins, 16, of 2121 Chapman Lane; John Norman McMurphy, 17, of 50 Eastman Lane, and his brother, Marvin James McMurphy, 14.

The youths were arrested yesterday by Healdsburg police after they were found in a car that had been reported stolen by Petaluma police. William Osborn, 40 Woodworth Way, Petaluma, had told police his car was stolen Wednesday night while parked on Water Street.

Five Hurt, None Serious, In Two Separate Accidents

Five persons were injured, none seriously, in two separate accidents in Marin yesterday, the California Highway Patrol reported.

Three were hurt in a one-car accident at 8:45 p.m. on the Bolinas-Fairfax Road, south of the Meadow Club stables, officers said.

According to the highway patrol, a car driven by Melody A. Baum, 19, of 1214 Lincoln Avenue, San Rafael, eastbound, left the road on a sharp curve and came to rest at the foot of a dirt hill.

Jeffrey A. Olener, 23, of the same address, a passenger in the car, was treated at Marin General Hospital for a fractured right finger. Passengers Karen Brenner, 23, and Mark Becker, 22, also of the same address, were treated at the hospital for multiple scrapes and bruises.

Don L. Ceballos, 31, of 9½ F Street, San Rafael, was treated for multiple scrapes and bruises at Marin General after his motorcycle collided with an auto driven by Arthur E. Pierottie, 56, of 33 College Park, Kentfield.

The highway patrol said Ceballos was injured about 6:15 p.m. as he was going west on San Pedro Road when the Pierotti auto, eastbound, attempted to turn north onto Summit Avenue.

Former Marin Narcotics Dealer Receives Suspended Sentence

A Marin Superior Court judge yesterday suspended a state prison sentence for a former Fairfax narcotics dealer in hopes that a federal prison term he is now serving will be sufficient punishment.

Darren Guy Erlin, 25, was convicted in May by Judge Joseph G. Wilson of three narcotics offenses stemming from arrests in 1968.

Considered to have been the center of a large-scale dope operation, Erlin also faces a $554,017 federal marijuana tax lien. The huge tax was imposed on pot seized in two raids on a house at 33 Redwood Road where Erlin lived.

Erlin, who has also used the first name of Darrow, is serving a two-year federal sentence for selling LSD in 1967.

Judge Wilson found him guilty in May of possessing marijuana for sale as well as possessing marijuana and heroin.

A probation officer, Jesse Johnson, yesterday recommended that Erlin be sent to state prison after he completes the federal term, a proposal seconded by Asst. Dist. Atty. Gary W. Thomas.

Judge Wilson, however, noted that Erlin had "stayed out of trouble" since his arrest in April, 1968, and had lived a constructive life as a businessman in Hawaii until he went to prison last spring.

He warned Erlin that if he "becomes involved in narcotics again," he will immediately impose the prison sentence. He placed Erlin on probation for three years.

Erlin's former wife, Eloise, arrested with him, has completed a term of probation and paid a $500 fine. Another man involved in the drug operation, Gilbert Rance Dart, 26, of San Diego, is serving a prison sentence, and a third, John Floyd Lindley, 26, of El Monte, spent a period in jail.

Two Corrections In School Board Story

The Independent-Journal erred yesterday in a story on the Sausalito School District in reporting that Jackie Harris was the only Marin City resident on a screening committee to help select two principals. Ann Fisher, also lives in Marin Ann Fisher, also in Marin City.

The I-J also erroneously identified James T. Toliver Jr. as an administrative assistant for the district. His new title is special assistant.

Aviation Panel To Probe Joint Use Of Hamilton

Prospects for joint civilian-military use of Hamilton Air Force Base will be discussed again Tuesday by the Marin County Aviation Commission at 8 p.m. in the board of supervisors chambers at Civic Center.

Commissiosers will discuss Winfield O. Salter's proposal for a comprehensive study of joint use of Hamilton field and a request by Golden Pacific Airlines of San Francisco for daily commercial flights out of Hamilton by its Beechcraft 99, a twin-engine craft with a capacity of about 15 passengers.

Francis E. Torr, manager of Gnoss Field, will report on the possibility of getting federal funding to buy five additional acres to the south of the county airport.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. THEODORE R. VAN DELLEN

Heart Attack And Stroke Query Like Oldie: Chicken And The Egg

J.H.J. writes: "Is the heart affected by a stroke?" This is a good question and in a way reminds us of the oldie, "What came first, the chicken or the egg?" A relationship exists in that most victims of stroke not only have hardening of the brain arteries but also of the coronary arteries.

A circulatory disturbance in one system may affect the other. In essence, a person who survives a stroke may develop coronary thrombosis at a later date. The cerebral hemorrhage or thrombosis is not, in the strictest sense, the cause, but might be a contributing factor.

HIGH BLOOD pressure also hastens hardening of the arteries and enlargement of the heart. The hypertensive who develops a stroke already has some heart trouble, and if anything happens to the old pump, it is not fair to blame the lesion in the brain.

A more important aspect of this question concerns the opposite situation. Can a heart attack cause a stroke? A study conducted in New York City revealed that a heart attack preceded a stroke in at least half the victims. In many instances, the coronary thrombosis was missed because the symptoms of the stroke were more dramatic.

IN ADDITION, the victim was unconscious or too confused to tell the physician about his chest pain. The heart attack proves to be more serious than the stroke and is responsible for half the fatalities.

The chance of developing a stroke after coronary thrombosis is greatest when the attack is followed by a marked drop in blood pressure or the old ticker is too weak to pump enough blood into the brain.

A LESS COMMON cause of stroke occurs when clots (emboli) form in the heart and shoot upwards into the brain. This is more likely to happen when the pulse becomes irregular because of a fibrillation of the auricles.

Questions on medical topics will be answered by mail if stamped, self-addressed envelope accompanies request to the Independent-Journal.

GRAINY GALLBLADDER

L.R. writes: My doctor said there is gravel in my gallbladder. Does gravel usually develop into stones?

REPLY

Yes, in that all gallstones begin as grains of sand. On the other hand, gravel is small enough to get out of the gallbladder. This is done by keeping the structure active so it will eliminate bile from time to time. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on gallstones.

TREATING FRACTURES

T.R. writes: How are broken ribs treated?

REPLY

Fractured ribs usually heal regardless of treatment. Most physicians strap the involved side with strips of adhesive or apply a wide elastic bandage around the lower thorax. For immediate relief, some physicians also inject procaine into the nerves adjacent to the involved rib.

COCKTAILS AND CHOLESTEROL

D.R.T. writes: Do cocktails make a high blood cholesterol higher?

REPLY

Except for a trace of oil in the olive, there is no cholesterol or fat in cocktails. To my knowledge, no research has been done on the effect of alcohol on the blood cholesterol level.

CALMS THE PERSON

S.N. writes. Does phenobarbital kill pain or just have a calming effect?

REPLY

It calms the person but does not relieve pain. If discomfort is severe, the drug may not have a tranquilizing action because it is difficult to relax when something hurts.

LAW IN ACTION

From the State Bar Of California

Property And Person Defense

What right, if any, does an owner have to defend his property and his family?

DEFENSE OF PROPERTY

As a rule the landowner must warn or ask the trespasser to leave his place before he can force him off. He may use force, but not excessive force, to defend his property or to eject trespassers.

Typically, "excessive" force would apply to such things as the use of spring guns, high voltage fences, or traps. They might well injure the trespasser, to say nothing of children and others who may be hurt unintentionally. As a rule, barbed wire on farms and spiked walls around factories are regarded as legitimate.

A typical case of the use of force: The bartender ejects his noisy patron. If he uses only what force he needs to do that job, he is all right. But if he beats up his patron afterwards, he may well have a damage suit on his hands.

Or take Wilbur: After getting harrassing phone threats he found a vandal late one night on his place, looking as if he carried a bomb. Wilbur told him to leave and fired a warning shot. When the trespasser stood his ground, Wilbur shot him. The court found the shooting was legally justified, as not an excessive use of force in these circumstances.

DEFENSE OF PERSONS

Any force needed to protect a person, his family, or guests on his place is legal. Such a defender must have reason to believe that he or his family is in real danger.

"Necessary" force is what reasonably appears at the time in the particular circumstance to be necessary. In the face of what appears to be a danger, one may use necessary force, even though, as later events may show, he was mistaken about the real danger.

Where one has a reasonably safe way to escape harm, he should use it rather than use deadly force. If an intruder is in one's home, however, the dweller has no legal duty to retreat. He can use all the force he needs to remove the intruder.

'Itai-Itai' Illness From Bad Water

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—A Japanese chemist said Thursday that polluted water caused a bone disease called "itai-itai" in two areas of Japan.

Prof. Jun Kobayashi of Okayama University told the International Association for Water Pollution Research that minerals dumped into a river by a large mine and then drunk by villagers downstream caused the illness.

The disease claimed more than 100 victims since it was first identified shortly after World War II said Kobayashi. It is mainly found along the Jintsu River in the Toyams area of Japan.

Sonoma Drug Abuse Bureau Receives Grant

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — A $51,657 grant to the Sonoma County Drug Abuse Advisory Council has been approved by the California Council on Criminal Justice.

Federal funds for the grant were made available through the Safe Streets Act.

The money will support community-wide efforts to control drug abuse through individual and group counseling, a speakers' bureau, drop-in house for youth and other activities.

The Sonoma grant was one of 12 approved by the council at its July meeting. The grants total $687,686.

Pot Possession Case Given Juvenile Court

Barbara Lisa Cooper, 19, of San Anselmo, yesterday was certified to juvenile court for further hearing on a charge of possessing a marijuana plant.

She was arrested July 15 in San Rafael, where police saw the plant in her double-parked auto.

State Auto Will Test New Fuel

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — A state car using liquified natural gas will make a smog test drive next week from Mexico to the Oregon border.

The State Air Resources Board said Thursday tests would be made of the volume of air pollutants emitted, operational cost per mile and vehicle performance characteristics.

The car, which will make the run on Monday and Tuesday, is one of a San Diego-based fleet with engines modified to operate on liquid natural gas. Officials said emission tests on the fleet disclosed "a substantial drop in air pollutants."

The test vehicle will be equipped with two 37-gallon tanks, enough fuel for approximately 450 miles of travel.

Principal Choice To Be Weighed

Appointment of two principals for the Sausalito School District will be discussed at a meeting of the school district board Saturday at 9 a.m. in Bayside School, according to Supt. Robert E. Spain.

District trustees have been talking with the five finalists for the posts this week and will complete interviews tonight, Spain said.

Adoption of a final budget for 1970-71 will also be considered by the board. On July 20, trustees adopted a $1,328,028 publication budget which would keep the district's total tax rate at its current level of $3.555 per $100 of assessed valuation.

'Sesame Street' Colleagues Rake TV's Commercialism

WASHINGTON (UPI) —Television is the greatest invention since the printing press, a former network executive said Thursday, but it is missing its chance to spread learning and racial tolerance across America.

In a no-holds-barred hearing before a Senate subcommittee, Michael Dann and two colleagues from the highly successful children's show, "Sesame Street," raked commercial networks for allegedly glorifying white middle America while the black and poor watch in frustration.

"Sesame Street" was in turn attacked back by a Mexican-American spokesman who said the education show for preschoolers is as "racist" as the rest of the TV industry.

Sen. Walter F. Mondale,D-Minn., chairman of a special Senate committee studying equal educational opportunities, openly marveled at the statistics the witnesses presented.

Dann, until three weeks ago a senior vice president at CBS-TV and now vice president of the Children's Television Workshop (CTW) that produces "Sesame Street," summed up the "total saturation" of the American television industry.

"It reaches all of the people all of the time," he said. "All you need is the ability to pay your power bill. There are Americans who may not have an indoor toilet but they do have a TV antenna."

According to CTW president Joan Ganz Cooney, even 90 per cent of poor families have at least one television set.

She also said preschoolers watch an average of eight hours of television a day —most of it geared to white, middle-class values that leave minority group children feeling "something is wrong with them" because they can't identify.

Her show, she said, is deliberately aimed at these disadvantaged youngsters to provide learning experiences through an integrated cast.

Restrictions Due 'Second Homes'?

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Developers of "second homes" for Californians need more regulation, conservationists have told the State Environmental Quality Study Council.

Harold A. Berliner, Neveda County district attorney, told a council session Thursday many such recreational subdivisions are formed for speculative purposes and homes are not constructed on them immediately.

That means, he continued, that the land is cleared and "every time it rains, down the dirt comes, just like nature intended." The result is ruined streams, he said.

Richard S. Whitehead, a Santa Barbara planning consultant, suggested amending the state subdivision map act or passing planning and zoning laws to establish minimum standards for rural developments.

Film Captures Day Of Moon Landing

By RICK DU BROW

HOLLYWOOD (UPI)—Notes to watch television by:

"A day in the life of the United States," a film portrait of America on July 20, 1969, when man first landed on the Moon, will be a one hour and 45-minute special on CBS-TV Sept. 8 . . . Charles Kuralt will be the reporter for the broadcast, for which the network had 43 cameras at 33 locations across the nation recording scenes of American life on that day.

Perry Wolff, writer and executive producer of "A Day in The Life of the United States," describes it as "a modest effort to make a film equivalent to John Dos Passos' 'The 42nd Parallel' — a cross-section of life in the United States . . . America captured, frozen in a day of time" . . . Says the Network: "From the first light of sunrise on the coast of Maine to the last ray of sunset on the island of Kauai, Hawaii," the filming tried to record "what America was like on the historic day when Americans brought the world into a new age."

A report on the plight of the nation's small private colleges —from paying their bills to finding enough paying students —will be presented on NBC-TV's "First Tuesday" next week . . . Same program offers a segment on the problems plaguing the project to turn the Queen Mary into a tourist attraction at Long Beach, Calif. . . . ABC-TV is canceling its daily soap opera "The Best of Everything," based on the book and movie, as of Sept. 25.

NBC-TV has scheduled for the coming season a two-hour drama based on the Charlotte Bronte novel "Jane Eyre," with George C. Scott and Susannah York, and with London the site of the filming . . . Also scheduled during the season by NBC-TV is a program about the artistry of violinist Jascha Heifetz, to be taped in Paris; and a documentary concerning attempts to salvage and restore what is believed to be the flagship of Christopher Columbus, the Santa Maria, off the coast of Haiti.

Singer-composer Jerry Reed, who made a good impression hosting the "Harper Valley, U.S.A." special with Jeannie C. Riley, will be a regular next season on CBS-TV's Glen Campbell series . . . Nearly 42 per cent of American television homes had color sets as of July 1, according to NBC estimates . . . Mae West's planned special is reported to have been called off, at least for the time being, and some observers feel one reason is the strongly negative reviews that charged tastelessness in a current movie in which she appears "Myra Breckinridge."

NBC-TV's four-hour adaptation of Fletcher Knebel's best-seller about political intrigue in Washington "Vanished," will be seen in two-hour segments on successive nights in the coming season, and Richard Widmark has been signed to play the President of the United States . . . John Wayne is reported set to star in a 90-minute, Nov. 29 NBC-TV special that pays tribute to America in dramatic, humorous and musical forms, and has countless big name guests along with a tremendous budget.

'KEEP COMMUNITY AWARE'

Novato Group Sets Sights On Race Rift Prevention

Novato is in an ideal position to head off the racial problems that have led to confrontation, chaos and disruption in other cities throughout the United States.

That's the belief of Raleigh Floyd, 32-year-old president of Novatans for Racial Equality, who spoke last night with the enthusiasm of a hometown booster.

Novato, a predominantly white, middle-class suburb, has only a few minority families located throughout the city, and as Floyd explained, "There is a relative air of calm."

In this climate there is time to plan "and come up with solutions for the betterment of the community," rather than have confrontations later, he contended. "Now, nobody is polarized. Nobody is pushed."

Floyd and Novatans for Racial Equality have their sights set on housing for low and moderate-income families, multi-ethnic studies at Novato schools and jobs for people from low-income families.

People have asked "Why stir up the sleeping dragon?," Floyd said. His answer is: "Why wait until it's up and breathing fire?"

One of the principal objectives of the group is "to keep the community aware," he said. "There is no room for complacency."

There have been some racial incidents, but nothing major, and "we hope to keep them to a minimum," Floyd said.

Minority families are moving into Novato, "primarily out of the military," but the high cost of housing is a barrier, he asserted.

The reason there aren't more moving in is "more economics than discrimination," Floyd said.

A three-year-resident of 2057 Carolyn Way, he said there was no bias shown when he was house-hunting and he described his neighborhood "as the best we ever lived in."

Floyd described Novatans for Racial Equality as a group of citizens, not connected with the Congress of Racial Equality or any other such organization.

RALEIGH FLOYD
Seeks racial amity

While other similar groups elsewhere were formed after problems arose, the Novato group was formed to prevent such problems, he explained.

The lack of low and moderate income units is keeping people out of the city, Floyd said. He favored the proposal before the city council that a planned development at San Marin East have 10 per cent low and moderate income units. "Not only for minority groups, but anyone at that economic level."

Floyd, particularly interested in multi-ethnic studies at schools, said such studies would be relevant and would serve the student in the future.

There would be workshops to prepare teachers, who have "little minority exposure," with some background in ethnic studies, he explained.

He also has urged the hiring of minority teachers, but many prefer to work in ghetto areas, and cost of housing keeps the "young ones out because they can't afford to live here,' he said.

The task of finding jobs for minority youths is difficult," Floyd conceded, particularly since there is no public transportation system to get them to and from jobs.

Novatans for Racial Equality, to all and hopes to have some in- with about 50 members, is open fluence in the growth of the community, he said. "Novato has the potential to be one of the most progressive cities."

Floyd likes Novato so much that he commutes to his job as a teacher of technical training at Philco Ford in Palo Alto, spending four hours a day on the road, rather than move.

"I like Novato's potential," he said, perhaps thinking of the future of his son, Raleigh Floyd Jr., who was nearby celebrating his sixth birthday, complete with space suit and new watch.

Floyd, a native of Chicago, said he once thought of moving back, but decided after a visit: "I have a son, and I didn't want to go back there and have him end up in a gang."

Floyd's wife, Carol, a teacher at Tamalpais High School, was busy presiding over the birthday cake.

Little League In Its Second Generation

By DAVID EINSTEIN

Little League has finally come full circle. Twenty-four years have passed since the first year of national tournament play, enough time for two generations to have played. It is by now an American institution.

In its 18th season in Marin County, the program has not quite bridged a generation. Yet there is evidence of its maturity. Bill Johnson, 19, who played for the Corte Madera Lions seven years ago, has grown up to become the team's manager.

Closer to the point is the case of Angelo Colombo, 49, who in 1952 became the first president of the first league in the county. Now he has a son who was the star of the Marin team tournament last week.

Back in 1952 Colombo, a teacher at San Rafael High School then as now, was known as a "tough luck" guy. He broke his nose four times, and fractured his leg, as an old Independent-Journal article explains, "while negotiating a slide into third base." All this happened while playing second base for a semi-pro team known as the San Rafael Athletic Association, a group of young men with an aspiration for civic improvement.

No youth baseball program existed in San Rafael when, in 1952, the athletic association began to form plans for the city's first Little Leage. Since the project had no local precedent, it had to be founded from scratch. Sponsors had to be solicited (some of the first were the police, the Optimist Club and Taveggia and Brusati Sporting Goods Co.), a playing site was needed and the Little League offices at Williamsport, Pa., had to approve everything.

By Easter of that year, the San Rafael American Little Leage had been born; eight teams, playing on a field built with community-donated support that stood near what is now the corner of Lincoln and Second streets.

At the time, the A.A. was optimistic that Little League would grow in the county. "We felt it would catch on, that there would be teams in every city," says Colombo.

It caught on all right. By 1960, all but one of the county's present 16 leagues had been formed. As for the San Rafael American League, it was joined in 1954 by the National League. The A.A. and Colombo managed its affairs until the mid-fifties, when the Parks and Recreation Department took over.

Today thousands of boys play Little League in Marin. In fact, the county comprises by itself an entire district of California Division II, Section 2. The program has advanced to the extent that some leagues have weekly newspapers, and many have fields that would make the National League franchise department sit up and take notice. (Novato's Rancho field is of tournament quality, and will serve as the site of the Section II playoffs next month.)

For all its progress, however, the character of Little League has not changed much over the years. Colombo suggests that greater exposure to the game that kids receive today has increased the quality of play somewhat, but that as far as playing rules and sophistication of the game are concerned, he finds little difference.

One thing that has changed, by the nature of the program's growth, is the size of post-season tournaments. An annual team tournament has been added to the all-star competition, so that it's now possible for a boy to play eight games in two weeks. Regarding that, Colombo says, "I think the kids can handle it, as long as parents don't make it a high-pressure situation."

It shouldn't matter if a kid strikes out or makes an error, says Colombo. "The important thing is to let them play and have fun. It's a great experience."

'Fantastic' Describes Mudcat

By JOE SARGIS

OAKLAND (UPI)—"The man is fantastic. What more can you say."

That was Oakland A's manager John McNamara's way of describing his ace reliever—Jim (Mudcat) Grant.

The veteran righthander, who has been around the block a few times, hardly believes what is going on himself, but he'll take it.

"This happens once in a while so it isn't a fantasy," said Grant, who made his 49th appearance of the season Thursday night and picked up his 18th save. "Don Drysdale had a streak like this as a starter, though, and so did Bob Gibson, so I know it's real, but sometimes it's even hard for me to believe."

EIGHTH TIME

Grant rescued Jim Hunter, his favorite starter and "Soul Brother" for the eighth time while helping the A's nip the Boston Red Sox, 2-1. Hunter went 6 1-3 innings and gained his 15th victory.

Naturally, he was tickled to death with Grant's pitching.

"He's something else, isn't he?" Hunter said, sipping a beer and resting comfortably in the A's dressing room while Grant was being interviewed for radio.

"Don't forget, I'm doing my job, too," added Hunter. "I get paid for going as far as I can and he (Grant) gets paid for saving me. It's a happy combination and it's working out just fine for both of us and the ball club as well."

AGREES

"Jim's right," Grant said later. "This is the ideal situation. The starter gets a victory and I get a save."

Hunter came out in the top of the seventh with one out, a run in and runners on first and second. Grant retired Carl left center and after a passed ball moved the runners up a base each, he got out of the inning on a foul popup by Tony Conigliaro.

John Kennedy reached Grant for a meaningless single with two out in the eighth and Mudcat went on to get the next four men in a row and nail down the decision.

The victory was the eighth in the last nine games for the A's and put them a half game behind second place California and eight in back of Minnesota in the American League West.

SENATORS

The Washington Senators are in town tonight for the start of a four-game weekend series. It gives the A's a fine chance to get closer to the Twins, who play Detroit during the weekend.

"Now's our big chance to get back in the race," said McNamara. "I'm not taking the Senators lightly but I'd rather

The Players Show Their Strength In NFL Strike

CHICAGO (UPI)—The show of strength in pro football's first strike appeared to favor the players today since less than a handful of veterans reported to National Football League training camps in defiance of the Players' Association.

Instead the players' negotiating committee, headed by president John Mackey of the Baltimore Colts, received almost 100 per cent backing from club after club. Such support was indicated during an all-night meeting Wednesday when 87 players representing every one of the 26 teams stood in meeting to express their position and then voted unanimously to strike.

WILL BEND

"The players will stay out as long as it takes," Mackey said. "We are willing to bend, but the owners will have to be willing to bend, too."

Only one well-known veteran, linebacker Mike Curtis of the Baltimore Colts, broke ranks with the players. An all-pro selection in 1968, he checked into the Colt camp but refused to comment on his decision.

Two Pittsburgh veterans, punter Bobby Walden who played in the Pro Bowl game last year and defensive back Curtis Gentry, also reported.

The hardline position taken by the players left the negotiations with the owners in a stalemate. Mackey said that the players had not wanted to break off negotiations earlier this week and that the owners walked away. "Our understanding is they will get in touch with us," he said. "We are available."

SCATTER

The players who attended the Wednesday meeting scattered quickly Thursday with a few remaining in Chicago. The owners' negotiating committee was in New York, and the owners apparently were leaving the next step in the dispute, which centers on how much money should be contributed to the player pension fund, with them.

"We do not have a meeting scheduled," George Halas of the Chicago Bears said. "If we should need one, I suppose that Lamar Hunt and I would call it. But we're leaving this to the negotiating committee until they feel they have something for us to ratify."

Halas is president of the NFL's National Conference and Hunt, of the Kansas City Chiefs, president of the American Conference. It was their telegrams to the veteran players Wednesday, announcing that training camps would be opened at 6 P.M. Thursday and calling on the veterans to report, which precipitated the player action.

Mackey said the NFLPA telegraphed Halas, Hunt, Tex Schramm, chairman of the negotiating committee, and commissioner Pete Rozelle that the players "now officially are on strike."

The message also said the players believed it would be in the "best interests of the fans and professional football to quickly conclude the dispute."

"If we sit down with the idea that we want to settle," Mackey said, "this can be concluded quickly. You're always close as long as you're talking. We were talking, and we're hoping that we start talking immediately."

Veterans of only one team were in training, the Kansas City Chiefs, who play the College All Stars tonight. Their player representative, Jim Tyrer, said if the dispute was not settled, the Chiefs would have camp after the all star game.

The dispute was nearing the point where the owners might have to cancel exhibition games scheduled next weekend, one on Aug. 7 and eight on Aug. 8. However, the players believed that if a settlement was reached this weekend the games could go on.

Stiff Test For Giant Pitchers

PHILADELPHIA (UPI) — The San Francisco Giants' pitching staff, weakest earned run average in the National League, gets its stiffest test of the season starting tonight.

Over the next five days, the Giants will play seven games. To get things rolling, the schedule finds the Giants playing doubleheaders both tonight and Saturday against the Philadelphia Phillies.

Pitching the first two games will be Juan Marichal (4-9) and Frank Reberger (2-4). Gaylord Perry (14-10) and Rich Robertson (6-6) are Saturday's probables and newcomer Don Carrithers may make his initial appearance in the series closer Sunday.

San Francisco both made and lost ground Thursday. The idle Giants picked up a half-game on Atlanta in their battle for third place in the NL West. The Braves dropped a 4-2 decision to St. Louis. Conversely, the Giants fell another half-game behind first place Cincinnati, which downed Pittsburgh, 8-4.

San Rafael Reaches Little League Semis

San Rafael American Little League All-Stars earned their way into tonight's semifinals of the Marin County tournament with a victory that took two days to complete at Novato's Rancho School.

San Rafael youngsters had ended up tied, 6-6, with the Novato American Little Leaguers Wednesday when darkness halted play after eight innings. Yesterday evening the two teams picked up where they left off and after two innings San Rafael came out on top, 8-6.

San Rafael will take on Fairfax at Strawberry, in one semifinal game tonight and Marinwood takes on Novato National at Hamilton Air Force Base in the other. Both games start at 6 p.m.

After both San Rafael and Novato went scoreless in the first of their two-inning scrap yesterday, San Rafael broke the ice with two runs in the top of the 10th, the first scoring on a single through the box by Bryon Shelley and the second coming home on an error.

Novato almost got the two runs back in its half of the 10th but San Rafael rightfielder Gary Johns saved the day, jumping nearly a foot off the ground to rob John Weston of a home run with a man on base. The ball was actually out of the

Chiefs Two-Touchdown Favorites Over All-Stars

CHICAGO (UPI)—The 37th College All Star football game will be played under the lights in Soldier Field tonight and pro football's champion Kansas City Chiefs, although able to practice for only five days, were a solid two touchdown favorite.

The game will be televised by ABC (Channel 7), beginning at 6:30 p.m. (PDT).

Both teams were affected by the National Football League Players' Association strike. The Chiefs didn't begin to workout until last weekend when the NFLPA, in response to a request from the Chiefs' players, agreed to let them practice and play the game.

BOYCOTT

The All Stars were hit also and the players boycotted practice for one day in support of the NFLPA and then displayed a lack of enthusiasm when it was uncertain the game would go on.

But over the past week both clubs have solved their problems. "I look for our squad to do a very good job," Chiefs coach Hank Stram said. "The artistic aspect of the game may be hurt a little bit, but I think we will execute much better than people anticipate."

(Among the Chiefs players is tight end Reg Carolan of Novato, returning after being sidelined last season with a knee injury.)

Coach Otto Graham of the All Stars was fearful chiefly because his team has not had its usual scrimmage with a pro team. "The pros are human," he said, "and you can tell that to our boys all day long but they aren't sure, you haven't sold them.

RUN SCARED?

"I hope we don't go out there and run scared and not play for a half because we don't know the pros fall down too when they are blocked or tackled."

Graham declared his team had talent, and in some positions, he said, were better than last year. "We have some good defensive linemen and we have some good defensive backs," he said. "Our quarterbacks are good, we have good receivers and good running backs."

It will be Graham's 10th game as coach of the collegians and he has won two. Last year his team staged a furious last period rally against the New York Jets before losing 26-24.

Stram has never been in the All Star game although he was invited to participate as a player in 1943 and had to decline because of military commitments. "I think this game is one of the benefits we won in the Super Bowl," he said, "and it's like home coming to me. I grew up in the shadows of Soldier Field."

The game was expected to draw nearly 70,000 fans.

DEERSKIN, NOT PIGSKIN FOR BACCAGLIO

Martin Baccaglio of Novato, defensive end for the Cincinnati Bengals of the National Football League, will get in some deer hunting when the season opens tomorrow.

"It's the first time in a long time I've been around here for the opening of Coastal deer season," he said today from his Novato home where he is staying pending the outcome of the NFL players strike.

"It's unfortunate," Baccaglio said about the strike. "I think both sides are guilty of being obstinate, but I will stick with my fellow players and won't report to camp until I get the okay."

"To tell you the truth," said the 25-year-old Baccaglio, "it surprised me to see how cohesive a group the players association turned out to be."

It's time to let yourself go.

Moody Latest Golf Dropout

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

HARRISON, N.Y. — Name players are dropping like flies from the field of the $250,000 Westchester Golf Classic. Orville Moody, the 1969 U.S. Open champion, became the fourth casualty when he withdrew this morning because of an ankle injury.

Yesterday old pro Ben Hogan withdrew with a painful knee, and Lee Trevino and John Lotz were disqualified, Trevino because he overslept and missed his starting time, Lotz for failing to sign his scorecard.

Tommy Jacobs took the opening day lead in the tournament with a five-under-par 67, his best first round score in several years.

be playing them now than Detroit."

ADVANTAGE

Thursday's game was a key one for the A's and they took advantage of their only two opportunities to score. Bert Campaneris singled as leadoff man in the first inning, stole second and third and scored on Felip Alou's sacrifice fly. In the third, Hunter doubled and scored on another double by Rick Monday, who got three of the A's nine hits.

A walk to Tom Satriano and singles by Mike Andrews and Reggie Smith netted the Red Sox run in the seventh and brought on Grant, who now has A's 100 games.

The 2 2-3 innings of shutout relief lowered his earned run average to 0.94.

Like McNamara said, the man is fantastic.

Football

SANTA ROSA — Not a single Oakland Raider player reported to the opening of the team's training camp for veterans yesterday afternoon. Coach John Madden and his staff were on hand all day, but went to an early dinner when none of the veterans showed up.

In a meeting earlier at Tom Keating's East Bay Home, the veterans voted 23-0 to join the players strike.

SANTA BARBARA, Calif. — Eugene Thomas, a running back, was the only veteran to show up yesterday at the San Francisco 49ers training camp in defiance of the players strike.

Thomas, a free agent who was a member of the Kansas City Chiefs for two years but has been unable to land a job in either the NFL or AFL the past two seasons, actually reported two weeks ago with the rookies. He was told by coach Dick Nolan to wait until the veterans reporting date, which was yesterday.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — Arthur Ashe was paired with Australian Davis Cupper Allan Stone in the feature match of today's quarterfinals in the National Clay Courts Tennis Tournament.

Other pairings for today's singles were Cliff Richey, San Angelo, Tex., against Frew McMillan of South Africa; Clark Graebner of New York against defending champion Zeljko Franulovic of Yugoslavia; and Jaime Fillol of Chile against Stan Smith, of California, the top-ranking tennis player nationally.

Marin Netters In Finals

Five Marin County players swept into today's singles finals, and the team of San Francisco's Eric Lee and Tiburon's Dan Tierney breezed as expected into the final round of doubles as the 12th annual Marin County Junior Hardcourt tennis tournament turned into its home stretch at the Mill Valley Tennis Club.

In yesterday's feature semifinal match, Mill Valley's Andy Moffat got by Jerry Suyderhoud of San Anselmo in boys 18-and-under, 3-6, 6-4, 6-3. It was the second time in as many days that Moffat, the tournament's top seed, had to struggle.

Tierney and Lee, the No. 3 ranked doubles team in Northern California, continued to manhandle their opposition as they downed Mike Baker of Reno and Stansbury in straight sets, 6-1, 6-1.

SEMI WINNER

Gary Walter of Kentfield, playing in boys 16 doubles with Mark Tucker of Portola Valley, was the only other Marin player to win in the semis. They defeated an all-Tiburon team of Bill Kinzer and Mark Rodnick, 6-4, 6-4.

Bench Surprises Himself With Season's Showing

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Johnny Bench is more surprised than anybody else by his success.

The Cincinnati catcher, closing in fast on a number of home run records, continued his astounding hitting spree Thursday night as he cracked his 35th homer of the year to spark the Cincinnati Reds to an 8-4 victory over the Pittsburgh Pirates.

Bench now has a good chance to top Roy Campanella's all-time record of 41 homers for catchers set in 1953. He also has a shot at the club record of 49 hit by Ted Kluszewski in 1954. And of course, there's always Roger Maris and those 61 homers. But Bench is lagging there. Maris had his 35th homer in 1961 on July 15.

SURPRISED

And what does the 22-year-old Cincinnati slugger think about the furor that's swirling around his head?

"No one is more amazed than I am at my hitting," he says. "I'd be lying if I said I wasn't. After all, I predicted that I'd hit only 30 homers when the season started. But look at it now. I just don't know what to say."

Bench is now hitting .298 and has driven in 99 runs to lead both leagues in that department. Teammate Tony Perez is right behind him in homers and RBI's, however. But Perez, who cracked his 31st homer Thursday night to lift his runs-batted-in total to 98, denies that there's any rivalry between him and Bench.

NO RIVALRY

"I don't worry about catching Bench," Perez says. "I'm glad he's hitting the way he is. Everytime he hits one I figure that's glue (money) in my pocket."

In other National League action, Chicago whipped Houston, 6-3, Los Angeles topped Montreal, 7-3 and St. Louis beat Atlanta, 4-2. The other clubs were not scheduled.

In the AL, Oakland trimmed Boston, 2-1, Milwaukee belted Washington, 6-2, Kansas City trimmed Detroit, 3-2, in 10 innings and Cleveland edged Minnesota, 3-2.

Vince Cheered By Flowers

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Washington Redskin head coach Vince Lombardi was elated and cheered Thursday by the arrival at his hospital room of a spray of flowers from the striking National Football League Players Association.

Lombardi, who underwent his second operation in a month Monday, made a special point of showing the flowers and a get-well message to a visitor — Col. O. C. Krueger, business manager of the Redskins and a long-time friend.

The card with the flowers said: "Our sincere best wishes and prayers are with you. You are a great coach and a great individual to all of us."

Club officials continued a policy of silence on the nature of Lombardi's second operation or his condition except to report he was "resting comfortably."

Bench's homer—a two-run shot—started a four-run first inning for Cincinnati. The Reds added three more runs in the second inning when they buched four hits with a walk. Perez cracked his homer in the seventh as Tony Cloninger, with relief help from Don Gullett, won his fourth game.

WILLIAMS

Billy Williams drove in two runs with a bases-loaded single to spark the Cubs to a four-run fourth inning. Johnny Callison's solo homer accounted for another Chicago run. Ferguson Jenkins pitched an eight-hitter for his 12th victory. He was tagged for homers by Denis Menke and Cesar Cedeno.

Jeff Torborg drove in four runs with a three-run homer and a single to lead the Dodgers to victory. Bill Russell banged in two runs for Los Angeles with a single and a triple. Bill Singer yielded six hits for his eighth victory.

Lou Brock hit two solo homers and Joe Torre added another to give St. Louis its triumph. Starter Jerry Reuss had a four-hit shutout going into the ninth inning when Orlando Cepeda led off with a single and Clete Boyer followed with his 11th homer. Chuck Taylor then came on to preserve Reuss' second victtry.

FISH AND GAME

By AL GIDDINGS

Tomorrow morning at approximately 5:45 a.m. or one-half hour before sunrise, the coastal deer season will open and remain open until Sept. 13. Then there will be a two-week interval before the inland deer season opens on Sept. 26.

The limit on bucks in the coastal counties remains at two per hunter, forked horns or better. The only catch this year is that a person killing a buck in a coastal county (two deer district) won't be able to hunt in the inland seasons in a one deer district.

This year, the Fish and Game Commission passed a new law that reads: "Every person upon killing a deer in an area where the bag limit is one deer shall immediately fill out both parts of both his "A" and "B" tags, punch out clearly the date of kill on both tags, and attach them to the antlers of the deer." I suppose many people will get fouled up this year if they don't properly read the regulations, Section 362 (the section that covers this new law is on page 27 of the hunting regulations now available at your licensed sporting goods stores).

SECTION 2016 which should be noted reads: "It is unlawful to enter any lands under cultivation or enclosed by a fence belonging to, or occupied by another, or to enter any uncultivated or unenclosed land where signs forbidding trespass are displayed at intervals not less than three to the mile along all exterior boundaries, and at all roads and trails entering such lands for the purpose of discharging any firearm or taking or destroying any mammal or bird on such lands without having first obtained written permission from the owner of such lands, or his agent, or the person in lawful possession thereof." Even target shooters can be cited under the wording of this section.

This year also, those who shoot a buck must haveheir tags validated. (Page 26 of the hunting regulations has a list of those people eligible to validate tags this year.) And be sure you mail in the report card part of your tag. The validating officer should always take this part for mailing; it simplifies things. This part of the tag is already addressed and stamped.

HAVE YOU noticed the lack of water in Papermill Creek this year? And there is algae growth that is extremely bad, especially in the Point Reyes area of the Giacomini Dam. A number of people have bitterly complained about this; they feel the Marin Municipal Water District is short changing the ecological conditions of the streams below Kent Dam and Nicasio Dam.

Some checks were made, and the total amount of water being presently released from the dam is 1.2 cubic feet per second, and this from Nicasio Dam, nothing from Kent. This seems unbelievable with the water district oweing plants of 7,000 steelhead to this stream area in payment for the pollution it created several months ago when an estimated 3,000-4,000 wild silver salmon and steelhead yearlings were killed. One and two-tenths cubic feet per second is a flow three feet wide and four inches in depth — a drop in the bucket as compared to what's needed to really keep the salmon and steelhead fishery going. The Department of Fish and Game has no water rights for summer releases. Why? I can't understand it, nor has Taylor Park any rights for releases.

Flows are now dependent on Giacomini Ranch's repariam rights at Point Reyes. I believe the water district grants releases here when he asks for them.

I called the Fish and Game Department about this and the fisheries branch is attempting to get some releases. I hope so! Everyone should work together on this or our steelhead and salmon runs will just dry up.

THIS SHOULD giveyou a laugh! The other day I bought a 12-foot aluminum car-top boat. I have used four Klamaths (Trailer boat's aluminum boat) in fish and game work for 20 years of patrol. Never had I been dumped! Ha! I tried this new boat by rowing it around Tomales Bay five minutes after I bought it. Then it happened! I took my first spill into the bay. Yep, the boat turned over in about seven feet of water — cold-cold water!

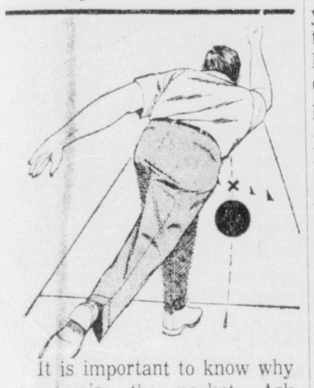
I've always wanted this to happen but only if I could later write about it, so here's what I have to say: The first thing is that you lose your breath! So, stay with the boat, until you get your breath back and don't panic! (Most boats float enough to keep you afloat if you hang on!) In my case, this took about three minutes. By this time, a boat with one man aboard got to me, but because the gunwales (sides of his boat) were too high, and with the heavy wet clothes and shoes I had on, I couldn't make the climb. (Be sure you have your rescuer put his motor in neutral because your legs have a tendency to go up and under the boat and could be badly cut.

I TOLD MY comforting friend that I was fine, and that I would swim ashore, but for him to watch me staying alongside until I was ashore. This we did, then he went back, picked up the floating oars and towed the boat in to the beach. Actually, there was nothing to it, but it could have been disaster.

Use a good boat, it sure can keep you warmer. I had no gear, just the oars, so the total loss was one oarlock. But the gain was an unforgettable experience.

BOWLING TIPS

By DON CARTER



It is important to know why you miss the pocket. Ask yourself, Did my ball go over the spot I was aiming at, or to the right or left? Be sure you can answer this question after every shot.

Many bowlers claim to use the spot system. But after aiming at a certain point on the lane, they don't really follow the path of their ball. It is a matter of concentration.

SUCCESSFUL INVESTING

By ROGER E. SPEAR

Q. We have read conflicting opinions on the merits of holding American Telephone shares. We are retired and have held some of our 420 shares since 1911. Now we are 'up in the air" about what to do. We will abide your advice. H.G.

A. Because differences of opinion are what keep the stock market operating, it is not surpirsing that Telephone, held by 1 out of every 10 U.S. stockholders, is subjected to frequent and diverse analyses by the "experts". H. Romnes, chirman, has cited recently several factors expected to foster improved year-to-year earnings comparisons. Prominent among them is the June 30 expiration of the surtax, which last year reduced net 32¢ per share. A continued upsurge in long-distance telephone calls and new telephone installations plus recent boosts in some interstate rates will also boost 1970 revenues significantly. With construction outlays of $7 billion scheduled this year, members of the Bell System should benefit from the firmer tone and reduced interest rates apparent in the bond market. You should not disturb your Telephone holdings, which provide a secure and generous 6 per cent yield.

Q. I would appreciate your thoughts on the purchase of Penn Central at this time. P.T.

A. Quite frankly there are just too many attractive, deeply-discounted and financially sound issues available to sink hard-earned funds into asset-rich but cash-poor Penn Central. However, the liquidity difficulties, which forced Penn Central Transportation to file bankruptcy, have focused increasing attention on the financial conditions of other corporations. Analysts, brokerage firms and advisory services have been scrambling to compile lists of companies with particularly favorable debt structure. Standard & Poor listed about 75 New York Exchange companies with no long-term debt. Among those debt-free corporations are five which appear to offer above-average appreciation potential: Marlennan Corp., Maytag Company, Plough, Inc., Polaroid Corp., Walker, Hiram G. & W. All have well-established uptrending earnings patterns and a record of increasing dividends.

More Formaldehyde

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — Monsanto Co. announced plans to increase its formaldehyde manufacturing capacity by 450 million pounds to almost 950 million pounds annually to provide for internal requirements.

Market On Mixed Side Near Close

NEW YORK (UPI) — The list had a mixed appearance on active trading with about an hour remaining Friday.

The Dow Jones Industrial Average was off 0.95 to 733.78 shortly before 2:30 p.m. It had been up more than 5 points earlier.

Of the 1,480 issues traded, 638 advanced and 543 declined.

At the start the market moved up smartly on Israel's acceptance of U.S. peace proposals for the Middle East. Then it started back tracking.

One analyst said he believed the announcement by President Thieu of South Vietnam that he would not accept a coalition government with the communists helped to blunt the rally.

Among the most active stocks were Hanna Mining which traded a block of 285,000 shares at 40 off 1¼ and another of 55,000, both for Institutional Investors. Electric & Musical also active, traded a 20,000 share block and an 80,000 share block both at 4½, unchanged.

Parke, Davis, also among the most active, attracted some demand. The company said Thursday that it had a tentative agreement to merge with Warner-Lambert. Warner-Lambert, however, pointed lower.

There were a number of point size swingers in the electronics but in both directions.

Prices on the American Stock Exchange were mixed on moderately active trading.

Publicly-Owned NYSE Broker Airs Profit Drop

NEW YORK (UPI) — Donaldson, Lufkin & Jenrette, the New York Stock Exchange's only publicly-owned member firm, has reported a sharp drop in net income for the first half of 1970.

DLJ was in the vanguard of the drive to alter big board regulations to permit member firms to sell their own stock to the public. The firm put its own common stock on the market early in April at $15 a share and it was quoted at $7½ bid, $8 asked on the over-the-counter market Thursday.

First half profits dropped to $605,000, or eight cents a share, from $1,930,000, or 26 cents a share, in the comparable 1969 period. Commissions, fees and other income dropped to $10,824,000 from $16,062,000.

Dana Corp has designed and manufactured components for the transportation industry for 65 years. An agreement has also been reached for Dana to acquire all outstanding stock of C and M Auto Spring Co. of Berwick, Pa.

SEARS, ROEBUCK AND CO., Mafco, Inc. (a subsidiary of Marshall Field and Co.) and Urban Development Co. (a subsidiary of Aetna Life) will join in a quarter-billion dollar land development to create a new town in Lake County, Ill., 30 miles north of Chicago. "New Century Town" will be built in two stages - the first to be a regional commercial center requiring about 18 months to complete. Construction is scheduled to begin next year with completion of the entire project in five to 10 years.

BEMIS CO., INC., earnings per share for the three months ended June 30 were 38 cents, compared with 39 cents for last year's quarter. Pre-tax income for the three months amounted to $3.8 million, a 24-per cent increase over last year's comparable $3.1 million.

Blue Cross Will Increase Rates Of Small Groups

OAKLAND (BW) — For the first time in more than three years, Blue Cross in Northern California will rase rates for employee groups of less than 100 employees beginning Sept. 1.

The increase will affect about 7 per cent of the total Blue Cross membership in Northern California. The aggregate amount of the increase will be about 28 per cent. However, the percentage will vary depending on the benefit patterns of each particular group.

In announcing the increase, Blue Cross noted that since March 1, 1967, the last rate increase for these community rated groups, hospital service charges have risen more than 40 per cent to the point that daily hospital charges of $100 are common.

During the same period of time, doctor care charges have increased 17 per cent, a rate close to that experienced by the rising cost of living index. Therefore, the rates for the hospital portion of the programs will bear tht heaviest portion of the increase.

Hospital Opening Set For End Of August
